Pittman Park Church observes first birthday

Pittman Park Methodist Church, meeting at the Marvin Pittman School on the campus of Georgia Teachers College, will observe its first anniversary on Sunday, June 16.

Special effort will be made to get every member of the church to the Sunday School hour at 9:45 a. m. and to both worship services, 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. The pastor, the Rev. L. E. Houston Jr., will preach at the morning worship on the topic "Let the Church Be the Church." At the 8 p. m. service his sermon topic will be "Forward March."

Following the morning service at 12:45 p. m., the congregation will move to the picnic grounds behind the old gymnasium for a delicious "dinner on the ground." If the weather is inclement the dinner will be held in the gymnasium. The church will also provide paper plates and cups.

Families are asked to bring a basket dinner and to participate in this time of Christian fellowship. Every member and friend of Pittman Park Methodist Church is urged to be present at this celebration of the first anniversary.

Plans for construction of the new church building are well advanced. The new church will be completed in the early fall and construction is being in the late fall or the first of the year.

Byron Dyer...

Other county in the United States.

Born in Carroll County in 1906, Dyer finished high school at the Fourth Congressional District A and M School in 1924. After attending Bowdoin College for two years, he transferred to the University of Georgia and graduated with the bachelor of science in agriculture degree in 1930. Two years later he received the masters degree in agriculture from the university.

Dyer had brief experience as agricultural college editor at Clemson College and the University of Georgia's College of Agriculture before becoming a county agent.

He came to Bulloch County in 1932, as special county agent in community development work. Except for a few months as emergency agricultural assistant in Franklin County, Dyer has continued to service agriculture in Bulloch.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Maude Gay Jones of Statesboro; two daughters, Mrs. Johnnie Shaw of Statesboro, and Miss Corine Jones of Savannah; three sons, J. Charles Jones of Statesboro, S. L. Jones of Statesboro, and M. L. Jones of Norfolk, Va.; ten grandchildren; and will ordain several other young clergymen in the same service.

No money could be expended by the authority except upon the recommendation of the commodity committee upon which the charges are collected. Members of the commodity committee must be producers of the given commodity in question.

Commodity program proposals and objectives would be presented to producers in advance of the referendum.

Any commodity program, even after a two-thirds majority vote, would go before producer vote again for consideration of continuance after three years of operation. If less than two-thirds of those voting approved, the authority would cease to collect funds for continuation of the commodity's program three months after the referendum.

Any producer dissatisfied with such charges has a right to demand and receive from the authority a refund of such assessments. The demand for refund must be in writing to the authority within 30 days from date of assessment.

No member of the authority or commodity committee would receive any salary, only expenses and per diem when actually engaged in performance of duties. The authority may retain up to 10 per cent of all funds collected for administration expenses.

ROBERT GARRISON

Bob Garrison at Youngblood's

Curtis Youngblood announced this week that Robert (Bob) Garrison has been added to his staff at the Curtis Youngblood Company on West Main Street and will be in charge of appliance, TV and radio service.

Mr. Garrison comes here with more than eight years training and experience. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Garrison of Waycross. After finishing school at Folklton he entered the Navy in 1949 and of his four years service he spent two in Japan and Korea and two in California where he attended the Navy's school in electronics. After his discharge in 1953 he worked two years in Folklton as an electrical contractor. Then for two years he was in St. Marys and came to Statesboro this evening, June 25.

The meeting will be held at 7:45 o'clock in the social room of the church. All members are invited to attend.

Congressman Preston denounces Civil Rights bill before the House

The Russian mode of government is being imitated in the United States when it is considered that the House of Representatives is not sponsored by a subversive group or organization, but by the President of the United States and the Republican administration which heads it, Preston declared.

"You men and women of this Congress know full well that the enforcement of the sweeping provisions of this so-called Civil Rights bill will require a horde of bureaucrats and Federal police to ferret out every infraction of this proposed law," Preston continued. "Under whatever name this force may be designated, its functions will inevitably be that of secret police."

For greater service

It was bound to happen and we should have become reconciled to it long ago.

A county agent with abilities possessed by Byron Dyer is needed for wider fields and we could not hope to keep him here when his services could benefit a greater area.

His service to the farmers and to the businessmen of the county have been inestimable. His record over the years he has served is without equal in Georgia agriculture.

And now he carries his knowledge, his love for the land and its people, his enthusiasm for youth into wider fields that others might have the benefit that accrue with his service.

And we need not mourn too much his advancement—for Statesboro and Bulloch County are included in the Southeast district in which he will serve after July 1. We'll be seeing and hearing the "ole hammer knocker" from time to time.

And he knows that he'll always find the "welcome home" sign out when he comes.

To promote U. S. 301

Back in 1923 an association known as the South Atlantic Coastal Highway Association was organized to promote the highway from Richmond, Virginia, to Jacksonville, Florida. This was later to become the Tobacco Trail Association, and now is the U. S. 301 Association.

The prime purpose of this association was to attract and promote travel along this primary highway along which traffic moves north and south. It is today U. S. 301—The Highway of Southern Hospitality.

Today it connects Baltimore, Maryland, and Sarasota, Florida. Authorities tell us that it carries more traffic north and south through Georgia than any other primary highway in the state.

And today, because of the intense competition along these north and south highways, the U. S. 301 Association is devoting a great deal of effort to entice tourists to use the Highway of Southern Hospitality.

At a recent meeting of the association its members elected Ralph White its president.

They could not have named a more enthusiastic nor more capable man to this important position. Their communities along 301 can know that they will be well represented in promoting their interests.

Just as dead

It comes as a sort of surprise to us.

We have fallen for the line that speed is the greatest killer on our highways and byways.

Now comes evidence from the Georgia Highway Patrol that drunk drivers caused more crashes on Georgia's highways than speeders in the first three months of this year.

The Patrol investigated 7,866 wrecks during the first quarter of 1957. Driving under the influence was blamed for 755 and speeding for 613. Passing on a hill accounted for 82, on a curve for 132, and other improper passing, insufficient clearance, for 578 wrecks. There were 106 people killed in the 7,866 wrecks during the period. And they are just as dead, killed by speeders or by drunk drivers.

Congratulations to all

This week we're not going to use our hat for tossing purposes—we're just going to say "congratulations"! Hat-tossing is not quite dignified enough in this case.

This is for those young men and women from Statesboro and Bulloch County who graduated from college and their parents who furnished them the where-with-all to complete their four years of college.

So it's "Congratulations" to: Loy A. (Si) Waters Jr., William Lee Woodrum, Shirley Anna Lanier Daughtry, Jane Beaver, Charles Crisp Brannen, Robert F. Donaldson, John Brannen Purser, Carolyn Elizabeth Blackburn, Mary Jon Johnston Branch, all who graduated at the University of Georgia in Athens on June 10.

To Philip Edward Morris, Frederick Dyer, Oscar Williams Simmons and Robert C. Stockdale, who graduated at Georgia Tech on June 8.

And to Fielding Russell Jr. who graduated at the Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur on June 10.

And to Jerry Fletcher who graduated at Emory University on June 7.

And to Marian Allyn Culpepper who graduated at G.S.C.W. on June 2.

If there are others we have omitted in these congratulations, it is not deliberate, but because we have no information on them—but to them too we say congratulations.

It was a great day for those young people and their parents and husbands and wives.

May it mean all they hope it means for them all.

Happy birthday!

We're a bit late in saying "Happy Birthday" but non-the-less we say it with just as much sincerity.

Not many of us are granted the extreme privilege of living that long to see time stretched out over ninety years.

So we join her family and friends in wishing her a very, very "Happy Birthday!"

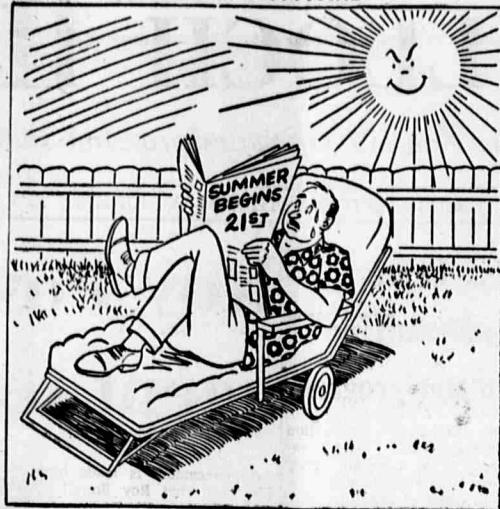

A wise action

Parents whose children's birthdays come between December 1 and December 23 are to enter school for the first time will welcome a recent action by the County Board of Education.

At its June 4 meeting the board adopted a resolution which means that a child who will be six years old before December 23 may enter the first grade at the opening of school in September before.

Formerly a child whose birthday came after December 1 had to wait until the following September to enter the first grade.

NOW IT'S OFFICIAL

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

We admire a man who never gives up. Little that way ourself.

However there are those who call such a trait just plain dumb stubbornness. What brings this up is Bealy Smith of Atlanta is still looking for a bell off one of the old locomotives of the Savannah and Statesboro Railway which made the run from Statesboro to Cuyler by way of Pretoria, Grinnshaw, Brooklet, Arcola, Hilton, Hubert, Ivanhoe, Eldora and Blitchton.

BEALY'S FATHER, the late Mr. D. C. Smith, was connected with the S & S for a long time and Bealy remembers the happiest days of his youth aboard the old engine, riding in the cabs, atop the freight cars, stretched out on the red plush cushions in the day coach, in the baggage car and in the old camp car. Or he's still engaged off a boy to want something connected with that happy boyhood.

From time to time, from our Uneasy Chair, we have made efforts to help him locate one of those old bells, but with no success.

RECENTLY BEALY renewed his quest for a bell off of Old 5709. He has established communications with Mr. Charles E. Fisher, president of the Railway and Locomotive Historical Society at the Baker Library, Harvard Business School, in Boston.

Mr. Fisher suggests that Bealy return to Statesboro and go up and down the old railroad right of way and talk to the old timers and the people who worked on the old S & S.

And so now comes a letter from Bealy pleading with us to renew our efforts to help him find one of those old locomotive bells.

Meditation for This Week

By THE REV. TED PAGE

FOLLOWERS OF GOD

"Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children." Eph. 5:1.

The word Paul used for "followers" is, literally, "imitators."

We are to try to imitate God, though not in all His infinite attributes, for His "being, wisdom, power" are out of our range. But some measure of His holiness, justice, goodness, and truth is possible for us, and we are urged to try for that mark. We shall not hit it squarely, but with the provision which has been made for a steady aim we ought not to be too far off center.

WE HAVE CHRIST. Knowing Christ, we can know what God is like, for His Son is the "brightest of his glory" and the "express image of his person." God in Christ we can gladly and hopefully strive to imitate.

Paul makes this still more natural and right when he adds, "as dear children." What more natural and right than for children to imitate a parent?

If Charles Evans Hughes had tried to imitate Charlie Chaplin, or vice versa, that would have been ridiculous. But if Hughes' son and Charles' son were to imitate their respective fathers, it wouldn't be ridiculous at all—nor at all surprising. Paul puts the duty of Divine imitation upon a wholly natural basis, as God's children. God is our Father, His life in us. We are made in His image.

PAUL IS WISE enough to know that all successful imitation depends upon perfection in details. So he goes on to enjoin sympathy, compassion, tenderness of heart.

The sacrifice of parents for children is a beautiful thing, but there is something more beautiful than that. It is when the child lives the rich treasure which has poured into theirs through the years, "as we have done so much for me, and for so long. From now on I shall do everything I can for you."

Which things are a parable. "Be ye therefore followers of God as dear children."

Praise Him for His grace and favor.

Praise Him, still the same forever.

Praise Him, still the same forever.

Praise Him, still the same forever.

Praise Him, still the same forever.

It Seems to Me...

max lockwood

The following is taken from a speech Mr. Lockwood made before the Statesboro Rotary Club. He is a resident of Statesboro and is a member of the club.

In the spring of 1948 I made my first appearance before the Statesboro Rotary Club. As a member of the club, I was a part of the first group in this community to make a first interest in bringing to this community the values found in community recreation.

You as a group, made the first financial contribution to this new idea. From your own pockets you brought forth 500 dollars as a cash investment in this new program.

Since that date I've felt close to the members of this club. I have felt a sense of deep appreciation for the things you have meant and for the things you still mean to this community.

LITTLE DID you realize in the spring of 1948 that you were making a contribution and an investment in an idea that has become a part of the life of this community.

Out of this program have come men like Everett Williams who have seen for themselves the true values of community recreation. This quick coverage of the true values of community recreation has been shown the group on the radio.

Controlling garden insects with the liberal use of insecticides like rotenone and malathion was discussed generally at the two meetings last week, as well as the methods employed to control ants.

ANT CONTROL PROBLEM. Efforts to control ants should be made outside the home. In indoor ant problems originate in the yard. The most complete and long lasting control will result from the use of baiting.

Broadcast one pound of 10 per cent chlordane granules or one pound of 5 per cent dieldrin granules per 1,000 square feet. The granules can be broadcast by hand if rubber gloves are used or they can be applied with a lawn seeder. However, the insecticide should be watered in to the lawn and allowed to dry before permitting children to play on it.

The granular forms of these insecticides are available in shaker-top containers that make spot applications to ant hills and trails convenient.

Dusts containing 3 to 10 per cent chlordane or one to one and one-half per cent of dieldrin may also be used in the control of ants in the yard. Dusts are very good for use on rock walls, trash piles, ledges and areas where dusts can be blown in. Sprays may also be used for these same type areas.

Oil-base household type sprays containing 2 to 3 per cent chlordane or one-half per cent of dieldrin are most satisfactory for use inside homes. These solutions are ready for use as purchased and should not be diluted. The application of these solutions leaves an invisible residue which will kill ants that contact it for several weeks or longer after treatment.

The oil solutions can be applied with an ordinary household sprayer. Poison syrups and baits will sometimes control ants but usually will not give the quick and effective that can be obtained with chlordane and dieldrin.

THE BULLOCH HERALD

Soil Conservation Service By E. T. "RED" MULLIS

We are happy to welcome Bulloch County Mr. Lawrence Allmon from Newton, Mr. Allmon will be in Bulloch County as a student trainee from the University of Georgia this summer as he was last summer. Lawrence will be a senior at Georgia next year and his training in the field in soil and water conservation during the summer will give him meaning to his formal training for engineering at the University. We are indeed happy to have Lawrence back with us for the summer.

Mr. B. B. Deal of Clito has done an excellent job of sodding his natural waterway to receive water from his parallel terracing system. Mr. Deal used perennials bahia grass and annual lespedeza with plenty of fertilizer which gave him a quick coverage along with native grasses and weeds. This quick coverage is the secret to good waterway protection, and Mr. Deal found the secret.

Mr. John Hungerford, agronomist with the Soil Conservation Service from Tilton, was in Bulloch County last week and we discovered something very unusual on Henry Bilch's farm in the Westside community. In a big field where fields of common bermuda and a small area of perennials bahia grass had been for ten or twelve years corn was growing very rapidly. The outstanding thing was the contrast between the corn behind common bermuda and corn behind bahia grass.

The corn behind bahia grass was as high and much greener than behind bermuda. One thing may have had some influence on this. Oats have been used in the bermuda over the years and not on the bahia.

Ogeechee July 4 picnic is put on optional basis for family units

The July 4 annual picnic for the Ogeechee Farm Bureau is on an optional basis. Roy Kelly, president for George H. Miller Tuesday night at the Ogeechee meeting, announced that Mr. and Mrs. Carter Deal had invited the group to hold their annual July 4 picnic at Williams Landing. However, the group was not sure if they wanted an organized picnic. Several of the members had made previous plans.

Mr. Kelly then advised the group to go on down in family units and get together if they so desire for a day of fun and play. The group will not hold an organized meeting in July. The Sinkhole group will hold their regular meeting July 11 as in the past.

Warlock chapter did not meet for the summer.

Most of the programs at Ogeechee and Sinkhole were devoted to a series of slides on rose gardens and how to grow the leading varieties adapted to this area. Disease and insect control were also discussed.

Controlling garden insects with the liberal use of insecticides like rotenone and malathion was discussed generally at the two meetings last week, as well as the methods employed to control ants.

ANT CONTROL PROBLEM. Efforts to control ants should be made outside the home. In indoor ant problems originate in the yard. The most complete and long lasting control will result from the use of baiting.

Broadcast one pound of 10 per cent chlordane granules or one pound of 5 per cent dieldrin granules per 1,000 square feet. The granules can be broadcast by hand if rubber gloves are used or they can be applied with a lawn seeder. However, the insecticide should be watered in to the lawn and allowed to dry before permitting children to play on it.

The granular forms of these insecticides are available in shaker-top containers that make spot applications to ant hills and trails convenient.

Dusts containing 3 to 10 per cent chlordane or one to one and one-half per cent of dieldrin may also be used in the control of ants in the yard. Dusts are very good for use on rock walls, trash piles, ledges and areas where dusts can be blown in. Sprays may also be used for these same type areas.
