The "trend of labor in the South" is now said to be back to the farms.

Russell Sage says that he still takes interest in things. Some folks say he takes more than the law allows.

Mr. John D. Rockefeller is said to take an early morning walk in bare feet. Probably an attempt to save shoe leather.

Elijah Dowie has decreed that in Zion City lovers must not kiss. Elijah's insanity was never more fully established.

In the city of Boston each person uses an average of 144 gallons of water per day; and they don't water their whiskey either.

The Boston Herald thinks that Theodore Roosevelt may "go down in history as White Wings." His politics are hardly white enough, though.

At a fashionable Newport lawn party last week milk sold for $5 a glass. The price of champagne at this interesting function is not mentioned.

The minimum price of cotton seed has been fixed at 30 cents. Southern cotton growers are beginning to make the opposition also look like 30 cents.

An Iowa youth has been restrained by an injunction from courting his girl. In other states the old man takes a stick instead of an injunction.

That muddle about Smith promising to support Guerry three years ago has frazzled to the point where Guerry says he counted on his support, though Smith had never promised it.

A New York man who pretended that he was Russell Sage has been pulled by the police. He was throwing away his money and thereby threw away his case. Sage never throws away money.

"Governor Folk's assertion that the sun never sets on the Missouri mule is not surprising. Nothing yet discovered has ever been able to set on a Kentucky mule," says the Atlanta Journal.

The fun has begun: Our neighboring new counties are to have primaries shortly, and the candidates are announcing by the dozens. Nothing in the world better than a large field of candidates at $10 per head for the newspapers.

The Russians and Japs have as yet been unable to get together on terms of peace. Russia's threat, though, to go on with the war is only a bluff. She has "done her do," and there is nothing left for her but to give her "money or her life."

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Depp, of Hickory Run, Pa., are the parents of 23 children. The parents are only 40 years old and claim to have the largest family in America. The couple have been married 18 years and have had six pairs of twins, which are now numbered in the family circle. Depp is employed as a section foreman on a railroad.

Atlanta's mayor has again brought discredit upon that city by engaging in a drunken debauch; this time, however, while visiting abroad, which makes the offense all the greater. But it is nobody's business but Atlanta's, and she certainly likes that sort of thing or she would not have given Woodward an opportunity after his conduct six years ago.

NEW SCHOOL LAW.

The new law which provides for the creation and operation of local district schools and for the levying and collection of local tax by counties for educational purposes and the laying off of counties into school districts, published in these columns last week, will soon be in effect.

The law is regarded as one of the most important ever passed by the legislature, and it is sure to mean much better schools for the state. Every county can now impose a special tax for school purposes if the people so vote. If a whole county does not desire to do so then any incorporated school district can levy a tax upon the property owners of the district for the express purpose of operating a district school provided the majority of the voters of the district declare in favor of such a tax.

According to State School Commissioner Meritt, who was one of the most active supporters of the measure and who conducted a vigorous campaign in its behalf, the law means a great deal to the children of the state. Several elections to impose a local tax will be held as soon as the thirty days allowed for the law to go into effect expires and an improved school system in those counties will be the result.

For many years nearly all the counties in the state have been depending altogether on the state for support of its schools, but now they need no longer do so if they desire. And even if a certain county should fail to vote for an extra tax for school purposes any district in the county may impose a district tax.

LAZY CRACKERS, WE.

It is more amusing than irritating to know the Yankees' small opinion of us as Southerners. As a people we are pretty well content with our own ways, and that our Northern critics see a great many weak points in us gives us small concern.

Of that class who are least able to see anything good in us as is the Philadelphia Inquirer, who says: "If the white men of the South were able and willing to work steadily and persistently, as do the white men of the North, their section of the country would be abundantly rich and prosperous today. * * * Whether it is climate or heredity or the traditions of slavery times, the fact remains that the men of the South, white and black alike, do not like to work and will not work if they can avoid it."

Now, these strictures may or may not be deserved. We can't say whether our section sends a greater number of hobos to the North than comes to us from that section. Certain it is, at any rate, that they all do not like work over well, as is evidenced by the almost continuous reports of strikes and labor disturbances, where the demand is far bigger pay and shorter hours. Apparently the Yankee shirks a little when there is work to do. He works voluntarily over time only when there is an opportunity to make a dig at the South. In this respect he is a huster.

A MATTER OF FORM.

News dispatches last week contained the interesting information that the sultan of Sulu had proffered his hand in marriage to the president's daughter, Miss Alice Roosevelt, who is visiting in the Philippines with Secretary Taft's party. The sultan is supposed to be "some punkins" in the circle in which revolves, and it was generally thought to be a special mark of favor to our country that he should extend so kindly an invitation to one of our charming maidens.

But not so. The Savannah News says: "Miss Roosevelt's Washington friends will be disappointed to learn that it was not her beauty nor yet her intellectual accomplishments that led the sultan of Sulu to propose marriage to her. That she is a captivating young woman seems to be well established, but it was not 'love at first sight' that prompted his royal nibs, subject of the United States, to proffer his hand to the president's daughter. It is the custom in Sulu that the sultan shall compliment any visiting princess by offering to marry her, and in this case the sultan was merely following precedent. A few marriages more or less do not make any difference in Sulu. The sultan will not be heartbroken because his offer was not accepted. There will follow other princesses quite ready to take him at his word."

THE SUN GROWING COLD?

The days of long essays on the subject, "the sun do move," have passed, and in their stead comes the more disturbing one of the sun losing its heat and light. Some months ago there was an estimate going the rounds of the press that in a few million years the sun would cease to shine; and now comes a theory that Old Sol is growing cold. This latter proposition seems to be capable of proof, and the Ohio State Journal speaks seriously of it as follows:

"The sun is such a fickle creature that one hardly dares to speculate concerning its condition. It seems to have a life of its own, which crosses the conclusion of science at every point. One thing seems certain, that the sun is losing its heat, through constant radiation, but it is equally certain that it is getting a great deal of it back through some processes not really known. Some think it is constantly fed by comets, meteors and invisible forms of force that are swimming through the universe, and are drawn to that fiery center when ever they touch the shores of the solar system. But whether this, or from some other influence, the sun is given back the heat it parts with; but in the opinion of most astronomers the amount returned does not balance what has been given out, thus putting the sun constantly on the losing side. What the sun spots are no one knows. There is a very large one on the face of the sun now, stretching across a fifth of the diameter. Possibly that furnishes some explanation why the blanket feels good these nights. The number of these spots varies from a dozen or so up to 200—the highest number being reached every eleven years. These have some effect upon the terrestrial weather, but it is so complicated as to provide no definite conclusions. It is possible, if a column of sun spot statistics were put alongside of a column of the prices of wheat, corn, cotton and business generally for a century, there would be noticed a marked tendency to parallelism."

Occupations of Women.

There is a woman who is a successful jockey.

Another who is an intrepid deep-sea diver.

Another who is a successful lodg-keeper.

Another who is a railway constructor and president of the road.

Another who, though but 19 years old, is a marine observer on an island off Cape Cod.

Another who is harbor mistress of Tacoma.

Another who is keeper of Point Pinos lighthouse at Monterey, Cal.

Another who farms a Texas ranch 2,000 square miles in area.

Another who farms frogs in Jersey and clears $1,500 a year by the enterprise.

Another who is a capable gravedigger.

Another who is a professional nut-cracker.

AFTER HOG RAISERS.

Nine Offenders Fined $1 Each by the Mayor.

There was something doing among the hog raisers of the town last week when Marshal Mitchell made his round and reported a crowd of nine offenders to the mayor for keeping hogs in the city within a smaller enclosure than is prescribed by the ordinance on that subject. This requirement calls for a space of not less than one-quarter acre for each hog so kept, and the evidence was that none of the pens of those docketed were any thing like so large.

The entire group of offenders, Messrs. J. F. Olliff, B. H. Olliff, H. E. Coleman, J. C. Webb, J. R. Miller, J. F. Atkins and J. Geo. Waters, and John Blocker and Henry Rellins, the latter two colored, were fined $1.00 each and told that a repetition of the offense would call for a heavier penalty.

The mayor will have another assemblage of sixteen before him at 10 o'clock this morning, the marshal having made a canvas of the town with a view to straightening up the hog problem within the past two days.

Ruta Baga and Turnip Seeds.

OLLIFF & SMITH.

How Is It Possible?

The Tennessean News reporter recently went the rounds of his town to find who of the prominent citizens of that town "really intended to vote for the Hon. Clark Howell. We have discovered at least seven among the one hundred and eightyodd. There may be more, and if so will find out in the near future, but when it comes to seeking Hoke Smith men it was an easy matter for we could find Smith men on all sides, in every store house, in all departments of business, in the hotel lobby, down in the park, on all the many trains passing through our city, there were crowds of twos and threes on the square, coming in buggies and wagons from the country, in fact, it was nothing but Hoke Smith admirers from first to last. Railroad men of the laboring class do not hesitate to express their opinion. Engineers and conductors all hurrah for Hoke Smith. After making this discovery we stop, and reflect and ask ourselves the question, how is it possible for Mr. Howell to defeat Mr. Smith?"

DON'TS FOR MOTHERS.

Don't forget that the wish that is gratified by some self sacrifice gains in value.

Don't forget that the orderly child is a blessing to himself as well as to others.

Don't tell to make companions of your children's school friends. Be true with your children the happiest of all days, your school days.

Don't forget that a crowded shop is a poor place for children. If you must take them there, teach "touch not, taste not, handle not."

Don't expect "Yes, thank you, mamma" or "No, I would rather not, please, mamma," if you omit to use these simple words yourself.

Don't permit the wild demonstrations of temper, the screaming and kicking which one sometimes—in fact, too often—witnesses. They demoralize both parent and child. They never need be if the very first demonstration is checked.

Painted Walls.

Painted walls are best for a kitchen, and they should be finished with a coat of enamel paint. Then they can be washed without injury. The best way to do this is by using a large carriage sponge fitted to a long handled mop holder.

Insurance Figures.

The business of life insurance has, within the past twenty years, assumed such gigantic proportions that, when enumerated in figures, they are too large to comprehend.

High priests of the great temples of chance—insurance companies—have made converts in every corner of civilization, and even beyond. Nothing and nobody, between an east side tenement and a European palace or an Asiatic house of Kings, is beneath their notice as worth taking a chance upon in the huge lottery. Headed by the United States, with its $19,273,675,200 of life insurance in force, the human family is today insured for a gigantic total of $26,277,409,604.

Should any simultaneous fatality occur among the holders of insurance policies, or even a title of them, every insurance company on earth would be bankrupt in paying the beneficiaries, the aggregate amount of insurance far exceeding the total amount of money in international circulation.

As before stated, the United States leads the world in the aggregate amount of insurance taken out by dwellers within its borders, the most heavily insured individual on earth being Zedman Wanmaker of Philadelphia, who recently secured $1,200,000 extra insurance on his life. This, added to the sum of his previous policies, means that his demise will cost the insurance companies $3,200,000.
