Profs Open Tomorrow Night Against Stetson

G.T.C. Presented On Television Beginning Dec. 7

Plans for a monthly G.T.C. television program on Station WTOC-TV, Savannah, were announced this week by President Zach S. Henderson.

First program in the series is slated next Friday, December 7, at 3:30 p. m.

A faculty committee, headed by Roy F. Powell, director of public relations, is in charge of the productions. The first show, according to Mr. Powell, will be a general introduction to the college and will include a small cast of students and faculty.

The television camera will show the experiences of a typical G.T.C. freshman as he arrives on the campus for orientation at the beginning of fall quarter.

A number of scenes have been worked into the 30-minute program, but the most important one, the committee chairman said, presents the newly-arrived freshman taking a Coke break with their counselor. It is in this scene that the interesting aspects of campus social and extra-curricular life are presented. A student committee headed by Diana Bair is in charge of the production of this part of the program. Serving on the committee with her are Mimi Saba, DeWayne Dutton, Emory Giles, Joyce Kirkland, Glenda Smith, and Charlotte Owens.

Besides Mr. Powell, the faculty faculty committee is composed of Jack Averitt, Parish Blitch, J. I. Clements, Miss Dorothy Few, Miss Bertha Freeman, Ed Godfrey, Dan Hooley, Mrs. Miriam Moore, Miss Hassie M. McElveen, Miss Marie Wood, and Tully Pennington.

The programs will be scheduled monthly throughout the rest of the school year in an education series sponsored by WTOC-TV.

Armstrong Junior College, the Chatham County Schools, and Savannah State College also have regular programs in this series.

Other G.T.C. programs will be devoted to music, drama, alumni, public forums, athletics, and teacher education.

Scenes of the G.T.C. campus will be shown on next Friday's program.

Biology Class Takes to Field

Tully Pennington's general biology class, biology 103, has taken two field trips this quarter in connection with class-room study. Last Tuesday the group went to Lott's Creek, located out Highway 301 south, and prior to the Thanksgiving holidays they visited Field's Pond, which is out 301 just past the Rockwell plant.

Trees, plants, and birds native to this part of the United States and to this section of the state were identified, and the characteristics of the various species were noted. Mr. Pennington pointed out the effect of climate and soil on the vegetation, and gave special attention to the identifying leaf structure, flowers, and berries of the individual plants and trees.

Classroom Building Delayed Because of Incomplete Plans

Construction of G.T.C.'s proposed $600,000 classroom building will not begin until sometime after Christmas due to incomplete building plans for schools throughout the state, and because of current high interest rates on construction bonds, it was revealed this week.

According to Dr. Zach S. Henderson, president of this college, plans have already been completed and approved for G.T.C.'s new structure; however, plans for new building projects on other campuses in the state must also be approved before the State Board of Regents can give any one school the go-ahead.

A second factor cited by Dr. Henderson was the present level of interest rates on the school bonds necessary to finance such a job. Officials feel that it would be unwise to sell bonds at the present time because of the large amount of additional money that the school board would be forced to pay out due to this high level.

Designed to house the science, home economics and business departments, the new addition will be part of an eight million dollar building program set up for institutions in the state university system.

A previous grant of twenty million dollars by the state finances over one million dollars worth of construction on this campus including the Lab School at a cost of $356,890, Cone Hall at $380,510, and the new physical education building which cost $319,293.

The new building at G.T.C. is necessary to meet rising demands of a fast growing enrollment here.

Officials believe the current bonds will be sold after Christmas.

VISITOR HERE

Dr. Gordon Brown, assistant chancellor of the University System, was on campus visiting this week. He was in conference with administration officials on general university system plans.

S. C. Discusses Possibility Of Improving Store

Possibilities for improving the Little Store were among topics discussed at Monday night's Student Council meeting.

Since the new student center is not expected to materialize for some time, the group is considering ways to obtain more space in the present structure. The heating problem of the store was also brought up for thought. No final decisions were reached.

Ways of bringing a big name dance orchestra to G.T.C.'s Home-coming celebration were also discussed. Tentative plans now call for sale of tickets to defray costs if the musicians can be brought here. The group plans to meet with Dr. Zach S. Henderson to decide on the place for the dance sometime soon.

BASKETBALL TICKETS

Because of the crowded seating conditions for students this season, Coach J. I. Clements requests that all students who are bringing off-campus dates, and wish to sit with them, buy tickets for both themselves and their dates and sit elsewhere in the gym. This arrangement will continue through the four games before Christmas. The conditions may be changed in the winter quarter if a better solution can be worked out.

Also brought up for future consideration by the Council were suggestions to dedicate the annual or some part of it to Bob Fuqua and "Humph" Campbell; new ideas for the Honors Day program; and consideration of the current rule that does not allow a member of the Student Council to succeed himself.

Xmas Packages And Gifts Should Be Mailed Early

Christmas cards and gifts should be mailed as soon as possible, according to Z. L. Strange, postmaster, to assure safe and timely arrival before Christmas.

Patrons who wish to send more personal messages along with the gifts or cards will receive best results if they will use the first class mail. If the sender is known, the articles can be forwarded or returned if they do not reach their destination as desired.

Mr. Strange offers a few rules to follow when sending Christmas articles:

Mail early, wrap parcels carefully, make addresses plain, add complete name and address to all parcels, and attach a three-cent stamp to greeting cards.

First District F.T.A. Meets Here

Future Teachers of America Clubs from high school throughout the first district will participate in a Leadership Workshop on the campus of the Georgia Teachers College on Saturday, December 1, according to an announcement by Albert Cornelison, president of the Joe Carruth Chapter here at G.T.C.

The workshop is being held for high school principals, club sponsors and officers to assist them in this snowballing movement in our public schools which holds more real promise for overcoming the teacher shortage than any other development since the shortage began.

Mrs. S. C. Patterson, state director of the Future Teachers and a member of the State Department of Education will report on the large interest currently being felt throughout Georgia in this movement. Under the capable direction of Mrs. Patterson, a former county school superintendent in the state, similar workshops are being conducted throughout Georgia.

Inspiration for greater emphasis on the Future Teachers movement was provided last year by the State Chamber of Commerce which inaugurated a ten point program aimed at this vital need of the present generation. While the ultimate effect of the movement can not be foretold at this time, some impact is already being felt in increased enrollments in teacher education in all colleges in Georgia. The Georgia Teachers College had a 28 per cent increase in enrollment last year and another 13 per cent rise in 1956.

The workshop will begin promptly at 9 a. m. with registration. Following registration the delegates will be welcomed by President Zach S. Henderson in a general session. Included in this session will be a skit on teaching prepared by the local chapter nomination of officers and an inspiring talk by Mrs. Patterson.

Immediately following the noon meal, the group will be given a tour of our campus, after which they will reassemble for another general session.

In the afternoon session officers will be elected and installed, and a reporting session on the morning discussion will set the scene for the final address by Dr. J. D. Park on the teaching profession.

Old Rivals Meet In 16th Game Of Cage Series

By BOB POLLAK

The Georgia Teachers College Professors will open their 1956-57 basketball season against Stetson University on Saturday night.

Three returning starters from last year's squad will be in tomorrow night's lineup. They are: co-captain, Don Wallen, Wheelwright, Ky.; co-chptain, Bo Warren, Ludowici; and Doug Corry, Union Pt.

Other members of this year's team who will be vieing for starting positions are: Don Avery, Jim Long, Bob Belton, Beldy Massey, Chester Curry, Jim Denney, Walker Cook, Ralph Berryhill, Franklin Rushing, Howard Walls, Marvin Vanover, Mickey Wilson and Ronnie Rush.

Of course the loss of "Hump" Campbell will hurt the Professors this coming season, however the team will still be in the best possible spirits.

Coach Searce appealed to the student body last Monday with the following statement, "We need you." In other words, get out and give your support to this year's team.

MOVIE TONIGHT

"The McConnell Story" will be shown Friday night at 7:30 p. m. in the McCroan Auditorium as this week's movie.

Stars for the movie include Alan Ladd, June Allison, and James Whitmore.

Sponsored by the Student Council, the movie will be shown free of charge. Everyone is invited to attend.

Nursery School Students Learn German Songs

By BETTY RAHN

The fifteen small students enrolled in nursery school on G.T.C. campus have been very busy under the direction of their teacher, Miss Betsy Meadows. They have been learning to sing "Silent Night" and "Are You Sleeping?" in German. They have also learned to use the German language in little greetings and counting to ten.

They have visited the band room and are learning to distinguish the different musical instruments. Christmas decorations are being made for their Christmas tree. They are also making Christmas gifts for their parents.

A parents' meeting is held every third Monday night. At the meeting November 19, Miss Betsy Meadows, Miss Isabelle Cabaniss, and Mrs. Cleo Millard discussed the topic "What the Nursery School, Kindergarten, and First Grade Teacher Expect to Accomplish with the Children They Have Enrolled." Other topics that will be discussed in future meetings are: "Helping Children's Eating Habits," "How to Prevent Behavior Problems with Children," "Children's Fears," and "Art, Music, and Science Activities for Young Children."

Big Night Ahead...

Saturday night is the big one. This is the beginning of the 1956-57 basketball schedule. Though this year starts with regret, all of us are eagerly awaiting that first jump ball.

We have five members of the student body on the floor representing G.T.C. They will be playing basketball as never before. Behind them will be weeks of practice under the expert coaching of J. B. Searce, practice that has only just begun.

Yes, there will be five men representing G.T.C. on the court, but there should be 800 other representatives in the stands. These other 800 should not only be representing the college in the best definition of good sportsmanship, but backing the team to the hilt. The schedule has some tough teams on it, but our boys are tough, too. They will play twice as well when they know that every student here is behind them.

Students can show their backing in every way conceivable. The cheerleaders will need help in getting those yells sounding all across the gym. Words of encouragement and faith in their ability will help before the game and thanks afterwards for a good performance. Most of all, the students can back the team in no better way than by attending the game. There is a seat for every student that will come. Students are not turned away at the door because no seat is available.

Let's all move toward the gym Saturday night. Believe you me, there is a big night ahead.

In Memoriam

A shocking and tragic thing happened at approximately 3:25 a. m. November 21. Two of the most outstanding, popular, and capable students in the history of Georgia Teachers College had their lives snuffed out in an airplane crash. The untimely death of Bob Fuqua and Garland "Hump" Campbell stunned this campus into shocked disbelief.

It is times like this when mere words seem useless. To write what one really feels at this great loss is impossible. We are inarticulate, words will not come. The realization that Bob and "Hump" are with us no more does not come easily.

Both of these boys were outstanding students. As past president of the F.B.L.A. and the Veterans Club, Bob had made major contributions to campus life. He had been instrumental in advancing not only the activities of these clubs but had contributed to and been active in all phases of campus life.

"Humpy" was one of the greatest forwards in the history of G.T.C. basketball. He was not only a star athlete but a good student. "Hump" was this year's Vet Club president and had started the club on the road to one of its most successful years.

No school or society can lose two such outstanding individuals without feeling its effect. We shall miss them.

Pride in Student Response...

Quite often members of the student body do things quite out of the ordinary. Someone has an idea of merit, puts it before the student body, and it is received with wide approval and backing. Such was the idea presented by Peter O'Millian in chapel two weeks ago.

Sponsored by I.R.C., the idea to help Hungarians in their time of need was completely unselfish. Boxes are now in the dormitories for old articles of clothing. Students are slowly but surely filling these boxes. Money has been collected by several members of the club, and that amount is also slowly but surely growing.

Most important of all, however, is the student response to such a suggestion. It would be an understatement to say that every student is aware of the situation. It would also be a slur to suggest that any student is not doing something to help. This is what makes G.T.C. a campus of which to be proud. Everyone is helping with no thought of personal glorification—just helping to be helping.

May the students here continue to act in such a way.

"IT'S ALL RIGHT DEAN WILSON—WE'RE SHOWING A MOVIE."

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the Art Club I wish to express our sincere thanks to the student body, faculty, band, and the many others, who by their interest and help contributed so much toward making our Starlight Club Ball a success.

We hope the dance was as enjoyable for all of you as it was for the club members who planned it.

Thanks again for your cooperation.

Sincerely,
MARTHA TINKER

Dear Editor:

Several hundreds of words have been written and spoken about the parking problem we have on the campus with considerable emphasis on the lack of adequate parking facilities. A student-faculty committee has been formed to study this problem and we are all eagerly awaiting the recommendations of that committee.

To my knowledge no word has been spoken or written about two equally serious problems existing on our campus: the enforcement (or rather the lack of enforcement) of the traffic laws and the pedestrian problem.

The pedestrian problem is a serious one for two outstanding reasons which make driving and walking a hazard:

1. There are no adequate walkways for the use of pedestrians on the back campus where most of the activity takes place.

2. Partly because of the lack of proper walks, pedestrians are forced into the roads. For some unknown reason this seems to be the favorite practice of the pedestrians and a favorite place to meet and pass the time of day, and they feel that they have an inherent right in the roads and regard the automobile as the interloper.

Have you, as a motorist, ever tried to navigate the area between the old gym and the music building between the hours of 11:30 a. m. and 12:30 p. m.? It is high impossible with the members of the student body sprawled out all over the sidewalk and road. This area will hardly accommodate two vehicles passing each other under the best of conditions; but with the student body lined up there, it is all but impassible because of the double and sometimes triple line extending into the street. The absolute refusal of students to move for vehicles creates a dangerous situation for both motorist and pedestrian.

The second and equally as hazardous situation is the disregard of motorists for the speed limit as posted and even

Hyde and Seek

While in Walhalla, South Carolina, during the holidays, I ran across this low-calorie diet which I think will be of some help to some of the G.T.C. students. This diet comes highly recommended by Oliver Obese, former fat man with the circus.

MONDAY

Breakfast: Weak tea.
Lunch: One bouillon cube in half cup diluted water.
Dinner: One pigeon thigh; three ounces prune juice (gar-gle only).

TUESDAY

Breakfast: Scraped crumbs from burnt toast.
Lunch: One doughnut hole (without sugar).
Dinner: Three jellyfish skins; one glass dehydrated water.

WEDNESDAY

Breakfast: Shredded eggshell skins.
Lunch: Belly-button from a naval orange.
Dinner: Three eyes from Irish potato (diced).

THURSDAY

Breakfast: Boiled-out stains from table cloth.
Lunch: One-half dozen poppy seeds.

Dinner: Bees Knees and Mosquito knuckles (sauteed with vinegar).

FRIDAY

Breakfast: Two lobster antennae.
Lunch: One gruppy fin.
Dinner: Jellyfish vertebrae a la bookbinder.

SATURDAY

Breakfast: Four chopped banana seeds.
Lunch: Boiled butterfly liver.
Dinner: Fillet of soft shell crab claw.

SUNDAY

Breakfast: Pickled hummingbird tongue.

Lunch: Prime rib of tadpole; aroma of empty custard pie plate.

Dinner: Tossed paprika and clover leaf salad.

The late Oliver Obese passed away one week from the day he began this strict diet. His last remarks were: "It's not so bad—once you get used to not eating."

Army troops were being trained for a secret mission. They were given an extremely tough obstacle course that consisted of swimming across a raging river, running up a vertical cliff, scrambling through barbed wire entanglements and climbing a peak with full equipment.

As they came to the end of their training period, a colonel barked to an Harlan, Ky. boy in the company, "How do you like it, soldier?"

"Shucks, suh, it ain't nothing," drawled the soldier. "Where I come from we have to go through country like this to get to the out-house!"

When the editor of a small town newspaper was hard pressed for material with which to fill his columns one week, he ran the Ten Commandments without editorial comment. Soon after he received a letter from a reader who said, "Cancel my subscription. You're getting too personal!"

The kind of man who doesn't know the meaning of the word fear is usually the kind who doesn't know the meaning of many other words, either.

more important the Prima Facie speed limit. If it were only the student drivers who were at fault, the solution would be reasonably simple—permit no student vehicle to be moved between the hours of 8 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. This is not the case, however, and some of our worst offenders are members of the faculty, trades people, and visitors on the campus—even, the Statesboro and Bulloch County Police Departments.

If the student-faculty committee would consider the following recommendations, and above all, if each and every one of us on the campus would be a "policeman," policing ourselves when we walk or drive on the campus, a greater part of the existing situations would be relieved.

1. Replace all worn and defaced speed limit signs with new ones and add several more.

2. A study be made to improve the walkways for pedestrians.

3. A self-policing action for motorists and pedestrians. If this does not work, then the formation of a student-faculty police force under the administration of a student-faculty board, with the authority to restrict vehicles from the campus; to suspend driving privileges on the campus and/or to impose fines or other appropriate punishments on offenders. This provision should apply to motorists as well as to "jay-walking" pedestrians, to faculty, students, and visitors on the campus, with no partiality being shown to anyone.

With the earnest and whole-hearted cooperation of each person, we can make Georgia Teachers College a safer place to walk and drive. Set an example of "Safe Driving and Walking Practices" for surrounding communities.

—Raymond C. Marves

Condemnation without justification. All through the history of the world, men have been condemned without trial. They were accused of witchcraft, heresy, and other things which alienated those in power and were executed without benefit of a trial. In a sense, we the people of Georgia are a power. The voters of our state have the right and power to elect our representatives to the Federal Congress. We exercised that right in November by electing Herman Talmadge to the United States Senate. Mr. Talmadge has not taken office as yet, but already he is being assailed by many of the people. Isn't this condemning a man before he has had a chance to prove himself. They laughed at the Wright brothers and said they were show-offs, but they went on to pioneer a great service to mankind.

I am not saying that Mr. Talmadge will be a great service to mankind, I am saying that the least we can do is to give him the chance to prove himself before we denounce him as a cheap politician. Of course, there are some who will say, "Look at his record as governor." "What did he do?" It may be that he was not the greatest governor we ever had, but being a Senator is quite different from being a governor. I like to think of the professor who gave a person a F on a test before he had even taken it. His reason, "I knew you would fail anyway so I went ahead and gave you the F." Now I ask you, "Was that fair?" I think you will agree that it was not. Thinking along that same line, is it fair to condemn our Senator-elect before he has had a chance to prove himself an able representative or an ass.

Today there is a great need for foreign language to help the people of the United States understand the culture as well as political life of other countries. About two years ago two foreign languages were introduced here at Georgia Teachers College and since that time the students interest in language has grown tremendously. Two quarters of French or German is required for the A. B. degree offered here and the number of people getting A. B. degrees are small. Recently the college changed the programs so that foreign language may be taken as a restricted elective and this changed helped the classes to grow in number. French 101, which is offered this winter quarter has over thirty students enrolled, almost double the amount from any other quarter. The teaching of foreign language in elementary schools is getting popular these days. At Marvin Pittman School, French is taught to the sixth while German is taught to the fifth grade. The elementary students take a great interest in the language and seldom miss a class; the classes are on a voluntary basis.

Education 420 (Method of Teaching Foreign Language) was offered for the first time here during the summer school sessions. I had the privilege of being in this class which was a great success. The French and German Clubs here put on assembly programs quite often. On December 3, the German Club joins the Music Club in putting on a program devoted to Mozart. The suggested topic for the poll this week came from the French class and I have asked the students of the French and German classes to give replies to this question: "Do you feel that taking a foreign language has increased your understanding of other countries as concerns, culture, political life and viewpoints?"

CHARLOTTE BLITCH—I believe after studying French for two quarters that I have a better understanding of the French people and their culture as a whole. I think that much emphasis should be put on this phase of study because in our small world of today it is so necessary to attempt to understand our neighbors.

ALLEN ROGERS—I feel that taking a foreign language broadens your knowledge of other countries plus giving the student a better understanding of his own language. I also think all students should be required to take at least two quarters of foreign language at college.

LINDA ROWELL — Taking French has helped me to understand and appreciate the country and people of France more.

FRED FAGNANT—In studying a foreign language you gain an understanding of the life and likes of people in another section of the world. You can better understand their viewpoints on world situations by seeing the development of their culture and history. It is a worthwhile experience for any student to learn about other peoples' problems and to learn to live with them.

JOYCE KIRKLAND — Right now I'm taking German—second course. I have studied foreign languages a long time. Besides the fact that I'm considering foreign languages as a

Masquers' Play Highly Praised

By EMORY GILES

(Editor's Note: This is one of two reviews of the Masquers' recent production of Tennessee Williams' drama, "Summer and Smoke." Also see second story by Jane Williams on page eight of this edition.)

Tennessee Williams' play, "Summer and Smoke," was superbly presented by the Masquers Tuesday and Wednesday nights in McCroan Auditorium.

Miss Dorothy Few, the director, outdid herself in casting the play. Every member of the cast was perfectly suited to his role. Even the minor characters were well chosen, and they really lived their parts. Miss Few is to be commended for such a fine job.

Diana Bair as the leading lady, Alma, was superior. The frequent changes of costume and stage didn't seem to affect her at all. With the great acting ability she has, she carried her character throughout the play, never faltering even when she was forced to ad-lib. Diana is certainly worthy of praise.

Mike Lowrey as John, the wild young doctor, did a fine job himself. He, too, kept his character throughout the play. His quick changes of emotion were excellent. He very elegantly portrayed the change in character of the roving, young doctor.

The supporting cast did a magnificent job of portraying the minor characters which are so vital and important to the play. Even the child actors were excellent. The whole supporting cast held their character at all times, and they should be highly praised for the fine job they did in supporting the leads.

The lightening was beautifully done. The difficulty in lighting parts of the stage and darkening others was overcome, and the effect was inspiring and enlightening.

The staging, too, was excellent. The three different scenes on one stage was hard to do, but the construction crew did a magnificent job.

The sound effects played a vital part in the play, and Jennie Fay Morgan and her crew should be commended for doing such a fine job.

Costuming and make-up were superior. All of the costumes fit the time, setting, and the individual character of the persons who wore them. Yet, they were not so outstanding as to detract from the acting of the cast, which is commendable to the costume committee.

The play was enjoyable. Those who didn't see it missed a great tragic episode of life which was very realistic. The Masquers have done it again!

career, the study has helped me a great deal in learning my own native tongue. Latin helped my spelling, and French my pronunciation. The minute details involved in learning a strange way of speaking is also a good mind sharpener. If I were an advisor, I would suggest that everyone become familiar with at least one foreign language. This, to me, would complete and polish up an education.

A. R. ROWELL—I suppose everyone has his own reasons for studying foreign languages. As for me, I can only think of two major reasons why I want to learn French. I had a long visit in French Morocco. I never could understand what those Frenchmen were trying so hard (hands and all) to get across to me, so I got curious and I'm still trying to understand by studying French here at G.T.C. I chose to take French simply for curiosity. I'd just like to be able to read, write, and speak it.

KITTY WINGATE, George-Anne Girl of the Week, is the young lady whom you may not know by name but always see with a smile on her face in President Henderson's office. Kitty, a major in elementary education, came back from the Thanksgiving holidays with a sparkler on the third finger of her left hand and dealt a blow to the male faction on the G.T.C. campus. Kitty hails from Sylvester, but has also made herself well liked by all who know her here.

Hydes' Peek Show Activity In Masquers' Bullpen Backstage

By LARRY HYDE

I am sitting backstage in McCroan Auditorium; minutes before the curtain goes up for the Masquers' production of Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke."

While Jane Williams is sitting out front, ready to view the play from the viewpoint of the audience, I will stay backstage and give you a bird's-eye view of what happens behind the scenes during the play.

Finishing touches are being added at the make-up table by Ellen Blizzard. Lynell Bailey is standing by the door waiting for Marion Porter to come out so she can finish dressing him.

Johnny Homick is trying to talk Robert Gore into taking his picture. It looks as if he may succeed.

Bob Allen is pacing the floor as if he were outside the maternity ward.

Here comes Molly Williams with a shoe in one hand and a bottle of champagne (???) in the other... strange things are happening tonight.

Ellen Sumner must be having trouble with her make-up. She's been standing in front of the mirror for fifteen minutes.

Molly has just given Marion his first (???) drink out of a cream pitcher. Mike Lowrey seems to think Carnation milk will make a better chaser.

Miss Bonnie Hamilton is now in the make-up chair.

Miss Few is now making her last-minute "pep" talk to the cast. It won't be long now...

The curtain is up and "Summer and Smoke" is underway.

Bob has finally decided to sit and rest for a while... Molly is over in the corner... Ric Mandes has suddenly started pacing the floor... Glenda Smith is trying to look calm, but you can tell she is nervous.

Sylvia Gurganus, of all people, is reading William Shakespeare, of all things.

The first sound of applause brings everyone to life.

Master Homick and Miss Hamilton has just come off stage; they seem to be the only calm ones here tonight.

Bob Allen has turned make-up man. He is applying last-minute make-up to Bill Sanders. Ellen Sumner has decided this would be a good time for her to read her literature.

Most everyone has moved out behind the set. Mimi Saba takes three deep breaths before going on... Star Woodard does the same thing.

Jim Hathcock is standing in the middle of the floor admiring Molly's "black" legs... Hint to the girls: If your stockings are missing, try black tempera paint. Does real well, ask Molly.

Hey, someone! Mimi has lost her skirt!

Ellen is back at that mirror again.

Star Woodard can't dress herself, so I have to help her. Can you imagine that?

Intermission is nearing, and Sylvia, Beverly, and Lynell are getting ready to make the fast changes that will be necessary.

It really is a funny sight. Everyone running around like chickens with their heads cut off.

Diana Bair has just come off stage, and Sylvia is right behind her with a costume change coming up.

Everyone comes backstage during intermission, and there is definitely a change in the performers. They are no longer nervous because they know the play is going to be a success.

Congratulations are in order for all the members of The Masquers. From all indications, they are in for another successful year at Georgia Teachers College.

Choir, Band to Present Concert December 13

The ninety-seven voice Philharmonic Choir and sixty-piece band of Georgia Teachers College will present a concert Thursday evening, December 13.

The first half of the program will be under the direction of Dr. Ronald J. Neil with the Philharmonic Choir. It will be divided into three sections as follows:

SACRED: "Ava Maria" with solo by Joyce Ryan and Sue Whaley and Gounod's "Sanctus," with a solo by Paul Brisendine.

LIGHT: Czech folk song, "Tradi Nuka" and "Country Style."

The final selections will be two choruses from "Messiah." The accompanists for the choir will be Choyce "Doodle" Jackson and Kitty Kelly. The band will also present a program in three sections. These will include: Prayer and Dream Pantomime from Hansel and Gretel by Engelbert Humperdinck and "Second Suite for Military Band in F Major" by Gustav Holst. This later selection is written for a concert band and consists of English country folk songs. The songs include "March," "Song Without Words—I'll Love My Love," "Song of the Blacksmith," and "Fantasia on the Dargason," complete with anvil. The English Christmas song, "Green Selevs," will be included.

Kiddie Ballet by Ralph Hermann also divided into sections:

(1) Overture: Kids playing on the school grounds—school bell rings—kids run inside—grounds deserted.

(2) Baby Baptism: Great doors of church open to all—quiet organ ushers in Mother and her child to be baptised—baby cries quietly, slowly building up to loud wails—embarrassed mother picks up her baby and rushes home.

(3) Strolling the Baby Strolls: Young nurse with buggy—stops to gossip with other nurses—flirts with handsome policeman—Romance blossoms and she walks home in a happy mood—naturally she married policeman later.

(3) Lullaby for a Naughty girl:

Very modern mother sings a bluesy modern lullaby to her modern baby—baby sleeps through it all.

(5) Cops and Robbers:

All "Kid" cops and robbers gather for the baily battle on the corner lot. Policeman ushered in with great fanfare. A case occurs with the cops keeping the robbers on the run. Cops win the battle with triumph and honor.

(6) Nightmare and Finals:

Three ghostly chords introduce this nightmare—a chase beginning quietly with one boglin—and soon hundreds of scary creatures—the mother rushes in to comfort her dreaming child—the responsibility of the world to each kid—his future—guided on by the mothers of the world.

Mr. Rittenhouse Speaks to Club

Howard Rittenhouse, chief executive engineer of the Statesboro branch of the Rockwell Manufacturing Company, was speaker at the Science Club meeting last Monday night.

Mr. Rittenhouse stated that the Statesboro plant was only one of the many branches of Rockwell Corporation which has its executive offices in Pittsburgh, Penn. In discussing the plant's operation he told of the varieties and types of meters which the plant manufactures, and the difficulties involved in filling various orders.

The George Anne SPORTS

By
Britt Fayssoux
SPORTS EDITOR

The loss of Garland Campbell from the 1957 Professor basketball squad has called for some fast re-vamping in the offensive maneuvers of Coach J. B. Searce. Campbell was an outstanding all-around ball player and figured prominently in the plans of this year's quintet. The offense of the Profs had been geared to utilize the outstanding scoring ability of Campbell. He possessed one of the deadliest jump shots in the game.

Jim Long, a 6' 6" center from Richmond, Va., has been called upon to move up to the starting five for tomorrow night's opener against Stetson. Don Avery, regular center, has been moved to forward. Big Jim is a sophomore with plenty of potential, but he has no previous varsity experience under his belt. The pressure will be on Jim and his performance may hold the key to the success of this year's team.

Coach Searce considers his 1950 squad to be the best he has had in his coaching career at G.T.C. Before the tragic passing of Campbell, the coach had visions of this year's squad topping the '50 team. The new combination of Long, Avery, Corry, Wallen and Warren have had only six full practice sessions working as a team. Just how well they will work together under pressure remains to be seen.

As far as reserve power is concerned the Profs will be in good shape. Bob Belton, Chester Curry, Howard Walls, and James Denny are slated to see plenty of action in this capacity.

Last years the Profs were defeated by the "Hatters" in their opening game here. At the close of last season in the N.A.I.A. tournament we defeated Stetson and went on to represent this district in the National Tournament at Kansas City. Coach Dick Moreland's crew undoubtedly feels that they should have been playing at Kansas City and will be out to prove it tomorrow night.

An intense rivalry, and two top-notch teams, will make for some first class entertainment in the new G.T.C. gym this Saturday night. Basketball fans should plan to be there at 8 o'clock sharp.

Coach Dick Moreland of Stetson has expressed his deep regret and that of the Stetson team over the death of "Hump" Campbell. Coach Moreland stated that his boys had looked forward to playing on the same court with "Hump" again. They considered "Hump" to be one of the finest competitors and one of the best ball players they had ever met on the hardwood.

Now put it through that basket...

'Know How' Is Typical of G.T.C. Sports Faculty

Georgia Teachers College is fortunate to have for their faculty athletic committee, four gentlemen with playing and coaching backgrounds.

Mr. W. S. Hanner, the chairman, played professional baseball, and coached football at Bethel College and the the backfield at G.T.C. before the sport was dropped here in 1942. Mr. Hanner is professor and chairman of the division of exact sciences.

Dr. Fielding Dillard Russell is professor and chairman of the division of languages. Dr. Russell was captain of the boxing team at Georgia, and coached the sport at G.T.C. before World War II.

Dr. Donald F. Hackett is professor and chairman of the division of fine and practical arts. Dr. Hackett graduated from the University of Illinois where he played freshman basketball. He gained his M.E. and D. Ed. from the University of Missouri.

The newest member of the committee is Mr. Julian Aubrey Pafford, the principal of Pittman Laboratory School. Mr. Pafford graduated from Georgia Teachers College where he was a basketball regular for three years.

The Black Stallions edged out the Clodhoppers in the final playoff game on Monday afternoon by the close score of 14-13. The game was marked by long scoring plays and long gains by both clubs.

In the first quarter the Hoppers started to move as Sonny Reddish passed to Briggs Tyler for a first down and ran for another first down. However, the attack stalled on the next series of plays when Charley Head broke up a fourth down pass in the end zone intended for Billy Swan.

The Stallions struck back quickly when Head passed to Hugh Belcher for a touchdown. Mathison grabbed the extra point to put the Horses out in front 7 to 0. The touchdown was set up when Stallings took a pass and ran deep into enemy territory. The play covered approximately 50 yards.

The Clodhoppers had another drive going early in the second period but Gordon Stallings intercepted a Hopper pass to stall their progress. The Horses couldn't move and punted back to the Clodhoppers.

Reddish and Co. started another drive and this time they succeeded in scoring. Briggs Tyler out-manuevered the Stallions' defensive back and made a nice catch in the end zone for a touchdown. Then Reddish fired a pass to his end, John Sawyer, for the extra point and the score was tied 7 to 7.

With only a few seconds remaining in the first half, Head passed to Stallings for another Horses touchdown on a play that covered 60 yards. Behind good blocking, Hood scored the extra point putting the Stallions into a 14 to 7 lead at halftime.

Midway in the third period, Tyler intercepted a Stallion aerial and the Clodhoppers took over on their own 25-yard line.

Reddish promptly ran for two first downs. Then when he seemingly was trapped in his own backfield he spotted Sawyer deep downfield and passed to him for a score. But the PAT attempt was no good and the Hoppers were behind by one point, 14 to 13.

In the fourth period the Clodhoppers tried desperately to move for another score but the Stallions tightened up their defense and were successful in stopping the Hopper attack. Time ran out and the Stallions were victorious in the final playoff game.

Next week's George-Anne will present the Intramural Touch football all-star team as well as the championship team of the season.

As was reported in an earlier edition, the whole intramural program is set up on a points system. The team that has accumulated the most points will be declared the championship team. Points will be awarded for the regular season standings as well as for the playoff results. Look for your team's results in next week's paper along with the allstar team.

Here are the final standings for the regular season:

The Littlest Professor

By FURMAN BISHER

Editor's note: The following is a reprint of Furman Bisher's column in The Atlanta Constitution of November 8, 1956. It was reprinted in last year's basketball edition of The George-Anne and we are reprinting it again this year because we believe it is truly a classic portrait of G.T.C. Coach J. B. Searce.

STATESBORO, Nov. 8—In some parts of this state this is football season. Happy little boys and girls dash out into the night and shiver willingly in behalf of the home team. On a Saturday afternoon the more serious of the devotees follow Georgia or Georgia Tech to the end of the earth and dispatch rasping, worshipful shrieks, sometimes perfumed with the fragrance of sour mash, into the cold autumn air.

This type of misguided man is viewed with tolerant pity in the little suburban annex of Statesboro called Collegeboro. This fall has passed prettily and unemotionally while the students of Georgia Teachers College got ahead in their home work.

On November 1, their own particular form of insanity began. The basketball season opened.

On that particular afternoon a little fellow with Phil Ruzzuto's size: Eddie Cantor's eyes, George Gobel's hair and Charlie McCarthy's vocal chords whistled a group of young men into the new and yet undedicated $300,000 gymnasium at Collegeboro.

"Men," he said in his hoarse tones while he held up a large round object, "This is a basketball."

That's all they needed to know. They already knew of J. B. Searce, and from what they had heard of him they expected to see him dribbling a basketball around the campus wherever he went, whatever time of year. Most of them knew him intimately, for he had brought them there to play the game. He had brought them there because basketball is his business and he thought they were the best players he could get under the conditions that exist.

The conditions chiefly are that G.T.C. is a small school (of 750) students, geographically positioned out of the national basketball eye, and only until this new palace came out of the ground, unequipped to make more of its ambition. The ambition began when Searce arrived from Cumberland College of Kentucky in 1947 to coach the team.

Football Was a Budget Parasite

Then, as on November 1, he pitched his boys a round ball and a dribbling hell broke loose. It stops down here only when the weather gets too hot to live indoors.

"You play, you play and you play. That's the way you get to be a basketball player," the little coach said. "Give them a basketball and they'll play. Keep it locked up in the equipment room and they'll play something else."

They locked up the footballs at Georgia Teachers after the 1941 season. They haven't fielded an intercollegiate team since. They showed improvement in the football field. The first game the Professors ever played they lost to South Georgia 0-6. The last game they played they beat South Georgia 6-0.

They claim another football distinction. They were Miami's first opponent in the new Orange Bowl stadium back in 1937.

They were not, however, strong in financial statistics. Football grew into more of a budget parasite, and the type of schedule G.T.C. had to play gave the passing public the impression they were a junior college. When the war came and they could go quietly, they did.

After the war came Searce with his basketball project. There has been nothing quite like it on the campus since. He is a busy little machine with a pair of hot who puts G.T.C. above all else. His first basketball team won 18 and lost 5. His record here is 161-56, an average of .766, one of the best 18 in the nation.

One of his boys, a six-foot-seven bamboo strip named Chester Webb of Elberton, was all-American on the Helms Foundation team last year. He should be again this year. It never happened before to a Georgia college basketball player.

Searce has opened this basketball avenue to any boy in Georgia, big town, small town, or farm, who wants to play the game "and go somewhere."

"We have never played in the N.A.I.A. tournament in Kansas City," he said, "But we will. We've played six tournaments since I've been here and never finished worse than second. But we've never finished higher than second, either. We're going to."

"Some people think all I've got in mind is knocking off Georgia Tech. That's not it at all. I want to get them on schedule and I want to beat them, of course, but the main thing is I just want to play them. They'll beat us some, but we'll beat them some, and that's good for basketball in Georgia."

Searce came to Georgia in 1937. He grew up in Bagdad, Ky., halfway between Lexington and Louisville and the L. & N. railroad goes, where his daddy was the principal of a consolidated school. At Eastern Kentucky he was known as the smallest college basketball player in the South. He coached at Norman Junior College, then at North Georgia and left the state only for war years in the Navy and that one year at Cumberland.

When he first came to G.T.C., not more than 25 people were coming out of Statesboro to see his teams play. As they played their last in the old shoebox of a gym they're giving up, townspeople were scrambling for the 800 seats.

The little college trying to balance a football budget should drop in and watch this little family at work. "We couldn't buy our uniforms playing football," Searce said. "Playing basketball we're living pretty good and it seems to please everybody around here."

Pictured here are two of those guys that are never seen, but who play a most important part in the general condition of the team. On the left is Bobby Teasley, sophomore from Augusta, who is the team manager. On the right is Jack Miller, senior from Savannah, team trainer. Their contribution is one that cannot be literally measured.

Professors Raise High Goal In Recording Playing History

In its comparatively short history as a four-year college, G.T.C. has compiled an enviable record.

Since 1930, with a layoff during World War II, G.T.C. has won 278 games and lost 116, for an overall winning percentage of .710.

By contrast with many schools who move their coaches around like chessmen, G.T.C. has had only three head coaches since 1926.

B. L. (Crook) Smith coached from 1926-1942. George Curko coached for one year, 1946-47, when the cake sport was restarted and the incumbent, J. B. Searce Jr., came to stay in September, 1947.

Early schedules consisted largely of junior colleges, church and industrial teams, and a perennial loss to the Original New York Celtics, the famous pro team.

The 1932 team won the Georgia State Conference Basketball tournament by defeating Young Harris, 27-19, Georgia Independent College, 44-29, and edging Piedmont College in the finals, 29-22. Incidentally, this is the last tournament won by the Professors.

The same team had an interesting series with Vienna High School. This may sound like a mismatch today, but in those days Vienna was rough. In 1928 and 1929 Vienna High coached by Joe Jenkins, finished second at the national tournament in Chicago's old Stag Fieldhouse. His 1932 "Wonder Five" defeated Middle Georgia College, G.T.C., A.B.A.C., Brewton-Parker, and Georgia Tech's freshmen, among others.

In 1933 the team won 14 and lost but three, and the two leading scorers were Chester Williams (172) and Ozzie Spears (122).

I'm from Kentucky. You play basketball up there, or you run for your life. I'm so small I had to do both. It seemed to work out pretty good."

COACH J. B. SCEARCE is pictured above with his former star forward, Garland "Humpy" Campbell who was killed in the crash of Henry L. Clifton's private plane November 21, at approximately 3:25 a. m. Campbell had figured prominently in Coach Searce's plans for this year. Playing superb ball during the 1956 season, Humpy showed great promise of being a prospect for the Helms Foundation all-American team.

Death of Two G.T.C. Students Caused by Fatal Plane Crash

Garland Campbell, a student and basketball player, and Bob Fuqua, a pre-medical student, were killed early Wednesday morning, November 21, in the crash of a small plane. The plane was piloted by Henry E. Clifton of Statesboro who was also killed in the crash.

Mr. Clifton circled the plane over the Statesboro area desperately searching for the airfield. Lights from the airport were on, but the thick fog apparently prevented the plane from locating the field.

The plane crashed into a pine thicket to the rear of a house on U. S. highway 80, and immediately went into flames, charring the bodies almost beyond recognition. The occupants were identified by rings and billfolds.

Fuqua was married to a G.T.C. student, Betty Jo Brown of Fitzgerald, and Campbell was married to a former G.T.C. student, Joyce Mitchell of Garden City.

Chaperones And Dance Subjects For Committee

The regular meeting of the Standards Committee was held in November in the physical education building. The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Ellen Blizzard.

Members were given copies of a letter prepared by Dean Carroll and Dean Duncan for distribution to class and club presidents and faculty sponsors. The letter pointed out the college requirements about chaperones for Saturday night dances and stressed the obligations of host groups and chaperones toward college regulations on pages 31-34 in the T-Book. The letter requested that the names of chaperones be turned in to the dean of women by chapel time on Monday preceding the dance.

After some discussion about whether or not the letter should be extended to include off-campus activities, it was decided that some distinction should be made between recreational and educational class activities and that the proposed letter cover only Saturday night activities. During the discussion it was brought out that faculty sponsors are expected to chaperone their group's activities, but out of courtesy should be contacted by the club or class president or dance chairman. The letter was approved as presented.

The chairman brought up an item which appeared in a recent George-Anne to the effect that Cone Hall had not been cleaned up after a Saturday night dance. The group felt that this was not a general practice of groups which give the dances. One member asked if the old gym were used for church on Sunday. President Henderson stated that it is not and that groups might feel free to leave some of their cleaning up until later; however, the gym should be cleaned up by beginning of classes on Monday. The classroom should be clean as it is used by the Christian Church on Sundays.

Coach Searce explained to the committee the proposed change in student seating at the basketball games. There were several objections voiced to this plan. It was pointed out that students felt more a part of the game if they sat on the floor and that cheerleading should be difficult if the student section were in the balcony.

Mr. Searce expressed appreciation for the G.T.C. student body attitude and spirit toward guest spectators and players. He said there needs to be constant effort to keep spectators off the playing floor and Coke bottles out of the gym.

After-game dances were brought up for discussion. The group was reminded of the crowds that attended last year and the disturbances occasioned by the presence of some high school and town groups. It was believed that public announcements made at the games were largely responsible for the presence of outsiders.

The group felt that dances should not be open to all spectators at the games but only to G.T.C. students and their friends. Miss Duncan suggested that all members of the committee observe attendance and conduct at the first dance, December 1, and that this matter be given further consideration at the next meeting.

The chairman referred to the George-Anne article about line-breaking at the dining hall. All students agreed that last year's situation was beginning all over again. A motion was passed that tickets again be used to prevent line-breaking at dinner and supper. Responsibility for carrying this out was delegated to the Student Council.

March 1-2, N.A.I.A. District Tournament, here.

Due to the tragic and unexpected loss of star scorer and rebounder Garland "Humpy" Campbell, Coach J. B. Searce will count heavily on newcomers to blend with the returning veterans to give G.T.C. another successful season.

Expected to see plenty of action this coming season will be Chester Curry, a 6' 2" freshman from Wheelwright, Ky. Chester attended the same high school as co-captain Don Wallen. He will undoubtedly provide district fans with some exciting moments with his fine shooting and passing.

Perhaps the best one-hand shot on the team will be Beldy Massey. Beldy is originally from Kentucky but now makes his home in Columbus, Ga. He spent his freshman year at the University of Kentucky and entered the army immediately afterward. After his discharge from the army he transferred to Catawba College in North Carolina where he was a member of the team. This summer he transferred to G.T.C. Beldy stands 6' 6" tall is twenty-four years old and married.

James Denney, Alias "Peabody," will be another newcomer to this year's squad although he attended school here in 1953-54. Jim went to Canton High School and was an all-state center at Brewton-Parker Junior College. After the 1953-

54 season he entered the army and was discharged this past year. Jim stands 6' 4", is a senior and twenty-four years old.

The big man of the newcomers will be Ronnie Rush, a 6' 6" sophomore from Savannah. Ronnie came to G.T.C. from Commercial High School but dropped out of school at the end of his first quarter. He then entered Brewton-Parker where he also became an all-state junior college center. After he becomes eligible at the end of this quarter, Coach Searce will probably use him at forward to give the team additional rebounding strength.

Team manager, Cary Moore, figures in next year's basketball plans. Cary is a transfer student from Mercer University where he was an outstanding performer. Coach Searce decided to sit Cary out for a year since he wouldn't become eligible until February. Moore is 6' 2" tall and is an exceptionally good drive-in shot.

PSY. 201 TO TAKE TRIP

Dr. Knowlton's psychology 201 class will go to Milledgeville Wednesday, December 5, to visit the Georgia State Mental Hospital.

Departure time is 7 a. m. The group of fifty will return late Wednesday night.

GOING UP FOR THE BALL are the three tallest men on the 1956-57 squad. Ronnie Rush, 205 pounds from Savannah and 6-7, is equally matched by Jim Long, Richmond, Va. Don Avery had experience with the team last year, coming here from Brewton Parker College. Ronnie comes to the team this year from Brewton Parker. Watch these three for action. They will see plenty of it.

"For when that one great scorer comes to write against your name—He marks not whether you won or lost but how you played the game."

—Grantland Rice.

This is an appropriate testimonial to the lives of our President, Hump Campbell, and past president, Bob Fuqua. I should like to dedicate this week's article in memory of and in appreciation of the fellowship and leadership that we have enjoyed in our association with these two fellow veterans. On behalf of the Veterans Club I would like to express our heartfelt sympathy and condolences to the loved ones and friends of Bob and Hump.

Ger. Club Has Shrimp Supper

Instead of a traditional Christmas party, the German 102 class section of the G.T.C. German Club gave itself a shrimp supper affair at Martin's Pond last Tuesday evening.

Cooks from the German class included Lucy Melton, Barbara Kotal, Janell Cobb, Dorothy Payne, and Liz Morgan.

Dr. Zoltan Farkas and his daughter, Agnes, were in attendance and added to the success of the party by supplying Well, here it is! Ye olde column back in the paper after being out for the Thanksgiving holidays. Hope all you cats and kittens had a wonderful weekend stuffing turkey and bopping the blues.

Say, have any of you seen the latest in theatre? If you don't dig me it's Elvis Presley's first and only, performance in the movie of "Love Me Tender." They say that it is really great. Presley portrays the youngest of four brothers and gets involved in a triangle love affair. All you Presley fans keep watching the billboards for this movie and be sure to see it when it comes.

If any of you college students are looking for love just go to Fats Domino's "Blueberry Hill." Can't tell about you, but it sure worked for him. He is now among the top rock 'n roll singers of the nation.

Speaking of rock 'n roll, the top rock 'n roll singers around the nation today is Elvis Presley. Presley rolled over Pat Boone by two votes which means that Pat Boone holds the number two spot in the rock 'n roll field today.

Listening to the Hit Parade the top songs up-to-date are: "Love Me Tender," "Blueberry Hill," "Green Door," "Lonely Avenue," "Walking in the Rain," "Don't Be Cruel," "Someone to Love," "Love Me," and "Singing the Blues."

View of G.T.C. in Year 2000 By 'Ye Olde Time Machine'

By BOB SPELL

Greetings to all you hep-cats, and other such salutations! If you'll just hop into my gas buggy we'll take a spin. In case you didn't glimpse the sign as you entered it said "Ye Olde Time Machine." This week we're going to hop up a few years and see what G.T.C. will be like in the year 2000.

Now just relax and take a deep breath. We'll be there in a moment and I'll gladly be your personal guide around the campus. Ah, we're begining to slow down now. If you'll look out this tiny window you can see the metropolis of Statesboro. It sure has changed a lot since 1956, but it always did keep up with modern times.

Here we are at the gate. Notice that the road is completely gone and that a super plastic speedway is in its place to receive all the space ships.

If you will look to your left you will see a typical young couple strolling along using their ultracromine shoes. Those are the shoes that are self-propelling and people no longer have to tire themselves out walking around all the time. They are very simple to operate, just by flicking a button with your big toe.

Deluxe Dormitory

Now this is the place where Lewis Hall used to be. It was replaced years ago by this new super-deluxe woman's dormitory that houses over a thousand students.

Of course East and West Halls have long been out of the picture. Instead of East Hall we now see a lovely municipal bubble which covers the area formerly occupied by the administration building. Would you like to tour this building?

Please step on this rotary belt that will carry us throughout the building. On your right is the administration office where the faculty check the new students and select their courses of interest. As we turn the next corner you will see the developing lab where all of the courses are arranged.

By the way, I haven't told you yet that students do not buy books any more. When they pay their tuition they receive three pills. Each one is for a course they will take during the quarter. The pill will metabolize the ignorant sections of the brain and replace it with a thorough knowledge of the subject.

Teachers Advise

By now, you must be wondering what are teachers doing here. Well, you see, the teachers are here to show the students how to put the knowledge they have to work. Throughout time no one has ever come up to the solution to that problem.

You will notice the rotary belt is climbing. On the other floors are class rooms and experiment stations. Since our time is limited, I suggest we tour one of the dormitories.

This building is the one that was formerly Sanford and Cone halls. It has been replaced with a gigantic home for all the boys. Now if you ladies will be open minded I'm sure your feelings will not be hurt.

This room is the lounge and recreational room for the young spacemen. Most of the equipment is inside the walls and to use the material you punch one of those buttons in that panel over there.

As we pass down the hall you will notice the unusual doors. We may not see into the rooms but the doors allow whomever is inside to see out. The same thing applies to the wall that faces the outside of the building. I bet you are wondering why there aren't any windows here. The building is electrically controlled so that the proper temperature and air freshness is maintained at all times.

Robot Does Work

Each room is equipped with an automatic robot that shines shoes, cleans the room, and does other jobs that we find so tiresome back in our time.

Ye gads, look at the time! We've got to rush or the time machine will return to our century without us. We can't stay here because this is not our age. The people we have seen here haven't seen us because we do not belong in the year 2000.

Let's see, are we all present and accounted for? Okay, I'm going to press this button that will take us back home. No doubt you're all saying that we were born in the wrong era, but we have a lot of advantages that they don't have. And do you know one thing they are still trying to get approved? The student center!

Cast of 'Summer and Smoke' Commended for Performance

By JANE WILLIAMS

Diana Bair's "air-swallowing" performance in "Summer and Smoke" was excellent. She portrayed Miss Alma, a strait-laced, neurotic spinster tormented by the age-old love for John Buchanan, roguish degenerate son of the local doctor.

The role of John Buchanan was played by Mike Lowery. He displayed beautifully the emotions of a confused young man sunk in demoralization, and the sudden transformation of character. He was, however, a much better sinner than saint.

Star Woodard was delightful as the naive daughter of the town's 'fille de joie'. One would hesitate to say that Molly Williams, as Miss Alma's mad mother, "stole" every scene in which she appeared. Miss Williams simply, by her very presence on the stage, took command of what seemed to be rightfully hers. Hers was a superb performance.

The staging for the play was most impressive. The sets were beautifully done, and the effect, with the lighting, was very good.

Orchids to Miss Dorothy Few for her splendid direction!

Little Theatre To Present Play On December 6

The Statesboro Little Theatre will present a three act comedy, "The Women," in the G.T.C. auditorium next Thursday night, December 6, at 8:15 p. m. Admission for students is 50 cents.

The play has been produced as a successful Broadway production, motion picture, and TV hit. It is the story of a young woman's trip on the rocky road to Reno and of her "friends" and their advice and examples. A hilarious satire on the affairs of women, the play was written by Clare Boothe Luce, wife of the publisher of "Life" and "Time."

Of interest to students will be the appearance of Mary Henderson as Mrs. Stephen Haines, the woman on the way to Reno; Mrs. J. Brantley Sr., as the slightly inebriated Countess de Lage; Miss Frieda Gernant as Nancy, the witty and intellectual authoress; Mrs. Roy Powell as the jealous Swedish cook; Margaret Ann Dekle as Crystal Allen, the "other woman"; Sue Whaley as Peggy, the innocent young bride; Virginia Morrison as the cynical Miriam. Other students having parts are Jean Holmes, Barbara Williams, Bobby Butler, Ann Waters, Jean Hightower, Judith Rittenhouse, Martha Haun, Jan Epps, Martha Rawls Parrish, Joyce Rahn Durham, Barbara Faulk, Miss Betty Lane and Miss Jane Martin are appearing in minor roles.

Broucek, Hooley Concert Artists

Jack Broucek and Daniel Hooley, duo-pianists, were assisting artists for the concert by the Savannah Symphony Orchestra, given in Savannah Wednesday evening, November 28, at 8:30 p. m.

Broucek and Hooley, associate professors of music at G.T.C., have presented duo-piano recitals at this college since they first formed the two-piano team three years ago.

This is the second appearance of the musicians in Savannah, the first coming last year when they appeared before the state convention of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

'Aid to Hungarians' Drive Goes Off Very Successfully

G.T.C. students have shown their appreciation for the freedom-seeking Hungarians by going all out in the current campaign to "Aid the Hungarians."

Spurred on by a special committee of sympathetic students from the International Relations Club the social science department in general, the student body donated nearly 100 pounds of clothing for the homeless refugees during the first two days of the drive. Monetary collections during this time totaled around $50 for these two days.

According to the committee, which is headed by Pete O'Milian, there has been wonderful response from everyone, and the sponsoring group hopes many students who have not already donated something will take the opportunity this weekend to round up some old, warm clothes for the freedom fighters.

The campaign to collect clothing and money was originally scheduled to end this Friday, however, a number of students forgot about the movement in the excitement of the holidays, and requested another chance to bring clothes from home, so the deadline has been moved up to next Monday.

Large cardboard boxes have been placed in the lobby of each dorm for the clothes, while Robert Gore, Jack Godfrey, and Joan East are going all over campus collecting money for the people who are being given credit by some political experts for fighting our

All students are urged to make every effort to cooperate with the current drive.

Industrial Arts Club Builds Toy Horses for Stocking Fund

The Industrial Arts Club held its most productive meeting last Tuesday, November 27. To begin with there was a short business meeting followed by a wiener roast using the forge fire back of the I.A. building.

Then, working in a true Christian spirit, the fifteen members present joined together in a mass production assembly line to turn out toys. With some of them sawing, some boring holes, and some filing, about forty-five stick hobby horses were the result. The object in building these horses is to create an empty stocking fund for needy children in the Statesboro area. They will be turned over to a civic organization in town for distribution. The I.A. Club wishes to express its appreciation to Webb's Cabinet Shop for the donation of the needed materials.

Also, the club asks that if anyone who has any old or discarded toys, or if they know where they can get some, they are urged to contact some I.A. member. These toys will be re-finished and repaired and also added to the stocking fund.

The I.A. extends a cordial invitation to any interested students, whether I.A. majors or not, to unite with the organization.

Spell's Design To Grace Cover

A Christmas design by Bob Spell was selected by a faculty committee last week for the cover of the Alumni Quarterly. Designs were submitted by the two-dimensional design class. Other ranking cover designs were by Mrs. Lorene V. Clower, Ronnie Clark, and Pat Harkleroad.

Hi fellow students,

It seems like ages since I've written a column and so much has happened since then that it seems that I have heaps of gossip to tell you.

Everyone else may have had a holiday, but I think cupid must have worked overtime the past weekend. First I'll tell you the ones that are going steady. Jane Jackson is wearing the class ring of Aubrey Highsmith. Sandra Glisson is going steady with a boy from her home town, Claxton, Kitty Wingate is wearing the engagement ring given by "her" Jimmy who is attending Gordon Military Academy. It seems that these home-town boys are really on the ball 'cause Sally Ruark received a diamond from her boy friend in Macon. I'm glad to see that two boys on campus aren't letting the hometown boys get ahead of them. Ninivols Craft presented Billie Kitchens with a beautiful sparkler during the holidays. Also Wilma Ricketson was given a diamond by Cecil Hanner. And Sara Cunnard announced that she became Mrs. Britt Fayssoux in September. Congratulations and best wishes to all of you. And a reminder to all the girls who weren't quite so lucky this time—only thirty-one more shopping days before leap year is over!

This has really been a busy week, hasn't it. It seemed that all the teachers wanted term papers, and reports, and outside readings and then got in the mood for giving tests.

Miss Few's prediction about the play was right. I'm sure everyone enjoyed the production and we feel very proud of the Masquers. I'd like to say a word of appreciation for the stage crew, and those who worked in that line. The actors were wonderful but the play couldn't have gone without the "workers behind the scenes."

And Saturday night is that long awaited ball game! I hope that you will all be there to cheer our team on to victory and I also hope you will remember that the coach asked us not to clutter up our section of the gym with coats and things that take up unnecessary room.

Saturday the F.T.A. district workshop is being held on campus and all students who are interested are invited to attend. The general session begins at 9:30 in the auditorium of the Marvin Pittman School.

Also the play, "The Women," produced by the Statesboro Little Theatre will be presented December 6 in McCroan Auditorium. Be sure and make plans to attend. I'll be seeing you around.
