NO CHANCE FOR "CLIMBERS"

Local Position is Almost Irrevocably Fixed in Europe, and Adhered To.

In Europe everybody has a definite social position fixed by birth and education. Individuals pass from one social level to another with more facility than is thought. Yet the vast mass of Britons, Frenchmen, Germans and so forth, pass their lives on the social level where they were born.

RIVAL OF THE GREAT BARD

Shakespeare's Avon's Claims to Distinction Not Alone Due to Shakespeare.

LIVES UP TO REPUTATION

Mary knew how to work, wasn't afraid to work, but was independent. Mary's written references were excellent and the employment agent plied up praises.

Physicians Often Blamable.

"It is a most unfortunate thing," says the North American Journal of Homoeopathy, "that the moral degeneration to which every drug habitue almost inevitably comes is in the first place, not to be traced to the drug."

Shrewd Patient.

A doctor who had been attending an old farmer for a fortnight or so pronounced the patient so much improved that it would be unnecessary for him to call again professionally.

Youthful Defections.

In order to give his scholars a firm grip of original thought, a schoolmaster believes in the value of what he calls an "exercise in writing."

SOME FACTS ABOUT SEAWEED

Great Variety of Use Found for it in Various Parts of the World.

Some interesting facts about seaweeds which are used as food or for producing vegetable gelatines or glues are brought out by Messrs. Parrot and Gatin in the French Oceanographic Institute. Seaweeds are not much used in Europe except for alkalies or iodine preparation. In the north coast regions of France the seaweed is used by the peasants as a manure upon the fields. Medical uses can be mentioned, and the variety called Iceland moss is collected in Brittany to a considerable extent, this reaching twenty tons of dry seaweed in 1904. One variety of seaweed is a very good vermicifuge, and is extensively used for this purpose in Corsica. On account of the iodine which it contains some seaweeds are remedies against goitre and scrofula. As to food uses, this seems to be limited to the British region, and only the poorer population consumes it. Although limited in Europe, the use of seaweeds as food is widespread in the extreme Orient. In Japan edible seaweed is prepared in a number of ways, and it is much cultivated. Iodine is not manufactured in that country at present. One use for preparing agar-agar, gelose and vegetable glue. Sealing that the gelatin from this seaweed are seaweed nutritious, the authors explain that seaweeds are used by the manner of living, and as the populations consume great quantities of fish and rice it is thought that the gelatinous substances aid in digestion and in the intestinal functions. It is valuable for the manufacture and export—Scientific American.

SHE HAD A GOOD REASON

Maiden Lady Explains Why She Intends to Visit a Chiropodist.

"She was a dear, old-fashioned, modest, simple maiden lady. So that, when she announced the fact that she thought of paying a chiropodist a visit, her great friend was duly astonished.

"I didn't know you suffered from corns," remarked the latter, when the news was first broken to her. "I don't," remarked the old lady, "I'm all right, my dear; neither am I afflicted with bunions, chilblains, nor any other pains in the feet."

Her friend gazed at her with growing consternation. "Then, my dear," she remonstrated gently, "what on earth do you want to visit a chiropodist for?"

The little lady's cheeks blushed a delicate pink as she leaned forward, laid one mittened hand on her interested friend's arm, and whispered: "It's this way, my dear. I do so want to be able to boast that at least once in my life I had a man at my feet!"

To Clean a Piano Case. Use a bottle of olive oil, a bottle of alcohol, some new or perfectly clean Canton flannel, a perfectly clean chamois leather and a basin of water.

1. Wet a small piece of the flannel and drop on it a few drops of oil.
2. Rub with the wet flannel, a small section of the case at a time, and immediately rub it thoroughly with a dry piece of the flannel, before proceeding to a fresh section.
3. Polish finally with the chamois or a fresh piece of the flannel. Rub with the grain of the wood, and breathe on it occasionally to help remove any oiliness that may remain. A very little floor wax mixed with the grain of the wood will also help to remove oiliness, but its use should not be necessary.
4. Wipe the piano keys with a corner of the flannel wet with alcohol. Be careful, however, to avoid touching the wood with the alcohol, as it will ruin the finish.

Nature Fake? Cats are not usually fond of wet feet, but there is a big yellow one in the town of Windthrop who is more fond of frog's legs than he is afraid of the water. At that time in the season when the frogs begin to announce that spring is here, Buster may be seen wending his way to the frog pond back of the House in search of his favorite dainties. A convenient board acting as a raft, he has been seen some distance from the shore watching for the unsuspecting frog. In case no raft is at hand he will dive in bodily rather than lose his dinner. He often brings his victim to the house, coming in dripping wet from his plunge. He has never been taught to do this, but took it up of his own free will. Perhaps Buster is the incarnation of some dead and gone doctor. Who knows?—Lawson Journal.

Waiting for an Answer. We asked some months ago whether paper collars are still worn. No one vouchsafed to answer. It is our impression that the celluloid, drove out the paper. We well remember the paper collar and the paper dicky. Cool Burgess used to sing of Hildebrand Montrose.

He parts his hair with extreme care and chalks his paper collar, and maybe an accomplished fact, something to be forgotten; while the celluloid, like the enamelled steel collar of the Civil War period, can be cleaned. The steel collar was at regular intervals re-treated by use of a tooth brush—Savannah Daily.

His Elaborate Dinner. It was in the grillroom of a local cafe, and two visitors took seats at a table in the corner. "I am as hungry as a bear, and I am going to order an elaborate dinner," one of them was heard to remark. "Everybody has to eat," replied the other, "but I don't see why you should order a dinner. I have just what I need for my dinner."

PUBLIC INTEREST IN SPORTS

It is the Spectacular in Athletics Which Makes People Popular With the People.

If interest in athletics were confined to athletes, the value of the spectacle would be based about 99 per cent. The only way to rouse public interest in athletic sports is by their spectacular character.

The value of football lies in the ten thousand prairie organizations which train a hundred thousand boys in nerve and team work each year. But these prairie teams would not exist if the great college teams did not give thrilling spectacles each fall. These great matches keep up that keen public interest without which football would be forgotten.

The same is true of baseball. Every lad swarming balls in a vacant lot models his play on that of some big league hero and dreams of himself in that hero's place on the diamond.

A sport which is only a spectacle would not be worth much. But a sport which has no exhibition value never gets beyond a small circle. If America ever finds a winter game to take the place which baseball holds in summer and football in autumn, it will be a game which rivals these great sports in thrilling spectacular appeal.

GETS WOMEN'S LAW CASES

Moderately Keeps Some From Going to Men, Says New Zealand Practitioner.

A woman who practices as a lawyer in New Zealand has been induced, in connection with the bar's disapproval of the admission of women to the Inns of Courts, to narrate her experiences of forensic life.

"My clients," she says, "are principally women, but my services are sought by some men. Matrimonial and separation cases have, in the main, claimed my attention. Mrs. De Costa is convinced that without her services many a case would never have been dealt with.

"The woman, in many instances, prefers to suffer in silence rather than unfold her story to a man solicitor, however sympathetic he may be," she says. "This not support the contention that, if women were allowed to practice at the bar in England they would cause in which their appearance would judge their men opponents, as well as judges and juries, under a feeling of resentment which would interfere with the proper administration of the law."

Where Fashion is Individual. The fashion in Kiangsu province, China, is whatever one wants. Every man wears what is right in his own eyes. A panama goes jauntily down the street followed by a fur covered velvet hat. A few hats of scarlet and brim cap. Fell hats of scarlet and grays and browns that really do the amateur haters credit. Bakimo top capes, a few derby hats and the smart military uniforms give the streets a piquancy that was missed formerly in the monotonous China blue crowd.

Of all the notices posted on the city got the one that attracts the most attention is the fashion plate that has been exhibited for weeks. It displays two or three of the typical "easter" suits. There are the "swallow tailed" and the low front frock for evening functions. There one finds the plaited skirts recommended for the women. The silk or "stovepipe" hat has its corner with the other felts.

"Tramps" Advice on Care of Feet. "A tramp" writes: "Bathe your feet as often as you can. Before retiring give them a good soak in hot water, with salt in it. For toughened feet, use a boot shoe with a thick sole, a low heel, and wear two pairs of stockings. Each day, before starting—and during the day if opportunity allows—allow very freely to any parts that chafe. Little pads of cotton carrying vaseline, tucked between troublesome toes or plastered on the surface of the foot anywhere that there is trouble, simply work wonders. Starting with soft muscles and tender feet, the miles walked hundreds of rough feet—simply because they were given good care."

Surgery and Crime. Surgical treatment to turn a confirmed criminal into a useful citizen received a bad setback in a case where a great apparent change after such an operation led to the pardon of the penitentiary man. His release was followed by a series of burglaries which necessitated his return to durandville. Perhaps one of the reforms to come will be the better protection of society from theory and experiment. So far, the experiments made to prove that morality is merely a matter of physiology have not been brilliantly successful.—Baltimore American.

From the Depths. A widely known New York producer received a letter from a young woman in a small town in Pennsylvania last week in which she told of a play she had written.

"It is a play of the underworld," she wrote. "I notice by the papers that underworld dramas are in high favor now. Wouldn't you like to see it?"

The producer replied that he'd be glad to look the play over. When he received it he opened the package and settled back in his easy chair to have a look at the underworld drama.

He found it a story of a murder in a coal mine.

RIGHT TO PLACE IN HISTORY

Young German Discovers Error in Constitution That Had Hitherto Evident All.

An error, so patent as to be termed glaring, has existed in the very first sentence of the Constitution of the United States since its adoption, undetected, as far as can be ascertained, by lawyers or rhetoricians. Strange to say, the error was only exposed by a foreigner applying for citizenship.

The value of football lies in the ten thousand prairie organizations which train a hundred thousand boys in nerve and team work each year. But these prairie teams would not exist if the great college teams did not give thrilling spectacles each fall. DECIDE TO GO TO DALLAS

APRIL 28-MAY 1

Dallas will do honor to the cotton growers of the entire South, April 28 to May 1. This is to be a record-breaking convention that will emphasize the fact that the development of the cotton growing movement or an economic principle that must be reckoned with. Aside from contact with prominent people connected in the cotton growing industry of the Southland, the trip will be worth the time and money of any man. Decide to see Dallas, the bustling, thriving city of the Southwest, with its mammoth commercial and manufacturing concerns, its million dollar hotels, magnificent skyscrapers, miles of macadamized streets, more than a hundred thousand people waiting to give you a welcome, April 28 to May 1.

Fifteen-cent cotton and freedom! The cotton grower that this is a principle that must be reckoned with in the future, it realizes that the moment inaugurated by the Southern States Cotton Corporation having for its object a stable price for cotton, means a dependable market system for the future. The South will show her patriotism in a mammoth rally, Dallas, April 28 to May 1.

Ask your railroad agent today about the low rates to Dallas, account the big Cotton Growers' rally to be held April 28 to May 1.

The Cotton Convention, at Dallas, April 28 to May 1, will not only launch the campaign for 15 cent cotton with renewed vigor for the coming season, but will place before the world a plan worked out to maintain a dependable basis for our product that will largely relieve it of the element of guesswork in marketing. This convention will be held at Fair Park coliseum four days, commencing April 28, and promising a record-breaking attendance. Low rates on railroads.

All Texas will do honor to the Cotton Growers of the South at the Cotton Growers' rally, Dallas, April 28 to May 1. This convention will doubtless establish a new standard in cotton growing industry, and should be attended by every man who is engaged in the best interests of the South.

What

a great improvement would be made in the condition of horses and other animals if just the proper remedy were used when they became ill or injured. If your horse could talk he would tell you not to use an external remedy containing alcohol because it stings and burns his flesh, terribly. Some liniments have alcohol and other fiery ingredients which only inflame the skin and tissue and does not strike down where the pain lies. Beware of such liniments. The great humane, quick-action remedy is Mexican Mustang Liniment. Made of oils, without a drop of alcohol or other torturing element, it soaks straight to the bone and muscle. It soothes the wounded parts and is comforting while the healing work is progressing. Mexican Mustang Liniment is what you want because it your work lighter, saves your livestock from suffering and keeps them in trim for work. For all forms of Lameness, Strains, Bruises, Cuts, Burns, Galls and harness sores in animals, it is safe and prompt and does not promise what it cannot perform. Mustang Liniment has been doing its wonderful healing work for 65 years. The amount of money it has saved livestock owners is incalculable. One man writes that he was about to kill his valuable horse because badly injured but Mustang Liniment made him well again. A Veterinary tells us he has used Mustang Liniment fifteen years and found it the best liniment for cuts, strains, etc. And many others are enthusiastic friends of this tried and true remedy. RIVAL OF THE GREAT BARD

Stratford-on-Avon's Claims to Distinction Not Alone Due to Shakespeare.

Famous men whose names lend distinction to the places of their birth must look to their laurels. At any moment these may be snatched from them by contemporary heroes.

The writer had just made a visit to Stratford-on-Avon. While visiting at an inn there he fell into conversation with a farm-hand about Shakespeare.

"E wasn't born in Henley street," said the native.

"Where then?" said the visitor.

"By the river."

"Who told you that?"

"Why, John Cooper."

After a pause, the man remarked, in a tone of grave conviction, "Ah, sur, there's another wonderful fellow!"

"Who?"

"Why, John Cooper, I tell 'ee." The visitor inquired what great deeds John Cooper had done.

"Done?" said the farmer, sitting back and slapping his knee. "Done?" he repeated, in a voice of thunder.

"Why, sur, I'll tell 'ee." He leaned forward impressively, and looked straight into the stranger's eyes.

"I'll tell 'ee; 'e's lived 'ere in this town for ninety year as man and boy, and he's never had the toothache, and never lost wan!"—Youth's Companion.

Mary Knew How to Work, Wasn't Afraid to Work, but Was Independent.

Mary's written references were excellent and the employment agent filled up praises. She knew how to work, and she wasn't afraid to work.

But she was independent, she wouldn't take any bit of work that fell to her legitimately was performed thoroughly, but not one hand's turn would she do to help a fellow-servant along; the mistress must take that into consideration. The mistress did. She said that that was no objection.

On the first day in her new home Mary lived up to her reputation. Also, she lived up to it later in the evening. She was requested to wind a big hall clock. It was a fourteen-day clock, and it took twenty-eight turns of the key to wind it. Mary turned the key fourteen times.

"That's not enough," said her mistress. "Why don't you finish?"

"Because there may be another girl on this job next week," said Mary, "and I'm not going to do her work for her."

"Physicians Often Blamable." "It is a most unfortunate thing," says the North American Journal of Homeopathy, "that the moral degeneration to which every drug habitue almost inevitably comes is a sin that almost always lies at the door of some medical adviser. Few patients live so far from the doctor as to warrant him leaving a supply of morphine tablets for them to take if an attack comes on."

The practice of medicine seems to be summed up in the prescription of opiates in the case of some physicians. It is better to wear out the medicine case and let the hypodermic rust out than vice versa. Of course, we know that the hypodermic should not rust and that the medicine case cannot, but our readers are bright enough to read between the lines."

Shrewd Patient. A doctor who had been attending an old farmer for a fortnight or so pronounced the patient so much improved that it would be unnecessary for him to call again professionally.

Next day the medico was not a little astonished to find the ex-patient in the surgery with a half-consumed bottle of medicine in his hand.

"I thought, doctor, as you said that I was all right again, that I needn't finish 'at, so I've brought it back, as I'll happen to be handy for come other badly (tick) body that's got 'same complaint as I had. And you'll likely knock something off my bill, seeing that I've only sopped half of it." Thus showing a shrewd, saving turn on the covaleescent's part.

Youthful Definitions. In order to give his scholars a firm grip of original composition, a schoolmaster believes in the value of what he calls "an exercise in framing definitions." After illustrating what was wanted, he set the little boys to write one-sentence definitions of "boy" and "girl." Here are a few of the ideas evoked: "A boy is made of a lot of bones with flesh put round them." "A girl is nearly the same, but we do not cut her hair." "A boy is born baby." "A girl is only ribs out of a man's body." "A girl is a woman."

"A boy is a ordinary creature made out of dust, and a girl is a girl."

Against His Grain. The man whose corn had just been trod upon hopped about on one foot, nursing the other in his palms.

"What's the matter?" queried an innocent bystander. "Some one walk on your foot?"

"No, you see, I'm replied the suffering one, fastening a gaze upon the unfortunate worn upon his questioner. "A 600-pound hog, with an insatiable appetite for corn, just grazed mine in passing."

And he restored his aching foot to the pavement and went limping on his way.

MADE LIFE A TRAGEDY

WOMAN'S SUFFERING WHEN SHE HAS TO ADOPT GLASSES.

Everything Seems Changed for Her Worse, and Her Contentions Age Few—Sly Scrutiny a Thing of the Past.

I wear glasses! It's positively tragic, I look so wise and owl-like. It was bad enough to have an intellectual nose, but with intellectual eyes as well I am hopeless. None but insignificant men like wise-looking women. Be capable, but look incapable if you want to be a success. These little windows to my soul reveal what I for so long have attempted to conceal. How shall I ever adjust myself to this reorientation is a problem.

With a coy upward glance at my next to best young man, who is tall, I meet the top of my glasses instead of two fond eyes and feel foolish; with a coquettish side glance I strike a wide reflection and feel awkward. I will have to get a short man so I can look straight ahead; but I don't like short men.

A sly scrutiny of my neighbor's gown is no longer possible. I must turn and boldly stare or remain absolutely ignorant whether the embroidery is hand or machine made. Never, never more will I sally with my shoulders. My head will bob up and down, to the right and to the left, but goodby to the sly-sneaky glance with which one takes in a roomful and yet remains poised and unconscious.

The week under belladonna, when all was dim and blurred, brought with it a realization of what actual blindness must be and a resolution to read to those unfortunate creatures so afflicted when my own sight was restored.

How my letters piled up during that week! Mother kindly offered to read them to me, but I didn't think it nice to have other people's letters read. Just fancy Mother reading aloud, "Sweetheart, what magic spell have you cast about me? I live in a dream and I tread on air," or "Madam, kindly send us your check for $55 for the gown purchased two months ago," and you had only owned up to fifty! No, it certainly is not the proper thing to have letters read to you.

The one consolation for that belladonna week was that I had all the mending and darning done without a murmur. The family thought it strange that I could find all those rents and holes in my garments with such poor sight, but I said my sense of touch was becoming accentuated.

For a few days I thought I was getting good looking. My complexion took on a soft, velvety appearance and I was beginning to beam like a beauty and have an aggravatingly self-satisfied air; but when I put on my glasses, which magnify about five times, I rushed to mother and asked her if she was sure I hadn't the smallpox, everything looked so big and people seemed so coarse with large hands and feet. I wouldn't take some lovely shoes I had ordered because they made my feet look so large; but while I was looking down at them my glasses fell off and the foot returned to its normal size, so I consented to accept them. Now in purchasing pearls, diamonds and such I always remove my glasses.—Exchange.

Rescue From Electric Shock. In dealing with persons suffering from electrical shock, if the victim remains in contact with the circuit his body must not be touched by the rescuer, but the latter may pull him out of contact by hauling on the clothing, or he may take off his own coat, insert his hand in the sleeve and then handle the victim with little or no risk.

Almost any article of clothing or material may be used, provided it is dry and of moderate thickness. Dr. Morton points out that death from electrical shock is only an apparent death at first, and that there is practically always a time during which it is possible to resuscitate the victim by artificial respiration.—The Lancet.

Indians to Build Model Village. When the Indians of the Queen Charlotte Islands have already a national reputation for enterprise, the Skidegate, whose village lies at the south end of Graham Island, have in view the most ambitious undertaking they will install an electrical system furnishing power to their industrial enterprises.

They will put in a modern sewer system, water works and also fire-fighting apparatus.

The Skidegates are chiefly famous for their bark, which has the reputation of being the best in the world, either Canada or the United States.—Vancouver Sun.

His Elaborate Dinner. It was in the grillroom of a local cafe, and two visitors took seats at a table in the corner. "I am as hungry as a bear, and am going to order an elaborate dinner," one of them was heard to remark. Everybody in the grillroom heard just what his dinner consisted of, having visions of terrapin, pate de foie gras, and, maybe, fresh strawberries. After carefully scanning the menu and looking at the price list he said something to the waiter in a low voice, who answered, "Ham and eggs, huh? Certainly, huh."—Indianapolis News.

PUBLIC INTEREST IN SPORTS

It is the Spectacular in Athletics Which Makes Games Popular With the People.

If interest in athletics were confined to athletes, the value of athletics would be lessened about 99 per cent. The only way to rouse public interest in athletic sports is by their spectacular character.

The value of football lies in the ten thousand prairie organizations which train a hundred thousand boys in nerve and team work each year. But these prairie teams would not exist if the great college teams did not give thrilling spectacles each fall. These great matches keep up that keen public interest without which football would be forgotten.

The same is true of baseball. Every lad swatting balls in a vacant lot models his play on that of some big league hero and dreams of himself in that hero's place on the diamond.

A sport which is only a spectacle would not be worth much. But a sport which has no exhibition value never gets beyond a small circle. If America ever finds a winter game to take the place which baseball holds in summer and football in autumn, it will be a game which rivals these great sports in thrilling spectacular appeal.

Modesty Keeps Some From Going to Man, Says New Zealand Practitioner.

A woman who practices as a lawyer in New Zealand has been induced, in connection with the bar's disapproval of the admission of women to the Inns of Courts, to narrate her experiences of forensic life.

"My clients," she says, "are principally women, but my services are sought by some men. Matrimonial and separation cases have, in the main, claimed my attention." Mrs. De Costa is convinced that without her services many a case would never have been dealt with.

"The woman, in many instances, prefers to suffer in silence rather than unfold her story to a man solicitor, however sympathetic he may be," she says.

Does this not support the contention that, if women were allowed to practice at the bar in England they would be engaged principally in the delicate cases in which their appearance would place their men opponents, as well as judges and juries, under a feeling of restraint which would interfere with the proper administration of the law?

Where Fashion is Individual. The fashion in Kiangsu province, China, is whatever one wants. Every man wears what is right in his own eyes. A panama goes jauntily down the street followed by a fur covered brim cap. Felt hats of scarlet and verdigris green follow along with grays and browns that really do the amateur haters credit. Eskimo top caps, a few derby hats and the smart military uniforms give the streets a piquancy that was missed formerly in the monotonous China blue crowds.

Of all the notices posted on the city gate the one that attracts the most attention is the fashion plate that has been exhibited for weeks. It displays two or three of the typical "western" suits. There are the "swallow tailed" and the low front frock for evening functions. There one finds the plaited skirts recommended for the women. The silk or "stovepipe" hat has its corner with the other fetters.

"Tramp's" Advice on Care of Feet. A "tramp" writes: "Bathe your feet as often as you can. Before retiring give them a good soak in hot water, with salt in it. For untoughened feet, use a boot not too tight, with a thick sole, a low heel, and wear two pairs of stockings. Each day, before starting—and during the day if needful—apply vaseline or tallow very freely to any parts that chafe. Little pads of cotton carrying vaseline, tucked between troublesome toes or plastered on the surface of the foot anywhere that there is trouble, simply work wonders. Starting with worn and tender feet, the writer has walked hundreds of rough miles without a particle of distress in the feet—simply because they were given good care."

Surgery and Crime. Surgical treatment to turn a convicted criminal into a useful citizen received a bad setback in a case where a great apparent change after such an operation led to the pardon of the reformed man. His release was followed by a series of burglaries which necessitated his return to durance ville. Perhaps one of the reforms to come will be the better protection of society from a theory and experiment connected with the criminal classes. So far the experiments made to prove that morality is merely a matter of habit have not been brilliantly successful.—Baltimore American.
