OVER HALF CENTURY OF SERVICE WHERE NEEDED THURSDAY, JULY 26, 1962

DEPT. STORE SHOPPERS

Shoppers this fall will find prices in items found in department stores mostly unchanged from the fall of 1961. Stocks which are being bought and have been bought for fall indicate, with some certainty, the same prices as last year.

There are a few exceptions to the general trend, especially in women's coats and leather goods. These items will probably be slightly up. Men's wear, suits, and coats will be approximately the same price with no increase. An increase is expected in the spring.

Last fall, the department stores enjoyed a high volume of sales, approximately five per cent over the fall of 1960. This year, they expect another rise of about two or three per cent, even though many of the stores have reduced their stock orders by about ten per cent.

Inventories will then be slightly down, though sales are expected to be slightly above last year. Many of the same items which department stores retail are also retained by discounters. Discounters are reported purchasing much more aggressively than are the department stores.

Although this phase of our economy does not affect other industries directly, it has a very direct relationship with the general public. Many times, these sales will reflect the health of our economy.

A SLAVERY NOTE

This is the anniversary of the second year of the War Between the States and much is being written and said about that tragic area in American history. Realizing that the war is over and that the North won, we nevertheless feel that the American people are mature enough to get the truth in a straight dose — a hundred years later, at least.

Along with the notion that the war was fought to free the slaves — a high-sounding piece of fiction, many Americans have been taught to believe that Abraham Lincoln's proclamation freed Negro slaves. The truth is that Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation was a shrewd piece of propaganda and public relations, which freed no slaves — or practically none. The reason for this is that Lincoln didn't free the slaves held in the United States. He only announced that he was freeing them in the Confederate States and there he had little control.

The war was not fought to free the slaves. It had many causes, one basic cause being the fear of the South of being trampled under by the rapidly expanding, industrializing North and another being the radical behavior of extremists in both sections, and others.

But the basic and underlying thing that brought about the war was the convictions among approximately half the nation's constitutional scholars that a state could secede from the Union. The Southern States thought they had the right. Other States, such as Massachusetts, had also, earlier in the century, threatened to secede. The war was fought over this constitutional question, and it decided it.

Yellow Gold — Better Than Last Year

By Charles E. Hooper
In many south Georgia communities, an air of optimism prevails. The harvest of "yellow gold" promises to be better than ever.

For beginning this week, the 1962 leaf season will begin. Warehouses will be opening and sons of the soil, as well as growers, will hear the strange, rhythmic chants of the tobacco auctioneers in Virginia, Florida, Georgia, and elsewhere.

It is strictly a community affair — festive and colorful with parades, beauty contests, street dances and naturally this summer picnic.

Plans are being made for a county next fall; B. R. Olliff is secretary of the organization; fair will be open October 24th and run five days.

Party from Statesboro visited Cuba during the week included Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Preston, Jr., J. Franklin and son, A. J. C. P. Olliff, F. D. Olliff, E. A. Bran and L. T. Denmark.

Carl Smith, 22-year-old son of R. M. Smith, Leefield farmer, met death in an automobile accident Saturday night; Lennie Lee and Frank Richardson were slightly hurt.

Social items: The White Away Club met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Orville McElenore.

Mrs. Grace Parker entertained Monday evening with two tables of rock complementary to Miss Belle Parker, of Millen. — Mrs. Grover Brannen entertained Tuesday morning in honor of Mr. E. K. DeLoach, of Columbia, S. C.

PRAYER Our God and Father, take away from us all that is not in accordance with Thy will. Let us put self away, as we bend to Thy will for us. Strengthen us for the right, we ask in Jesus's name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

By expressing Christ's love to others, we strengthen the kingdom within them and ourselves.

THURSDAY, JULY 26

Read Luke 17:11-21

The kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. (Romans 14:17.)

When I visited the elderly woman in a ward of a county hospital, I was rewarded by the love of these people who were shut in.

Many of the old people would pull me down to kiss me, since words seemed so inadequate. The families of some, I learned, had grown tired of visiting them. I realized anew that faith and works must go together to bring the kingdom of God into my own life and into the lives of others.

When we share the load that others bear, we find our own burdens are lifted. We represent Christ, and He never turns away from anyone in need. Nor should we.

As physical exercise develops strong muscles, so our work for God increases our spiritual power. We grow in wisdom, and our prayers are the genuine pleading.

Cast your vote where it counts, for Dr. Winston E. Burdine, physician, lawyer, businessman and civic worker. His "Prescription for Progress" means better educational systems, higher teacher pay, and more junior colleges, improvement of our prison system with rehabilitation as our goal, and improved care of our mentally ill. It'll be a better Georgia with Dr. Burdine as Lt. Governor working on his "Prescription for Progress" for Georgia.

News and Advertising of Special Interest to the Farmers

Farm News

County Agent

National Farm Safety Week

July 22 thru 28 is National Farm Safety Week. This is the 10th annual Farm Safety Week sponsored by the National Safety Council and the United States Department of Agriculture and is endorsed by all leading farm organizations.

The purpose of this week is to draw attention to the year-round farm accident prevention program.

The theme for this year's National Farm Safety Week is "Family Safety — at Work and Play."

Make your plans now to check into your every day activities to see if you are following the correct procedures to insure safety on your place.

Cattle Herd Infertility

If you follow good management practices you can help avoid infertility in your cattle herd. The nutrition phase should be examined very carefully.

The calves should be fed and handled so that they grow properly, are well developed, and free from disease.

Summer Hog Prices

Lower supplies of pork caused by a smaller pig crop will cause summer prices to reach levels at most equal to those of July and August of last year, provided stocks are not dumped too suddenly.

This is the latest we have on the hog price situation from Paul Bunce, Outlook Information Specialist with the Extension Service in Athens.

The sharpest drop in fall is expected around September. This will be due to the increase in spring farrowings in February, March and April.

After the September drop the prices should level out through the end of the year and remain at profitable levels for hogs raised under good management conditions.

Stored Grain Fumigation

To kill the various insect pests in stored grain you need to fumigate the grain in storage.

This fumigation kills the insects that are present but does not protect the grain from reinfestation. Therefore, grain should be inspected frequently to determine if and when additional fumigation are necessary.

Corn must be shocked and shelled in order to be fumigated effectively. The top surface of the grain should be level and not closer than six inches to the ceiling of the storage area.

For the proper fumigant and its use contact my office.

Farm Facts

Thirty years ago the average hen in the United States laid 121 eggs per year. Today the average is 206 eggs. Although the number of laying hens and pullets has been declining, the total output has been increasing. It now exceeds 63 billion annually.

In 1945, egg production totaled more than 56 billion from 349,430,000 hens and pullets. By 1959, the number of hens and pullets had declined to 303,262,000 but their production totaled more than 63 billion eggs valued at more than $1.6 billion.

In some less fortunate countries of the world, an egg is a rarity on the family menu. In the United States, however, civilian consumption is better than an egg a day, not counting Sundays. It amounted to 334 eggs per person in 1960.

A strong Griffin man who takes and gives many a ribbing in the campaign for governor told me a few days ago then he'll go along with all the good-natured joking, but he believes some few are carrying things too far when they tear down signs of candidates.

He pointed out that those large signs and stickers cost money and they are put up in an effort to attract as many voters as possible.
