SHOULD EMPIRE OF GERMANY FALL DOWN WITH IT GO EUROPEAN MONARCHIES

Emperor's Strongest Card Will Be Played Only When He Says to England and Russia, "Crush Me and You Crush Yourself"

Washington, Sept. 6.—Roger W. Babson, the well-known statistician, believes that the German kaiser has yet to make his most effective diplomatic move in his contest with the allies.

When he was in Europe last year endeavoring to organize an international census bureau, Mr. Babson was impressed by what he considered the weakness of most of the rulers. They perform few functions, if any, he says, but enjoy a great privilege which they are in constant fear of losing. We quote Mr. Babson:

"Members of these royal families who cannot be killed, exiled or banished are absolutely powerless in the thought of their monarchies becoming republics. So far as practical purposes go England, Belgium, and some of the others are as good as republics now, but in these countries the royal families and their courts yet have tremendous privileges which they would not have under a republican form of government."

In the case of nations like Russia and Austria the emperors still exercise real power which is wanted by the people. Hence in these countries the fear of a republic on the part of the ruling classes is even greater. Considering the fact that the ability of these rulers and of their courts is very much below that of the average man of large affairs and especially the representatives of democracy in this country, the ruling class is even greater. Considering the fact that these emperors and kings and their followers live in constant fear of a republican form of government."

M. Babson says also that Emperor William has thus far been recognized as the abject of the European rulers, and all have depended upon him to keep them in power. In other words so long as Germany remains under an emperor they believe the chances are good for their countries to remain like this, and they fear that if Germany should become a republic their nations might be obliged to follow in her trail.

Hence, says Mr. Babson, "in coming to a conclusion as to the result of this war we must not place all our confidence in the predominance of either numbers or wealth, in which the allies lead. In my opinion, with the German navy and army bottled up and the emperor still has his best card to play. He simply needs to wait to see what England, Belgium and Japan: "Push me to the wall, if you wish, but if you do it means the end of my reign and the formation of a republic in Germany. Moreover, a republic in Germany means the end of monarchies in power for the rest of Europe. In other words, gentlemen, you will only be cutting your own throats by making me acknowledge defeat. We can call the war a draw and each give up its share, in which case I can go back to my people and continue my reign, and the governments of Europe need not be disturbed. If, however, I cannot do this, the days are numbered for us all."

Prospects For Fair Is Bright
Despite the general cry of hard times and scarcity of money yet the reports coming in are very encouraging from the standpoint of the fair which will open here on October the 20th. The farmers in all sections of the county are preparing agricultural displays, arranging their poultry and live stock for exhibition during the fair. While money is close, yet it is hoped by that time cotton will begin to move, and the amount that the individual spends at a fair is very little, it is the large number of people who attend where the receipts amount to much. The program list is as liberal as it is possible under present conditions.

The midway attractions will be good and the races will be much better than those of last year. The track has already been put in shape and the horses are being trained daily for the races next month. The gate tickets this season will be thirty cents for adults, a reduction of five cents from the last fair, fifteen cents will be the price for children over five years and under twelve years. Season tickets, good for entire fair will be placed on the market at one dollar each for grown people and fifty cents for children. These tickets will be honored at the gates as often as the owner desires to pass in and out of the grounds. But under no circumstances will they be transferable.

Prices of Food Soaring High
The speculators have taken advantage of the war in Europe and have levied an exorbitant price on nearly all articles of food. For instance, meat is selling at twenty-one cents, sugar, which, before the war broke out, was selling at sixteen pounds to the dollar, now you get only twelve and in some cases only ten. Flour has not shown such a skyward tendency, but that is about the only article of standard food that has not.

Paint Better
Better isn't enough; paint best. A man bought "cheap" paint; saved 20 or 30 or 40 or 50 or 60 or 70 or 80 per cent more gallons; how much did he make on his paint?
Yes, and bought 40 or 50 or 60 or 70 or 80 per cent more gallons; how much did he make on his paint?
And he paid for painting those gallons a fair day's work; how much did he make on his job?
He lost a quarter or third of his money.
How long will it last? not his money, the paint?
Perhaps half as long as Devoe. How long will his money last, if he buys other stuff as he bought that paint?
Better buy the best paint; it makes the least bill and lasts longest.

DEVOE, A. J. Franklin sells it.

Explanation
There seems to be a misunderstanding regarding a statement printed last week about the fair. The statement read: "There will be no other attractions at the fair grounds this fall except the fair." We intended by this that there will be no attractions at the fair grounds except those that will be there fair week. Yes, there will be a fine midway, good shows, etc., and high class ones, too.

The European War Still Rages
The gigantic struggle between the nations of the old world is even raging more furious and more deadly than when we went to press last week. The German army, as has been all the while, seem to be getting the best of it on land, while Great Britain has succeeded in almost annihilating her navy; yet Germany, with five and one half million trained and seasoned soldiers, is cutting a wide swath through France, besieging the city of Paris, with her gigantic army, right at the gates of the French capital. The seat of government has been hurriedly moved and everybody who could possibly get away have fled the ill-fated city.

Russia is missing her great army, attacking Germany from an opposite direction. She has been held in check by Austria, but it seems that the Austrians are only able to halt the march of the overwhelming numbers of Russia temporarily, and the crushing of Austria is imminent at the hands of Russia, while France seems to be doomed at the hands of Germany.

When Russia gains her way to Germany, having brushed Austria aside, as she will do, then the march will be made to face with the Russian, the capital of the German empire, and Germans are making haste in an attempt to wipe out France in time to retreat their steps and defend their own seat of government against the Russian invaders.

If we are to believe half the stories we see in print about the number killed and wounded, then there has never been a bloodier struggle in all the world's history than the one we are now warring to face with. The figures describing the dead in each day's battle are simply appalling. Reports reaching this country give accounts of great cruelty and inhuman treatment towards the wounded. In battle, one report says that the German command ordered the heads cut off of ten thousand wounded of their own army who were considered fatally wounded and beyond recovery. Another report says that in one battle the dead fell so fast that there was not room for them to fall—they lay in heaps several feet deep on the battle field, and lay there several days before burial. In all nearly half million men have been up their lives on the battle field, and the German soldier seems to be without fear and the army commanders seem to have very little consideration for the number killed. Whole regiments and army corps are thrown against entrenched positions that mean certain slaughter to almost every man who attempts the task of rushing these positions.

It seems to be the growing belief that the allied powers will finally crush Germany and Austria, though this is not at all certain. The war may last a year and it may end in a week. No one seems to know or even be in a position to guess at the time this gigantic, bloody struggle will run.

Reform It From the Inside
If you have no delivery problems or have no light hauling to do, stop right here. This is not for you. But if you feel that your deliveries are costing too much, or are made too irregularly—if you feel that you would like to reach out further and do more regular or if you have a lot of light hauling to do, whether regular or irregular—here is something to think about and look into. You can reform that condition.

Advantages of a Checking Account.
Do you know that 90 per cent of commercial transactions are made without the exchange of actual cash? This for the two great reasons—Safety and Efficiency. And these two reasons apply as well to the modest business as to the big Wall street operations. When you give your check you do not waste one moment counting money. Of greater importance is the fact that your check automatically gives you a receipt.

Family Have Hook Worm
The five orphan children of Lonie Deal are now being cared for by Mrs. Hanes, their aged grandmother, as assembled in a vacant house in the southern section of the city. They are all afflicted with hook worm, and a treatment is being made for them. The father of the children is now in the insane asylum and the mother died some time ago at Ocala, Fla., where they were living at that time. The county is providing provisions for them and a house has been provided for them along with medical treatment, but there are some necessities that they are badly in need of making a case that should appeal to the good people of the city, who when they ascertain the circumstances will probably respond to their needs.

Scandal in High Colored Society
Practically the entire colored population of the city, as well as a large outpouring of the whites, drawn by morbid curiosity, packed the rooms of the justice of the city court in the court house yesterday. It was a charge of immoral conduct and the support of an illegitimate child charged to Prof. W. M. James, principal of the Statesboro colored school. Mattie Collins, one of the dusky demure in the vicinity of the school had become a mother, and the distinguished professor was arraigned on the charge that he was the father of the child. Charges and counter charges were made, and a serious split among the folks on Cotton avenue seemed imminent. The majority of the leading members of Prof. James' race seemed to take the side of the professor. A number of leading white men testified to the good character of Prof. James, and the number of colored men testified to the bad character of the woman. The outcome of the trial was that Prof. James was acquitted.

Good News From the Front
The latest dispatches from the seat of the European war are very encouraging. It looks like the beginning of the end is approaching. The armies of the allies are driving the Germans into almost certain defeat, while Russia is practically wiping out the Austrian army. We do not see how the war can last much longer, especially if the present lull keeps up.

GERMANS TO HOLD BELGIUM AS KNIFE UNDER BRITISH NOSE
London, Sept. 12.—A dispatch from Copenhagen says that a copy of the newspaper Loket Anzeiger, of Berlin, which was received there today, quotes General Von Oesterley, a friend of Emperor William, as saying: "Belgium must become a part of the German Empire because her excellent harbors are wanted. This will enable Germany to hold a knife under the nose of Britain, and also cowardly England. Holland also may be persuaded to enter the German union if she is offered great advantages."

Wilson Accepts Plan to Levy Three Per Cent of Carrier Charges for Deficit.
Washington, Sept. 10.—Taxation on beer, wine and railroad freight in transit will be provided in the emergency revenue bill, according to an agreement reached by the Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee today. President Wilson finally agreed to accept a tax on freight, to which he had made a previous objection. The Democratic plan to raise $33,000,000 by an additional tax of fifty cents a barrel on beer, making a total of $1.50 a barrel. They plan to raise $9,000,000 additional by a tax of 20 cents a gallon on wine and $65,000,000 by a tax on freight in transit, the tax to be 3 per cent of the freight bill.

These items, it is estimated, will raise slightly more than the $1,000,000 necessary for emergency purposes. Following their agreement shortly after noon today, members of the committee telephoned the House and were informed that the President would accept the bill as proposed by the House committee. The bill will be introduced late today or tomorrow by Chairman Underwood.

Notice
To My Customers AND FRIENDS:
I desire to express to you my opinion as to what is best for us to do under the present depressed cotton market conditions. I feel that we only have to stick together, offer our cotton to the mills gradually along as they can use it and run on as small scale as possible. I also advocate, as I have done before, running on cash basis during the fall months. You can sell enough cotton along to buy your necessities and help out your merchant a little and still have some cotton on hand in case the market advances.

Right at this time we are unable to furnish groceries and other cash merchandise on credit unless you can make us a payment on account or note equal to amount of your purchase. This is due to the fact that we are now having to pay cash for this class of merchandise.

I have been buying some cotton along and advancing some money for picking purposes, also have been furnishing supplies and doing everything I could to keep things moving until sufficient cotton could be gathered to ease up the situation. My firm is disposed to be as lenient as possible with people who owe us and are not asking or advising them to sell their cotton, but we are compelled to ask that each one of them pay us a little in cash or sell a little cotton and help us out, or you can deposit your cotton with us, this will be some advantage to us.

I want my friends to consider these matters for our mutual benefit, and to know that the existing conditions require cool co-operation between us. Also to know that business must have some money along to keep running.

Myself and my firm stand ready to assist our customers in any way we can.

Yours very truly,
R. SIMMONS, PRESIDENT,
Statesboro Mercantile Co.

Laura Jean Libbey's Talks on Heart Topics

Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate. JOLLY GIRLS IN QUIET FAMILIES.

I seem in the midst of the crowd. The lightest of all; My laughter rings cheery and loud. In laughter and bliss. My lips flash the smiles and my eyes sparkle for all men to see. But my soul and my truth, and my tears are for those who are true.

When he takes her home to live with his folks the jolly little bride is like a flower transplanted into a different garden. The young husband, who has been a busy man in the city, takes after his cold, austere, un-democratic mother, whose heart is in the right place, but she has no way of showing it.

To the jolly girl who was used to balls and parties, after-theater suppers and tango dancing into the wee-hours, she sits next her quiet bride, who is losing the house at ninety-three sharp was almost intolerable.

In vain she appeals to her young husband. "Mother's heart is not very sane thing every day as long as I can remember," she says. "It wouldn't be possible for her to change her way of living now to live most old conditions with me young," persists the bride. "There's no such thing as having a cup of chocolate breakfast once a month. This is a house of rules," she goes on desperately. "One has to be up at six-thirty, breakfast at seven o'clock, and then at eight minutes for luncheon of cheese, crackers and weak tea."

A guest dropping in of an afternoon is looked upon with lofty horror. One has to converse with jolly girls in whispers lest the sound of laughter should get beyond the crack of the parlor door. Dinner is served at six sharp.

There's no bit of news discussed over the tea-cups; no delicious bit of scandal rolled smoothly over the tongue. The girls sit quietly of the vines set before one is attended to in quiet, almost silence. The parlor is dark. One may see a gleam of light from a window pane, but the fire is banked up for the night precisely at nine. Roving Tom, the cat, who detests cats, must be bolted thereafter. The house is given over to darkness and silence. The jolly sunbeam of a son does not come in, and the husband soon realizes that it is far wiser for him to take her to a home of his own, but a few plain rooms will do, and he is in an environment which fills the warmest heart.

The woman who sits down and cries over the loss of her husband, and who is in the ownership of an abandoned home of pleasure, while the jolly sunbeam of a son does not come in, and the husband soon realizes that it is far wiser for him to take her to a home of his own, but a few plain rooms will do, and he is in an environment which fills the warmest heart.

WANTED: A HEAD FOR THE FAMILY. Take love and friendship, these are comely. What's done by one the other has a just like co-partners in joint stock of trade. Just like contracts is for the other paid. It is a sly, standing joke that most widows are not able to slipping into the matrimonial harness a second time. It puzzles young girls to see their widowed aunts sit fair and forty, with grown up children, looking around angry. Middle-aged spinners can't understand it.

THE YOUNG MEDICO

By CLARENCE PUGH.

"There goes Doc Rogers up to his hill paid," remarked the other, who was unable to locate any of the other physicians on the telephone, came rushing out and summoned him.

"Yes, madam," answered Doctor Rogers sharply—and his tone was not the less sharp that he had felt himself unusually interested in the girl, whose head was just to him, she had the head of the family and his helpmate.

THE SHADOW OF BETTER DAYS. Dear, your future life should need to be a great deal more than a mere shadow. Through adversity of my heart be freed at all the matter with her exact boldness and distaste for mental and physical occupation.

Not HARD TO ACQUIRE GRACE. Gracefulness is only a state of perfect harmony throughout the muscles. A woman who does not have developed in her muscles through vigorous exercise, yet be awkward and ungraceful. Another woman may be graceful, and yet be distinctly ungraceful by appearance and it was to while away an idle hour that she had summoned him to attend her for her imaginary complaint.

JOYS OF IRRESPONSIBLE OWNERSHIP. The most innocent form in which this unnormal pleasure can be enjoyed is in the ownership of an abandoned home of pleasure. While the jolly sunbeam of a son does not come in, and the husband soon realizes that it is far wiser for him to take her to a home of his own, but a few plain rooms will do, and he is in an environment which fills the warmest heart.

The Land of Broken Promises

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution. By DANE COULIDGE. The "Mexico" series. Illustrations by Don J. Levin.

Up along the hillside and after the fugitives ran with veiled anger, racing each other for the higher ground and the first shot at the rebels. First Alvarez on his white horse would be ahead, and then, as they encountered rocks, the Yaguis would surge to the front. It was a race and at the same time it was a rout. At the first glimpse of that oncoming body of warriors, the cowardly followers of Bernardo Ibarro took to their heels and fled.

But over the rocks no Chihuahuan, no matter how scared, can hope to outdistance a Yaqui, and the pop-top of rifles told the fate of the first ragged stragglers. For the Yaquis, after a hundred and sixty years of guerrilla warfare, never waste a shot; and as the yellow and the crash of a sudden volley drifted down from the rocky heights the men who had been besieged in Fortuna knew that death was abroad in the hills.

CHAPTER XXIV—Continued. They had no opportunity for conversation, for the trail was too narrow to permit of their riding side by side. Bud was thinking not only of the dangers that surrounded them, but of this errand upon which he was engaged, and what the end of it meant to him.

The first slanting rays of the sun struck fire from the high yellow crags, then the fire faded and the sky glowed an opaline blue, then, through dark blues and purples the heavens turned to black above them and all the stars came out. Thousands of frogs made the canyon resound with their throaty songs and strange animals crashed through the forest at their approach, but still Hooker stayed in the saddle and Gracia followed on behind.

If she had thought in her dreams of an easier journey she made no comment now and, outside of stopping to clinch up her saddle, Bud seemed hardly to know she was there. The trail was not so hot as the day before, but the tropical darkness, he could not search out new ways to go.

CHAPTER XXV. Though the hillside turned to war, all nature that morning was at peace, and they rode through a valley of flowers like night and lady in a pagoda. The wind came from the winding trail at sunset, and it was either ride or fight at last from the pent-in canyon. He turned up a valley between two ridges, spurring his horse into a wild gallop across for the winding trail. He turned up a valley between two ridges, spurring his horse into a wild gallop across for the winding trail.

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution By DAN E. COOLIDGE

Up along the hillside and after the fugitives they ran with eager eyes, racing each other for the higher ground and the first shot at the rebels.

First Alvarez on his white horse would be ahead, and then, as they encountered rocks, the "Yaguis" would surge to the front. It was a race, and at the same time it was a rout, for, at the first glimpse of that oncoming body of warriors, the cowardly followers of Bernardo Bravo took to their heels and fled.

But over the rocks on Chihuahua, no matter how scared, no hope to outdistance a Yagui, and the pop, pop, of rifles told the fate of the first lackluster stragglers.

Hooker strained his eyes to follow a huge form that intuition told him was Amigo, he was wakened suddenly from his preoccupation by the touch of some unseen hand.

He turned and hurried back to the corral where Copper Bottom was kept, and there he found her waiting, with her hair all matted, and she challenged him with her eyes.

they still watched expectantly for the road, the evening quickly passed. They had no opportunity for conversation, for the trail was too narrow to permit of their riding side by side.

At each fork he paused to light a match, and whichever way the tracks went he went along for pack mules would take the main trail.

Two hours and more they followed on the main trail, and then Hooker stopped his horse.

"You might as well get down and rest a while," he said quietly. "This is a hard day's work."

of evil, and they thought only to gain the far pass. Beyond that lay comparative safety, with long parallel ridges extending to the northeast, and when he saw where the way was taking him Bud called a halt till dawn.

By the very formation he was being gradually edged back toward Fortuna, and it would call for fresh horses and a rested Gracia to outstrip their pursuers by day. If it were possible to travel by landmarks, heading for the northern passes in an effort to outside and intercept him, they might easily cut him off at the start; but if they trailed him—and he devoutly hoped they would—then they would have a tangled skein to follow and he could lose them in the broken country to the north.

So thinking, he cut grass among the rocks, spread down their saddle blankets and watched the open country as it unfolded before them.

Once through that gap, the upper country there is no call for a camp, for they could pick and choose. Now they must depend upon speed and the chance that their way was not blocked.

It was no new task for him, this watching and waiting for the dawn. For weeks at a time, after a hard day's work at the branding, he had to look out for a man who was as hard as a stone.

People like Gracia, people like Phil were different in all their ways. To ride, to fight, to find the way—there was a better man than Phil, and to speak to a woman, to know her ways, and to enter into her life—there was no man at all.

She trusted to his courage to protect her, and that he could do, but it was to a man such as Phil she would give her love. Phil could not love her more than he did, but Phil's ways could be more attractive to her.

"Yes," she said; "but what will you do if they catch us?" replied Hooker confidently. "Not while I've got my rifle. Ah!" he exclaimed, still looking back, "now we know all about it—Gracia will kill me!"

He turned and hurried back to the corral where Copper Bottom was kept, and there he found her waiting, with her hair all matted, and she challenged him with her eyes.

Congressional Race is Looming Up

It now looks as if there will be at least four entries in the race for a congress two years from now, and the First Congressional District will show up some lively times as usual. Presumpting of course that Messrs. Overstreet and Edwards will decide to try their hand again.

First of these is Col. J. J. E. Anderson, of Statesboro, Mr. Anderson came very near entering the race two years ago and decided not to do so after fully making up his mind that at some future date he would try his hand in the running.

The second of these names is Hon. Herman C. Shuptrine, of Savannah. While Mr. Shuptrine has signified no intention of entering this race, yet it is known that hundreds of his fellow citizens have approached him on the subject. Mr. Shuptrine is young, ambitious and brazen. He is a member of the General Assembly from Chatham county, and as such has taken his position in the front ranks of the Georgia legislature.

He is a good speaker, and a good mixer. He has wide acquaintance with the people of the district. He uses only enjoys the acquaintance of the city he now represents in the Georgia legislature, but his seed store as well as that of his father before him, has been known as a country seed store. There he has come in contact with perhaps more men throughout the counties of the First District than any other man in it. But it is a long time off now and lots of things could happen between now and the next primary election.

Col. A. M. Deal spoke from the standpoint of the cotton growers. He was not in the market to buy cotton, in other words he was a grower, he advocated the calling together of the Georgia legislature and having some legislation passed that would curtail the acreage and yield next year. He offered a resolution to this effect which was passed amid loud applause; he also offered a resolution favoring the adoption of the Vreeland-Aldrich Currency act as under amendment allowing state banks to issue emergency currency.

It was evident that the large number of farmers present were in dead earnest in their efforts to do something that would help matters along some. While there was great anxiety shown about the cotton market as a matter of course, there was that feeling predominating that showed that the Bulloch county farmers were not wholly dependent on the termination of the European war, they have efforts of bacon and bread at home, some yellow leg chickens on the yard, and a few fine milk cows, plenty of hay for the stock, sweet potatoes and sugar cane in plenty and everything in ship shape with the exception of the little embarrassment occasioned by the absence of a cotton market.

With active preparations, clearing out right of way, etc., there is every indication that Statesboro is soon to be connected with Savannah by another straight line of railway. Some time ago Mr. George M. Brinson, railroad magnate and promoter of established reputation, began the project of building a direct line of railroad from Savannah to Statesboro. The line extends from a point just west of the old Ogeechee canal, in West Savannah, crossing the main line of the Central of Georgia Railway at Pineora, crossing the Ogeechee river opposite Gorton, and running along a point of five miles north of Brooklet, where it will intersect with the Shearwood Railway, thence to Statesboro, striking the city on the north side of the town. Right of way and terminal facilities have already been arranged for here, and the road is looked upon as a certainty by those in touch with the situation.

We understand that the survey shows a distance of forty five miles between Statesboro and Savannah, being several miles shorter than any other route. Mr. Brinson contends that not only the passenger rate will be fixed on a forty five mile basis between the two cities, but the same will be true of freight rates. He says that the freight rate between Savannah and Statesboro is now based on the Central Railway mileage of sixty seven miles, as that is the only continuous line reaching between the two points. He points out that Statesboro will save thousands of dollars in the way of freights on the completion of his line.

It is understood that Mr. Brinson expects to start the work of grading the line in the near future. It is expected that the work will be done in the near future. It is expected that the work will be done in the near future.

Farmers Organize To Hold Cotton

In response to a notice published in our last issue there was a large gathering of farmers and business men assembled under the shade in the court house yard on Saturday at eleven o'clock. The meeting was organized by the election of Hon. J. W. Williams as chairman, who opened the meeting for business in short order. Among those who addressed the large assembly of farmers present were Col. A. M. Deal, Hon. R. S. Simmons and Mr. J. F. McCran, Mr. J. W. Wilson made a few remarks, telling the farmers present that his company via The Savannah Gunco. would allow eight cents per pound for cotton on fertilizer notes, would hold the cotton until January first, and if the market went above eight cents would allow the full amount realized for the cotton on any obligation the company held against the cotton growers.

Mr. Simmons made the following offer. He was giving seven and one half cents in cash, seven and one half cents in half cash, and eight cents where full amount went on the account of the farmer at the place of business viz: The Statesboro Mercantile Co. Mr. Simmons did not care to hold the cotton entrusted to him any great length of time.

Mr. J. E. McCran, representing the First National Bank and The Brooks Simmons Co., stated that his bank and business house would be in shape to allow eight cents for cotton which represented a collection.

BARK BLIGHT FUNGUS SERIOUS AND APPARENTLY LITTLE UNDERSTOOD DISEASE.

Working Great Haven With Chestnut Trees in Several of Eastern States—Writers Attempt to Estimate the Loss.

By O. CLINTON. The fact that so many shade and forest trees throughout the United States are dying is causing serious concern on the part of all who are interested in forestry, whether this interest be caused merely because one is a lover of the fine trees, which line our city streets, or whether one is the owner of a commercial forest.

It is appalling to note, as one drives through various sections of the country, the many splendid trees turning prematurely yellow or brown, and are entirely defoliated by some insect pest or disease.

Grand specimens of oak, elm, maple, ash, chestnut—every variety of tree almost in some localities one

Fungus on Elm Leaves.

Millions of dollars' worth of trees have been destroyed by these wretched foes within the past few years, regardless of the fact that millions of dollars are annually spent in the endeavor to prevent the destruction of our trees.

Certain writers have attempted to estimate in money the loss caused by the blight of chestnut bark. Just how this loss is estimated is not absolutely clear. However, it is interesting to note that in 1920 a writer estimated the damage to be about New York City between five and ten million dollars.

He says: "The damage already done in the states of New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey would not be less than twelve millions of dollars."

The greatest loss is caused where future profits are entirely cut out by the death of half grown trees and sprout growth too small for present use. If the disease progresses in the future as actively as in the past, the prospects of our chestnut forests are very poor indeed. This means serious loss, for the chestnut is one of the most useful forest trees in all parts of the country where it occurs.

Besides the loss from a commercial point of view, there is the damage caused to the shade and ornamental trees, and to groves kept on estates and parks, for aesthetic rather than practical purposes.

CLEANING OF TRUCK GARDEN Numerous Fungus Diseases Rest Over Winter On or in Decayed Stalks, Leaves or Fruit.

By W. W. ROBBINS, Colorado Experiment Station. DOORLESS CABBAGE IS HERE

New Vegetable Introduced From Shantung Province of China Grown On Experimental Plots.

A new Chinese doorless cabbage, introduced into this country from the Shantung province of China, has been grown on experimental plots near Washington, David Fairchild, who is in charge of the government's work in plant introduction, and Dr. D. N. Shoemaker, a horticultural expert in the bureau of plant industry, have been doing the work. The doorless cabbage is rated as a great delicacy by those who have tasted it.

The Chinese cabbage is different in shape from the domestic varieties, being long and narrow. It also requires a different method of cultivation. The heads of the common cabbage are planted in the early spring in a hot bed or cold frame, and the young plants are set out after the danger of frost is past.

The vegetable is adaptable to practically all sections of the country where the domestic cabbage will grow, and where the soil is rich enough so that the growth of the plant may be forced. For men who are engaged in intensive farming, this cabbage is likely to become popular.

CAUSE OF ACIDITY IN SOILS

Lack of Lime May Be Considered Real Reason for Condition—Brought About by Leaching.

By A. WHITSON. Acid is produced in soils as the natural result of the decay of organic matter. Unless there is sufficient lime present in the soil to neutralize the acid as it forms it will accumulate and produce an acid soil. The lack of lime in the soil may then be considered the real cause of the acidity which develops. This lack of lime in some soils is brought about by leaching, by cropping, and by the absence of lime in the rock from which the soil was formed.

Liming Acid Soils for Growing Alfalfa and Clover is Very Profitable.

It takes many days spinning to get enough yarn for a yard of cloth, so the loom remains idle most of the time. Indeed, it is only now and then that there is time to use it, for "Himself" has many things to do, and when the animals are cared for and the farm duties come there is always the best to be cut in the dreary bogland and fetched home as soon as it is dry enough to be stacked. THE SPINNER OF CONNEMORA

Spinning Wheels Are Still Active in the West of Ireland—Only Used by Aged.

London.—The old home industries which have passed away entirely from our English villages still linger in the West of Ireland, where the rest, modern spirit of industrialism has not yet penetrated, says a writer in Country Life. Spinning wheels are still in use, but they are chiefly turned by the old, who periodically have to for it is only rarely that the spinner can get her children to card the wool; she generally has to card it herself. The old lady in the picture used the wool from her own sheep, and would one day spin from the light fleece and another day from the heavy fleece.

ROUGH BRITISH WAR SCHOOL

Sandhurst Breaches of Discipline Bring Sharp Reminders from Head of General Staff.

London.—Breaches of discipline at the British military school at Sandhurst, which is the West Point of the British army, have been so numerous, lately, that General Sir Charles Douglas, chief of the imperial general staff, who recently inspected the school, sharply reminded the students that they were not merely public school students, but officers of the British army. During the past year there have been two expulsions and a great number of suspensions than ever before.

Tires at Before-War Prices

Table titled 'Goodyear Prices' showing various tire sizes and their prices. It includes categories like '30 x 3 Plain Tread' and '30 x 3 1/2' with prices ranging from $11.75 to $41.95.

There exists now a new, compelling reason for buying Goodyear tires. It results from War conditions. These leading tires—built of extra-fine rubber, in the same way as always—are selling today at June prices.

You will find today a very wide difference between most tire prices and Goodyears. Due to Quick Action

Early in August—when war began—the world's rubber markets seemed closed to us. Rubber prices doubled almost overnight. Men could see no way to pay for rubber abroad, and no way to bring it in. We, like others—in that panic—were forced to higher prices. But we have since gone back to prices we charged before the war, and this is how we did it:

We had men in London and Singapore when the war broke out. The larger part of the world's rubber supply comes through there. We called them to buy up the pick of the rubber. They bought—before the advance—1,500,000 nearly all of this is now on the way to us. And it means practically all of the extra-grade rubber obtainable abroad.

Advantages of a Checking Account.

Do you know that 90 per cent of commercial transactions are made without the exchange of actual cash? This for the two great reasons—Safety and Efficiency. And these two reasons apply as well to the modest business as to the big Wall street operations. When you give your check you do not waste one moment counting money. Of greater importance is the fact that your check automatically gives you a receipt.

WILL FIGHT TILL PURPOSE IS WON, ASSERTS KING

Thunderous Cheers Greet English Monarch's Speech Proroguing the Parliament
 London, Sept. 18.—"We are fighting for a worthy purpose and we will not lay down our arms till this purpose is achieved." These ringing words were sounded by King George in the House of Commons today in his speech proroguing Parliament.
 The speech of the King was devoted solely to the war and to the part which England is playing in the titanic struggle against Germany and Austria. Every endeavor was exerted by the British Government to maintain the peace of Europe, declared King George, and in the words of the King, "Great Britain went to war for the protection of public law in Europe and because treaties had been set at naught."
 The royal speech was greeted with thunderous cheers from different political parties, especially when an appeal was made to the patriotism of the nation.
 "After every endeavor of my Government to preserve the peace of the world," declared King George, "I was compelled in the assertion of treaty obligations which had been deliberately set at naught and for the protection of public law in Europe, to go to war."
 "We are fighting for a worthy purpose and we will not lay down our arms till that purpose is achieved."
 "I rely in confidence upon my subjects' efforts, upon which we pray for the blessing of God."
 When the King's speech made reference to the navy and army this was the signal for a demonstration.
 "The vital interests of empire compelled us to go to war," declared the King toward the end of his address, which was short. "My navy and army have sustained their association with the faithful Allies with unceasing vigilance, courage and skill in this just and righteous cause."
 "From every part of the empire there has been an enthusiastic rally to the flag. I thank you for the liberality wherewith you have met this great emergency."

GEORGIA LIKELY TO BE POTASH PRODUCER

State Rich in Substance Forming Basis of Fertilizers Monopolized by Germany.
 (Atlanta Georgian)
 The likelihood of Georgia becoming a producing center for potash an essential in the manufacture of commercial fertilizers, is discussed by State Geologist S. W. McCallie, in his quarterly report to the advisory board of the Geological Survey, made public Wednesday.
 "The world's supply of potash for years has come almost entirely from Strassfurt, Germany," says the report. "This supply is cut off by the war and probably will remain so for some months. Three different sources of potash now seem possible in this country—kelp, alunite and leucite and feldspar. The last named seems to be the only hope for a domestic supply of potash in Georgia. This mineral is found in the Piedmont plateau as one of the main constituents of granite, and also in dikes where it is often found in almost a pure state."
 "Georgia has in these sources an almost inexhaustible supply of potash, but its utilization will depend upon the discovery of some method of extracting potash from feldspar. Several plants of this sort have been established and several processes give promise of success. Should any of them prove wholly successful, Georgia's farmers will never again witness a potash famine."
 "Our farmers, however, can overcome the lack of potash in their soils by the use of limestone, which is found in large quantities in this State, and which, when applied to soil, is not only effective in improving its physical condition, but also breaks up the insoluble potash-bearing minerals in the soil, thus rendering them soluble, so that their potash contents become available as a plant food."
