EMPIRE LIFE INSURANCE

Reidsville, Ga., April 24, th 1912.

Fred C. Wallis Agency,
Savannah, Ga.

Gentlemen: Please accept my thanks for the Empire Life Insurance Company's Check No. 18,473, for Three Thousand Dollars and Forty-five Dollars and Twelve Cents ($3,000.45) in full of my claim on Policy No. 25661 in the Empire Life Insurance Company.

The above numbered policy for Three Thousand Dollars ($3,000) was issued to Mr. William Sankey Mattox, deceased, on January 2nd, 1911. He had paid only two premiums, amounting to $245.12. According to the policy, the company agreed that in the event of Mr. Mattox's death before the policy matured they would refund all premiums paid. This is why they have paid $3,000.45 in settlement of the $3,000 policy.

I cheerfully recommend the Empire Life Insurance Company to any one who contemplates taking out any life insurance. Yours respectfully,
EUGENE M. MATTOX,
Temporary Administrator

We as heretofore are representing

THE GEORGIA CHEMICAL WORKS
Who Manufacture the FAMOUS
PATAPSICO

And other well known brands of fertilizer.

We will have with us also
D. B. Lester and A. L. Brannen
SORRIER & BRANNEN.

Every farmer knows the need of fertilizer; that each crop takes a certain amount of Nitrogen Phosphoric Acid and Potash out of your soil.

If these plant foods are not replaced, the soil becomes worn-out, and crops dwindle to almost nothing.

There must be enough of each element.

An abundance of one plant food and the lack of another never brings big yields. For one plant food cannot take the place of another.

To supply these three elements in forms that will feed the crops every day is the one important point.

"AA" QUALITY FERTILIZERS

To decide by analysis guarantees what brand you will use has not been simple.

The value of fertilizer depends upon the form in which the plant foods exist as well as the number of pounds of plants.

Two fertilizers with the same analysis may differ greatly in value.

For one may be made of materials so quickly available that they may reach the soil in a few days, while the other may be so slowly available that it will not reach the soil for a year.

So we sowed those men who know most about crop need, we employed various men, experts on different crops. They focused their attention upon mixing fertilizers that would supply the need of every crop on every kind of soil.

They realized that the benefits of Nitrogen (the most costly of plant foods) had heretofore been lost. Because it is very unstable—easily washed out of your soil.

Nitrogen that would become available at different times was one of our improvements. A source of Nitrogen that could not be washed out of your soil, was one of our improvements.

We improved where improvement was possible. We employed these elements in forms that would keep "AA" fertilizers from being acid—that would fertilize from being acid—that would not sour the land.

PREPARE TO COUNT UNCLE SAM'S COIN

Washington, D. C. March 23.—The greatest count of money and securities in the history of the world will begin at the Treasury Department on April 1st, when John Burke, former governor of North Dakota, takes the oath of office as treasurer of the United States, succeeding Carmi A. Thompson.

To safeguard the nation's wealth, Uncle Sam requires that the retiring treasurer's record of the transfer of funds be verified by a count of the notes, coin and securities in the treasury.

Secretary McAdoo will appoint a committee to take charge of the vaults and each vault and safe will be sealed on April 1 in preparation for the count. Only enough money to keep the wheels of the government revolving will be laid aside for daily use while the counting is in progress.

It generally takes from three to five months to make the count. A government mathematician has figured out that it would take one person 300 years to verify Mr. Thompson's records.

Ordinarily every note, bond and other securities are counted. Unless a shortage or error is discovered the gold and silver stored in bags containing $1,000 each, usually is weighed, a test bag being balanced against all others for verification.

Armed guards stand over the counters and workmen to protect them from interference.

Losses seldom have ever been found in these counts. When the treasurer was changed some years ago, $600 was stolen during the official count. A laborer engaged to lift the heavy bags of coin substituted leaden disks for silver dollars in several bags, necessitating a five months count of every dollar of the $115,000,000 in big silver vault. The laborer was convicted of the theft and the retiring treasurer relieved by congress of the responsibility for the loss.

When Carmi Thompson succeeded Lee McClung as treasurer he received over $1,400,000,000. He must account for every cent of that amount, plus the millions he has since received, minus expenditures.

While the treasurer of the United States handles no money personally, he is the only bonded official in his office. His $150,000 bond covers every subordinate and for many years treasurers have urged Congress to order the bonding of the employees who actually handle the $4,000,000,000 which pass through the treasurer's office annually.

Omaha, chief city of Nebraska, storm wrecked and fire swept, was so effectively cut off from the remainder of the world this forenoon that only meagre estimates of the death list and damage could be obtained. Brief dispatches forced through by devious routes, indicated that between 100 and 300 persons perished and hundreds of others were injured. Special trains and troops are rushing to the scene.

LEFT RUIN IN PATH.—Early last evening a series of equinoctial gales of varying intensity began sweeping through the Missouri Valley and middle west, leaving ruin in their path. At least six states sustained heavy damage. Terre Haute, Indiana, reports a death list in that vicinity that may reach fifty. Towns in Iowa, Illinois, Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri were effected.

By ROUNDABOUT ROUTES.—Wire communications with Omaha were broken shortly after six o'clock last evening and since that time only a few dispatches could be sent over roundabout routes. That the city and suburbs sustained great damage is certain. One of the dispatches received via the Lincoln described the path of the tornado as being "eight miles long and from four to six blocks wide". United States troops, from Fort Omaha were immediately called out it is said, and the stricken zone put under practical martial law.

HYSTERICAL ACCOUNTS.—The National Red Cross has volunteered its services for the injured and Gov. Morehead, of Nebraska, left Lincoln early today personally to aid in the relief work. Railroad bridges are down, and train schedule is demoralized. Hysterical passengers arriving at Lincoln from Omaha were unable to give any connected account of the disaster except that the residential section suffered most.

Lincoln, Neb.—Hundreds are dead many more are injured, some fatally, by a tornado which devastated Omaha and its environs early last night. It demoralized telegraph and telephone service and cut Omaha off from communication with the outside world.

French Market Coffee

Has Never Been Successfully Imitated It Cannot Be

COFFEE roasted the ordinary way is only partially roasted, according to French ideals. The French Market Coffee was the scientific way, producing a perfect roast. Slowly—carefully—the roasting goes on until exactly the right moment arrives.

The slow roast reduces about 10 per cent more weight than the ordinary roast.

All excess of oil vanishes. Yet the delicate flavor and aroma is there, intensified and enhanced.

Chilled, Ground and Hermetically Sealed

DIRECT from the roasters, the coffee is chilled in a cold-air-blast machine. This chilling closes the pores of the bean, thus preventing a single breath of the entrancing aroma to escape in the vapors.

Famous for Over a Hundred Years

EVEN when French Market Coffee could be had only in the old French Market at New Orleans, over a hundred years ago, it was celebrated all over the South.

Andrew Jackson, Henry Clay and other famous men of olden times visited the French Market to enjoy the rarely delicious beverage.

But now you all may serve it daily on your own table.

For the rare old French blend has been patented by the French Market Milla, a hermetically-sealed process places French Market Coffee within the reach of all.

Celebrated 76th Birthday.

On last Tuesday Feb. 26th, the relatives and friends assembled at the home of Mr. H. L. Conley and celebrated the seventy-sixth anniversary of Mrs. Conley. Known better as "Aunt Mollie". She was overjoyed with beautiful presents and the beautiful table which was filled to its utmost capacity.

Aunt Mollie has been an invalid of Rheumatism nine or ten years and almost helpless, and says that if every day could be as merry as that one she would almost forget her misery.

Those present were: L. L. Conley and family, Jim Stubbs and family, Mrs. Jennie Gilliff, Carter Smith and family, J. G. Conner and wife, Mrs. B. Swinson, and Miss Verdie Collins.

All retired to their homes leaving Aunt Mollie in high spirits.

45 Near Beer Dealers

Arrested In Savannah.

Savannah, March 25.—Wilkie Brown, a special officer representing the governor of Georgia, threw consternation into the ranks of the near-beer dealers of Savannah last night by swearing out warrants for the arrest of forty-five of them.

They are charged with conducting their business without paying the state license of $300. The warrants were sworn out before the judge of the city court.

The office of the sheriff of that court has been filled all day with defendants giving bond. Some of the near-beer dealers have gone so long without paying a tax they rather defied the authority of the state to collect one.

Governor Brown some months ago appointed Mr. Brown as his special officer and the delinquents have been warned several times that they must pay up. They have defied the officer repeatedly. Last week Mr. Brown went to Atlanta to see the governor and he came home prepared to take definite action.

"I am going to make these retailers pay the state what is justly due them," says Mr. Brown, "and I am also going to make the wholesalers pay their license of $1,000 each to the state. The sooner everybody finds I mean business the better off they will be."

That Debate at Snap.

According to an announcement, a large crowd gathered at the appointed hour, and the debate opened with Jack Murphy as chairman to keep order. There were three judges to decide as to which side won the coveted honor, two of whom were from Snap. During the debate the chairman called down one of the Snap speakers for departing from the subject and indulging in personalities, but he continued for awhile longer, sticking more closely to the subject. When the speaking was over the judges retired and after due deliberation they appeared and rendered a decision in favor of the affirmative. (Eureka) and the contest was considered closed; but one of the judges hastily consulted one of the outsiders, and he, the judge, stepped back and told the crowd that he had changed his mind and would now render his decision in favor of the negative. This he did without consulting the other two judges. This was real amusing to the crowd of spectators, but it failed to change their minds, for it was conceded by all that the Eureka boys won the victory. One man who was present, and knows something about debates, says that the Eureka boys made twice as many points as the Snap boys. One man was heard to say that Eureka fairly beat the toe nails of the Snap boys. Eureka is willing to try it over if Snap will tote fair.

Convicting the Innocent.

The recent release of a man from the Pennsylvania penitentiary, when his innocence was established, brings up the old proposition of the unreliability of eyewitnesses. It also raises the question, "What preparation can and should, the state make to the unjustly convicted?"

Here is a man deprived of his liberty and his life stunted for more than a generation, who is dismissed from prison, old, penniless and incapacitated to earn a decent living, all because the state erred in convicting him. In this particular instance Andrew Carnegie has endowed the poor man with a pension, but 'tis not very similar sufferer that will be likewise taken care of. Others are and have been in worse condition than they were in the penitentiary to an occurrence often will differ in their versions. Sometimes their testimony is in direct conflict, even when they had equal opportunities for observation. In illustrating the diversity of opinion as to the battle of Waterloo, Thomas E. Watson cites the incident in English history, where Sir Walter Raleigh and his castlekeeper's wife both viewed a fight that took place between the castlekeeper and another man, and all four afterwards differed materially as to what actually happened.

Human fallibility will always make contrariety of honest opinion a certainty, and in consequence innocent men will continue to suffer, though not to any alarming extent, for the misconduct of others. This being true, it is only proper that every state should provide, as it is already done in several foreign countries, for some compensation for those who unjustly spend time behind prison bars.

What Three Bushels More to the Acre Means

EIGHT years ago the farmers in a central state averaged crops that ran three bushels less to the acre than they now get. Suppose each acre of farm land in the country were so tended that it produced an increase equal to that of this state. How much more money would you have with which to buy the luxuries of life that you earn and deserve? Your share in this prosperity depends entirely upon yourself. The first step is to fertilize your land properly with manure spread by an

I H C Manure Spreader

The spreader that does its work as it should must have many excellent mechanical features. The apron should move without jerking; the beater should meet the load at exactly the right point to pulverize the manure without too greatly increasing the draft of the machine; the speed changes of the apron should be positive. All these features are provided for in the construction of I H C spreaders.

I H C spreaders are made in low styles which are not too low for use in deep mud or snow, narrow and wide, with both reverse and endless aprons, for use under all conditions. The rear axle is located well under the box, instead of at the rear. Placed in that position (under the box) it carries over 70 per cent of the load and insures ample tractive power.

MRS. MCGILL BROKE DOWN

Gives the Real Facts in Regard to Her Case and Tells How She Suffered.

Jonesboro, Ark.—I suffered a complete break down in health, some time ago," writes Mrs. A. McGill, from this place. "I was very weak and could not do any work. I tried different remedies, but they did me no good. One day, I got a bottle of Cardui. It did me so much good, I was surprised. Before I took Cardui, I had headache and backache, and sometimes I would cry for hours. Now I am over all that, and can do all kinds of housework. I think it is the greatest medicine on earth."

In the past few years, thousands of ladies have written like Mrs. McGill, to tell of the benefit received from Cardui.

Such testimony from earnest women, surely indicates the great value of this purely vegetable remedy for diseases of the female system. Yes? Women who are suffering? Yes? Cardui is the medicine you need.

We urge you to try it.

Let us hear from you. Write to: Ladies' Auxiliary Dept., Chas. N. B. Wolfe & Co., Manufacturers, 1101 Broadway, New York City. Send no money. Free literature. Write in plain wrapper, on request, we will send you a bottle of Cardui.

"PROVERB" THAT MADE A HIT

A New England schoolmaster obtained a situation out in Arkansas, and became so successful that she determined to give an exhibition of her pupils' progress, and invited all their parents to be present on Friday evening. The entertainment moved satisfactorily to all concerned.

"Now," said the teacher, toward the close, "I want every boy to repeat to me the proverb, 'The teacher can give you an example of Johnnie, can you give an example of Johnnie?'"

"That's splendid. Why you boys remind me so much of a school I once taught in Boston," responded the fair teacher.

"The gem of wisdom," said Willie. "And so on down the class she went until she got to Peck Smith. He was very bright, and she intended to skip him, but he seemed anxious to say something, and she asked him if he knew any old proverb. He did."

"A stumped yellow dog is the best for coons!" announced Peck, and the joy of his relatives reached such a pitch that his father passed by the tuition advance before he left the schoolhouse—Philadelphia Ledger.

AFTER LINCOLN'S OWN HEART

Man Who Could Beat War President at Telling Stories Got Appointment He Was Seeking.

At least one man got ahead of Lincoln in a story-telling contest. That was Anthony J. Blocker, who went to Washington to apply for a position. He was asked to read his vouchers. Soon the speaker stopped him, saying he was like the man who killed the dog. He had kept on with the killing after the animal was good and dead.

The applicant agreed that it was possible at times to do too much, and told the story of the converted Indian who found it hard to learn to pray for his enemies. The little was quoted to him: "It thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink. For in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire in his head."

The convert thereupon began to pray most earnestly and at great length. He asked that his should be a prayer for his enemies. The little was quoted to him: "It thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink. For in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire in his head."

Machine Catches Burglar.

A French inventor has recently devised a mechanical burglar alarm which is a very close mechanical substitute for a human watchman. The device is arranged to operate before the slightest injury has been inflicted upon a safe by a burglar. In fact, it has no mechanical contact with its surroundings. It is a light of an eye which will detect the faint light from a dark lantern or even a match, hence makes a burglar alarm as well as a burglar alarm.

The "mechanical eye" is a selenium cell, such as used in picture telegraph apparatus, for the reason that the selenium is very sensitive to light of all shades of light that falls on it. The mechanical eye consists of a cylindrical box four inches in diameter and about an inch thick, containing a mass of selenium wound up in a coil. There is one of these boxes for each room that is to be protected, but they all have their connections to a common receiver.

Quickly Answered.

Pat and Mike, who were neighbors in the "Olive County" happened to retire from public gaze about the same time. Pat had stolen a watch from a blind man, while Mike had taken a friend's cow for his own and was drafted to the same prison, where they had a chance for a moment's forbidden conversation.

FOX LIVES UP TO ITS NAME

Many Are the Ruses Employed by the Fox in Making Successful Escapes From the Hounds.

The reputation of a north of England fox was suffering, and the hounds were baffled over and over again by a certain fox, which they called "the fox" in a large room. The fox was a grand runner to the side of the wood, and then disappeared leaving no clue as to where he had hidden.

At last the head houndsman hid himself before the fox at this particular place. As usual, Reynard worked off his half-way up, and creeping in, he saw the fox. The hounds, of course, side was safe. The hounds, of course, side was safe. The hounds, of course, side was safe.

In this case, the two following instances were watched, and the fox tried his best once too often. Number one was always a jump on the top of a hill, and it was proved that he did not descend the other side. On the hilltop there was a hollow, and he would run.

The other one used to trick the hounds at the top of a steep precipice, with a face of rock over which he would go—but Reynard did. He hounded went up the precipice, and the rock with his face to it, as a man would, but his hind legs were down narrow ledge. He let himself down carefully, walked along the ledge and entered a crevice at the end. From this place he apparently had no step to escape, for the rock was too steep to negotiate in either direction.

It was found, however, that he had a back door on the side of the hill, and he had entered the hole on the hillside he would have been caught, but his front door was so because no one could see it from the top of the precipice—Exchange.

China Is Now Awake.

A water plant that has been feared as a pest is to be turned into a valuable commercial product of India. China, if anything comes of the project to the Saigon Chamber of Commerce by M. Pottier, the French investigator. The plant, Echinococcus, is a species known as Luc Bica, an invader of Cambodia ten years ago, and has been spreading rapidly as it fills ponds and lakes in a short time. A single stalk is reported to have spread over a few acres of 700 square yards in a few months. It has caused no little alarm as a menace to navigation, and a considerable sum seems to have been already expended in attempts to destroy it. Its strong fiber, however, has been found by M. Perrot to be useful for textile purposes. From 100 pounds of green stalks he obtained nine pounds of fiber, and a fifth-inch yarn or cord from this supported a weight of 100 pounds. The cord can be woven into matting, and is suitable as a substitute for woven cane in furniture, but is expected to be especially valuable for rice sacks. Such sacks, if made of this material, will be lighter to use, can be made lighter than jute by treating with chrome alum.

Wilhelm's Idea of Golf.

The German emperor's knowledge of golf is by no means extensive. His generosity, however, made him lend a ready ear to the request of Sir Frank Langhorne, a golf course, for the purpose of a grant of land to him to build a golf course.

"So you want ground for your golf club, sir Frank?" he said. "I have got place grass mowed round Bergholm, but you have in England, but I'll give you a bit of the Grunewald."

Now, the Grunewald is a pine forest near the capital, and a favorite Sunday resort of the people of Berlin. The ambassador thought it out for a moment, and then answered, somewhat doubtfully.

"Ah, yes, I am afraid there would be too many trees."

"Trees!" exclaimed his majesty. "All the better to keep the sun off when you are playing in the summer."

Hired to Stick.

The jury after long deliberation, seemed unable to agree in a perfect case. The judge, thoroughly exasperated at the delay, said: "I discharge this jury."

"You can't discharge me," he said with a tone of conviction.

"And why not?" inquired the judge in surprise.

KITCHEN NEAT AND COMPACT

The handiest kitchen this writer ever worked in was originally a rather roomy pantry, yet so carefully was everything arranged that there was no crowding, and never an unnecessary step as in a large room. The entry step as in a large room. The entry step as in a large room.

A small shelf of convenient height held the food chopper always ready for use, while a flour bin with two compartments and stiffened with a folding chair stood at the end of the cupboard for baking necessities. A hinged seat on the wall at the end of the table made it convenient to sit while waiting for the food to be ready. A small iron sink contained the faucet, and provided an adding place for the high stool used for every kitchen should be supplied with every kitchen should be supplied.

IS LOSING HIS INSULARITY

"Ten years ago the ordinary Englishman would walk the whole length of the platform in order to get a compartment to himself. If you happened to be in the same compartment, he would shrink into a corner as if he feared you were trying to get his watch. Cheap excursion traffic, however, has broken down the Englishman's desire for lonely journeys. Coming quite a considerable traveling companion—as interesting and as interested as he is at a restaurant dinner table. He has got so that he is now almost human."

The foregoing extract appeared in a London newspaper report of "an informal address delivered by a leading member of the Anglo-American community at one of London's most popular clubs," according to a Detroit correspondent. The French in the "humanizing" of the Englishman was attributed largely to the restaurant habit, the increasing tendency to live in flats, the coming of the department store, golf and continental tours.

Great Men and Music.

Bagpipes have a strange attraction for all sorts and conditions of people. That enthusiastic highlander, Dr. Alexander Duncan Fraser, in his book, "Some Reminiscences and the Bagpipes," tells how Henry Irving was by pipe, and how he played in a Glasgow hotel when a highland gathering was in progress in a room just below. He sent a message begging that the pipe would play to him, which he did, marching up and down the passage outside the room. Then the great actor told the pipe player in a piece he had played in Glasgow in a piece he had played in Glasgow in a piece he had played in Glasgow.

Playing It Safe.

An overworked business man bolted his head into a luncheon room the other day and pounded on the counter. "Ham-nog sandwich, quick!" he ordered.

There was a wait of five minutes and the man at the counter laid a roast beef sandwich in front of him. "I didn't order this!" yelled the customer. "Bring me a ham-nog sandwich!"

Another wait, and the counter man presented the exasperated customer with a cup of cocoa. The overworked business man pulled his chair up to the door and headed for the door. "Where are you going?" demanded the counter man.

"To a restaurant where the cook doesn't gamble with the food!" snapped the overworked citizen, as he disappeared.

Hurt to the Bishop.

A bishop once rose to address the house of lords and began by saying he intended to divide the speech into twelve heads. Lord Durham thereupon got up and begged leave to interpose for a few minutes to tell the house an anecdote. He was returning home, he said, a few nights before, and passed St. Paul's Cathedral just before midnight. As he did so there was a drunken man trying to see the time. Just then the clock began to strike the hour, and the drunken man looked hard at the clock and said: "Hang you, why couldn't you have said that all at once?" After this narration the bishop condensed his remarks, and ended his talk.

Explained.

"What is this civil service business that they are always talking about?" asked the Boob. "What good does it do?"

"It's like this," replied the Cheerful Boob. "If you have a job, and you are not under civil service, they can fire you any time they want to. But if they have a job under civil service, they can't fire you unless they want to."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Real Estate Humbug Leaves Many To Mourn His Departure

The sudden termination of a great real estate subdivision land sale has left many sad faces and drooping hearts in Statesboro over the departure of the management.

A man evidently on the job registered at The Jackel about a week ago under the name of Ed Foster. A suite of rooms were engaged, an option was secured on a nine acre tract of flat land in the eastern part of the city and a big land sale announced through flaming advertisements.

A lot of painted stakes were driven, giving the place the appearance of the potters field section in a soldier's cemetery. A cordial invitation was extended to the public to come Sunday and visit this one of "nature's most beautiful and lovely garden spots, inhale the fragrance of the blooming roses and the ripening strawberries."

In the midst of the luxurious anticipations of the feast of roses and strawberries, the expectations of a grand rush for lots on Monday a vacant chair was noticeable, the smiling, reassuring countenance that had inspired encouragement and renewed hope in the city was to be seen no more. Investigation developed the fact that while Mr. Foster was called hurriedly away, on highly important business no doubt, he was mindful of his obligations at the Hotel, leaving an empty seat of the value of about thirty five cents in settlement of a week's board. Other sums both large and small are awaiting his return for settlement and adjudication. The list includes $20 for money obtained from a cripple man as part pay on lots.

Mr. M. L. Tinley is preparing to move to Waynesboro, where he will open a five and ten cents store.

PEOPLE DEMAND GREATER FAIR.

Farmers and Business Men See The Benefits To Be Derived And Greater Show Than Ever Will Be Held.

There seems to be a universal demand on the part of our farmers and business men for a fair this fall built and operated on strictly business principles and one that will show the real greatness of the county. While the fair last fall gave satisfaction as far as it reached and was in a sense an eye opener of the possibilities of this county, yet it was gathered together hurriedly without preparation but it was on exhibition, of what can be done this fall when ample preparations will be made and a fair thoroughly representative and doing full justice to this great section will be put on.

While it is true that we are now passing through the hardest struggle this section has ever known yet it is no reason why we should stack arms and fold our hands and give up. A splendid crop year before us in our opinion and this fall will witness a renewal of an old time business activity and up to date fair pulled off in the fall will do more to put the real spirit back in the folks than anything else farmers all over Bulloch County are planning for the fair seeds of all kinds have been distributed, and the agricultural display this fall with good seasons will do credit to a state fair.

Required for Obsequiousness, Man in the Opposite Direction—Lucky for Him Haughty Emperor Did Not Overhear.

The royal highness had just taken into his service a new manservant, but the obsequiousness of the man jarred on his master. At last the crown prince became so irritated that the servant received an intimation to the effect that his highness would prefer to be treated with more simplicity.

The day after having given this warning the crown prince was seated at his table writing, when he suddenly felt himself tapped on the shoulder. Thinking it was his wife, he turned quickly, smiling, only to behold the hitherto obsequious servant standing beside him and regarding him with a most friendly smile. Before the astonished heir to the throne could find suitable words in which to rebuke the servant's presumption, the latter jerked his thumb in the direction of the door, and announced:

"Papichou has come to see you." Now, the crown prince was expecting a call from his father, the emperor, and as "Papichou" literally means "Little Papa," his astonishment increased.

"Papichou?" he gasped, as soon as he could articulate. Then thinking that the servant must have been drinking to speak of the emperor in such a way, he muttered to himself, while his eyes were fixed on the man in amazed inquiry: "Is he drunk?"

The servant apparently thought the whispered remark was a confidential request for information as to the prospective visitor's condition, for after scrutinizing him in some perplexity, he leaned closer to the crown prince and whispered softly: "Drunk? Well, I think not; I didn't notice anything."

Were in the Minority. Three or four years ago they had in a small English town some revival meetings. A man walking around the road walked into one of these meetings without knowing in the least what it was. He saw a man preaching on the platform, sat down; not liking the people on either side of him, he went to sleep. While he was asleep the preacher wound up his sermon, saying:

"Those who are going to leave their wicked ways and come with me in the paths of righteousness, put up their hands." "And those who are going to keep to their wicked ways and refuse to be sanctified, put up their hands."

The noise woke up the sleeper, and seeing a man with his hands up on the platform, so that he shouldn't be lonely he put up his hand, too, and said:

Ostrich a Short-Lived Bird. In proportion to their size, ostriches are not long-lived birds, and even under the most favorable conditions it is seldom that individuals reach the age of from thirty to forty years, an age frequently exceeded by crows, cranes, parrots, and birds of prey. The source of weakness in their constitutions appears to be the digestive system. The proverbial phrase "digestion of an ostrich" is a popular misinterpretation of the observation that these birds, like many others, pick up stones, coins, keys and other miscellaneous hard objects, which are retained in the gizzard and no doubt assist in the trituration of food.

Deceased by Mild Winter. The weather in these parts will have to do something much further out of the common than anything it has yet shown the people of northern Ohio to beat certain early records. When Cleveland was about five years old three winters in succession were so strangely mild, from start to finish, that the settlers from New England were led to cherish unfounded hopes of the climate of the region to which they had migrated—Cleveland Leader.

Best She Could Do. "Why don't you want to let me hold your hand?" "What good would it do you to hold my hand?" "It would make me glad and give me courage, perhaps, to—to say something that I—that I—"

ONE TRAMPLED INTO PUDDLES

Economical, Though Somewhat Primitive Methods Used at Many Mills Throughout Mexico.

It was at Pachuca, Mexico, that the patio system of separating silver had its origin. This system is still followed extensively at the silver mines throughout Mexico. The ore is crushed and worked down to a state of puddle. It is then spread out to a depth of two or three feet over the paved floor of the courtyard, or patio. To this mass sulphate of copper is added in powder, about fifteen pounds of sulphate to three thousand pounds of puddle. This is trodden into the puddle by horses. Several gangs of old, worn-out horses or mules, about twelve in a gang, are seen in various parts of the patio, being driven round in circles to tread in the sulphate.

On the next day six per cent. of common salt is added and in two more days one hundred per cent. of pure quicksilver, or as much as the assay of the ore shows is required. This mass is then trodden up by horses for fifteen days. It is then wheeled to a large tank through which passes a rapid stream of water. This washes away the clay, leaving the silver and quicksilver. This residuum is poured into cone-shaped canvas bags through which most of the quicksilver runs out, and what remains with the silver is passed off with the vapor by means of heated retorts. None of the quicksilver is lost, and even the vapor is brought by cold water to its original state and used again and again. The quicksilver soon rots the hoofs of the horses and the mules, but the Mexicans themselves do not seem to be much the worse for it even though they wade around in the puddle for days at a time.—Harper's Weekly.

Can't Beat the Smokers. Local tailors are receiving orders from their customers that at least one asbestos pocket be placed in every suit and every overcoat they make, as a result of the new "no smoking" rule of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company.

A widely known Walnut street tailor placed a large order for asbestos today, and when asked if he had been employed to make an asbestos suit he explained:

"Why, some of my customers are bringing back their overcoats to have the asbestos pocket fixed. They want the pocket to survive in clear bills. 'There is no danger to the clothes, as there is a little flap on the asbestos pocket that makes it partially airtight, and the clear, without air, goes out almost as soon as it is placed in the pocket. It smokes very little, and there is no danger that the passenger will attempt to put off the passenger with the asbestos pocket.'"

The tailor said he got the idea of asbestos pocket from a wealthy business man who pays 50 cents apiece for his cigars, and objects to throwing away 45 cents' worth of a fire drill the men take advantage of the occasion and play water on the windows of buildings, giving them a good cleaning.

The amount of fire fighting apparatus furnished the posts by the government for their protection is regulated, of course, entirely by the size and needs of each post.

Confirmed for Rheumatism. Rev. Joshua Kimber, in his "Reminiscences," tells the following anecdote of the late Bishop Horatio Potter. He had been journeying up the east bank of the Hudson river, stopping for confirmation each day at adjoining parishes. When he reached Poughkeepsie he saw a woman at the rail waiting for confirmation whose face he was sure he recognized and knew what familiar with. He was also certain that he had been confirmed within the week at another place. The woman whispered to him to remain after service, and said:

"My dear madam, what do you mean by coming for confirmation? I am sure I confirmed you on Monday at such a place. Did I not?"

She said: "You certainly did! I have been following you up the river and have been confirmed every day this week."

He, astonished, said: "Why do you do that?"

Whereupon she replied: "Because I heard it was good for rheumatism."

Letters of Two Kings Found. It is said that a most curious discovery has been made at Apley house, Hyde Park corner, the town house of the Dukes of Wellington.

In the cellar there has been found all the private and state correspondence of George III and George IV. These documents, covering a vital period of over 60 years, must include Napoleonic references, great interest.

The letters, etc., have been removed to Windsor, and are now being sorted by the king's librarian. According to one of these documents the Iron Duke's name was never Wellesley. The family name was Colley, and his grandfather was adopted by an Irishman named Wellesley.

Sure of a Job. It was a new kind of recommendation for a servant, but very effective. The old employer said nothing about her accomplishments as cook, waitress, laundress or chambermaid. What she was was:

"She is as strong as a man and twice as brave. Three times while in our employ she captured burglars singlehanded, and held them until the police arrived, and saved hundreds of dollars' worth of silver and jewelry."

All the manager of the employment agency had to do when that girl needed a situation was to read that letter out loud and there ensued a wild scramble among his customers for the strongest demand.

EVER READY FOR FIRES

ELABORATE PRECAUTIONS TAKEN AT GOVERNMENT POSTS.

Uncle Sam Furnishes an Excellent Example to the Country in This Respect—Few Losses by Conflagrations in the Army.

Perhaps the low percentage of fires in the army is directly due to the fact that guard duty is never suspended. In daylight and dark, during peace or in time of war, armed sentries walk their posts scattered everywhere over the garrisons. Falling asleep while on guard is a serious offence. Therefore the guards are always alert. Never is a sentry mounted on a post without a caution to look out for fires.

On the next day six per cent. of common salt is added and in two more days one hundred per cent. of pure quicksilver, or as much as the assay of the ore shows is required. This mass is then trodden up by horses for fifteen days. It is then wheeled to a large tank through which passes a rapid stream of water. Once a week, sometimes oftener, in every military garrison, large or small, throughout the country, and there are several hundred at home and in our possessions, a fire drill is held. Not a soul save the commanding officer is advised of what hour of the day or night or on what day of the week a fire call will be blown. As fires do not give warning of their coming, writes Monroe Woolley in Insurance Engineering, it is obviously advantageous that a fire drill should be as uncertain.

When the fire call goes, either for drill or for a fight for life and property, the soldiers rush out of their quarters, leave their posts in the company kitchens, and on the drill grounds, picking up fire buckets and fire axes as they go in the race for the fire station. Some may be hatless, some coatless, and others shirtless, but it is an honor to be among the first to take hold of the fire equipment.

All the officers dash for the house, too, and the highest ranking officer present assumes the duties of fire chief. A run is made with chemical engines and hand drawn hose carts and hook and ladder trucks for a building designated as the scene of the fire. When the equipment is out, a fire drill the men take advantage of the occasion and play water on the windows of buildings, giving them a good cleaning.

The amount of fire fighting apparatus furnished the posts by the government for their protection is regulated, of course, entirely by the size and needs of each post.
