Purpose of education: intellectual training

SENATOR HERMAN TALMADGE's report from Washington in last week's Bulloch Herald must have given his readers a jolt.

It must have come as a shock to the parents of the twenty-eight young men certified by Senator Talmadge to take the Civil Service examination given them as appointees to West Point, the Naval Academy and the Air Force Academy to learn that their sons had failed to score passing grades.

And there must have been little satisfaction to the parents of the seven who did make a passing score but that none posted scores higher than 75.

Of the thirty-five taking the examination only thirteen made more than 60 and eleven averaged less than 50. Of the twenty-six competing for nomination to the Air Force Academy only two passed algebra and only ten passed the part on vocabulary.

These parents' only consolation, if consolation there can be, is that sons of parents in most of the other states in the nation did no better.

One of our friends was in our office last week and asked "What can be done on the local level to bring about a change in our educational system which is based on what has come to be known as 'progressive education'?"

"We don't know" was our answer. But an answer must be found and not only on the local level, but on the national level as well.

All over the nation, people are asking:

"What's wrong with U. S. public schools? What can be done to improve America's schools?"

Recently U. S. News and World Report, a magazine with national circulation and nation-wide acceptance as authoritative, asked Dr. Arthur Bestor, professor of history at the University of Illinois, "What Went Wrong With U. S. Schools?"

His answers make these points:

There has been a growing concern over the storage of several thousands of tons of ammonium nitrate in the tobacco warehouse on South Zetterow Avenue, across the street from the Recreation Center.

This concern is based upon a sensational explosion in Texas City, Texas, not long ago and made the subject of a feature spread in the Saturday Evening Post.

Many citizens here are asking "could that happen here?" That question was put to our mayor, W. A. Bowen.

Mayor Bowen stated that the possibility of an explosion of the stored ammonium nitrate here is about as remote as the explosion of any bulk gas storage plant in Statesboro.

Before permission was granted for the storing of this material the City Council made a thorough investigation of the possibilities of danger attached to it. He was assured by the city manager's office and the fire chief of the City of Savannah that, properly stored, there is no danger. Mr. Lucius Vaughn, fire marshal of the state of Georgia, of Atlanta, was in "Soft" courses tend to replace hard training in science and mathematics. Brilliant students, lured by mediocre pupils, have little incentive to learn. In training teachers, too much emphasis is given to "tricks of the trade," too little to the subjects taught.

Dr. Bestor concludes that U. S. educational standards are low. Children are not encouraged to work hard. Schools abound in "easy" courses. Teachers themselves, often are poorly educated. He suggests that citizens all over ask the following questions of their school principals or their superintendents:

1. How many graduates of the local high school last spring had completed five years of physics?
2. How many had completed four years of chemistry?
3. How many had taken one year of astronomy?
4. How many had taken five years of biology?
5. How many had completed ten years of mathematics through trigonometry?
6. How many had completed five years of foreign language?

He further suggests that every school board and every P.T.A. this year make one single project their special order of business: "To scrutinize your school's curriculum and standards to see whether they meet the stern demands of the era we are entering."

It is bound to come about, but if we must come about pretty soon if we are to maintain our position as a world leader. We must insist upon the mastery of reading writing and arithmetic, before the child gets to junior high school.

The study of science, or mathematics beyond arithmetic, of history, languages, and other basic subjects demands a foundation in reading, writing and arithmetic. We must move away from the "life-adjustment education" idea and return to the main purpose of education—intellectual training.

BIRTHDAY MESSAGE...

This Week's Meditation

By The Rev. L. E. Houston Jr.

CHARACTER FOR SCIENCE

I WANT an audience with the President. I have never had one. In fact, I have never laid eyes on a man elected as head of these United States of America. (I did skip classes in the Seminary once to hear a candidate who was a sure winner, that is, until the results were announced.)

I want an interview with the President, for only three days ago I read that he is insisting that the greatest task of education today is to train more scientists.

NO ONE WANTS to see scientific progress more than I, or the rest of our intelligent, patriotic people, but in our over-anxiousness to match the Russian Sputnik and pull ahead in the missile race, we are forgetting our primary need.

Edward J. Meeman, editor of the Memphis Press-Scimitar, in a recent article, "For victory, we need more than science. We need to have something not available to the Soviets—something great, something powerful. It is our religion. It is our free democracy, which is the flowering and fruit of our religion."

AND DAVID LAWRENCE wrote in the January 24 issue of the U. S. News and World Report: "The deadliest weapon of today is not more metal and liquid. It is the human hand that triggers the 'Sputnik' of war."

Man can find his way to his own redemption... only through moral force.

While we are appropriating more money to convert schoolrooms into science laboratories, we should also provide for the development of character. For without character to control our space-age accomplishments, we may well be on the road to oblivion.

MR. PRESIDENT, let's not turn all our classrooms into laboratories without appropriating both men and money for the development of character. We need such respect for humanity, love for all God's children, and an unselfish spirit that issues in a willingness to share with those who are less fortunate than we. It's true that Thomas A. Edison said: "What man's mind cannot do, I just want to be sure!" But, I want man's character can invent, man's character can

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

TO THE CASUAL visitor in the county court room during a court week here it seems there are a lot of people in the county with nothing to do. Inquiry would reveal, however, that most of them are citizens who have been called to jury duty and are sitting quietly waiting to be called to serve on a jury to try a case in court. Contrary to appearances every juror there has plenty to do, but he put it aside to fulfill his duty to the community when called upon to serve as a juror at $6 per day.

And the juror who has been called and who is considering the time he is losing from his work in which they lawyers who practice law in our court here have nothing to do.

And to the uninitiated in court practices, lawyers seem to be mean and deliberately cruel in the manner in which they question witnesses, and they are confused when they see opposing lawyers on a case completely friendly between cases. It's all part of a system designed to mete out justice and the surprising thing about the system is that, despite all appearances, it works out pretty well.

We believe that every citizen in our community should serve at least one time on a jury. It would be revealing and would generate a new feeling of respect for our jury system as practiced in our democracy.

THE LOCAL post office is now on a twenty-four hour day. That doesn't mean that the postal employees are working twenty-four hours, but does mean that the lobby of the post office is always open. Postmaster Reppard DeLoach believes that this is a service which the people of our community appreciate. Now, if he could get the postmaster general customers might buy stamps in Washington to give him one of those automatic stamp vending machines so that his customers might buy stamps after the stamp window closes and the people would use them. We see many tourists come into the post office after hours to find they can't buy stamps to mail a letter back home or to friends. Many citizens who get to the post office too late to buy stamps at the window would be pleased with an automatic stamp vending service.

BUSTER BOWEN is as happy as a kid at Christmas time with a new toy. Buster has a new machine which he is showing off to his friends and of which he is very proud.

Called the "Unipress" it is the homemaker's answer to the back-breaking chore of ironing husbands' shirts. Buster says, "pushing a heavy iron miles up and down the ironing board is no fun..." and all homemakers will agree.

The "Unipress" is in four units and begins the operation of "ironing" a man's shirt from the damp stage through the folded stage, entirely without friction and by live steam. It is fascinating to watch "Unipress" as it presses the sleeves, the collars and cuffs and the front and back yoke, then folds and puts a paper band around it. The finished shirt is clean, crisp and smooth. It is delivered in a polyphene reusable bag.

IN RECENT weeks many of you have asked me the question, just what is being done in Bulloch County to develop our civil defense program? I am happy to report to you through this column that a sound and workable program of defense is in the making and 1958 should bring with it a final solution to most of the problems which face us.

Already on file and approved by the Board of Defense is our plan of defense. This plan has been developed over a period of months and is now on file with the Department of Civil Defense in Atlanta. It is a plan which coordinates all of our available facilities in order that we may achieve a maximum of good in the event of any emergency, natural or war caused.

YOUR SERVICE chiefs such as fire, police, health, warden service and all the others have been named. These leaders have received appointments and have all accepted these places of responsibility.

An advisory council is now in the process of being named. Responsible leaders from all walks of life are being carefully selected to help guide our defense program. These leaders will meet this month to discuss the plans and to help us strengthen the program where it is needed most, in the training field. This is at least a beginning in a most important program and by comparison the city of Macon has a defense budget of only $2,000. The catch here is that most of the larger cities use money from the general fund to support their matching funds program in which the city pays half and the federal government pays half.

A CIVIL DEFENSE program is only as good as the support which is given it by the people. It is designed to support, I am pleased to report, as your director of civil defense for Statesboro and Bulloch County, which has been made our person who has been unable to serve. Their reason was a most valid one and the appointment was withdrawn by the defense council.

We are still in the development stage of a sound program of defense. This development is gradual, well planned and will be able to do the job when the time comes. Don't think that because we haven't made a big noise about our defense program that we don't have one. This is far from the truth. Just remember the old saying, "Still water runs deep."

When you are called on to carry your share of the load, accept your civil duty for you will be a part of a fine organization and your community will be a safer place to live as a result of it.

YOUR CITY and county governments have established a budget for defense. This is a joint operation with your city and county leaders working together for the common good. The budget is small, only $500 for 1958, but your civil defense leaders will use these funds to strengthen the program where it is needed most, in the training field. of Macon has a defense budget of only $2,000. The catch here is that most of the larger cities use money from the general fund to support their matching funds program in which the city pays half and the federal government pays half.

Herman Talmadge Reports From Washington

THE CALLOUS disregard of bureaucratic Washington for the plight of the American taxpayer was disgustingly demonstrated the night after President Eisenhower submitted his record-breaking peace-time budget of $73.9 billion to Congress.

In the fashion of Nero's fiddling while Rome burned, officials and employees of the White House and Budget Bureau pitched a big party at one of the Capital City's swankiest hotels to celebrate what the society columnists so decorously chose to term "the budget."

Not only did the President's message impart the bad news that the country is going into the red this fiscal year but also presented the distinct probability that such would be the case during the next fiscal year should Congress appropriate all the money requested and the nation's economy continue its present downward trend.

It is essential to our national safety that further outlays be made for the development of missiles and the maintenance of superiority of the Strategic Air Command, but it is equally essential that those funds be provided within the limitation of present income.

A CAREFUL STUDY of the proposed budget convinces me that it can be cut at least $4 billion without reducing defense requests by one cent or curtailing a single essential program of national benefit. This, I feel, can be accomplished by cutting foreign aid to $1 billion for military assistance to dependable allies and applying a 6 per cent across-the-board slash to the proposed budget.

THE FIRST Session of the 85th Congress cut non-defense budgets from two to 31.4 per cent without any resultant curtailment of service. It stands to reason such can be done again.

We must face the stark economic fact that if we succumb to the current pressures for further deficit spending, the savings, income policies, bank accounts and retirement programs of all Americans—which already have been reduced 50 per cent in 1958—will be further eroded by deficit financing since 1939—are going to be further eroded and threatened with complete liquidation.

Grand Jury Presentments

Bulloch Superior Court January Term, 1958

We, the Grand Jury, chosen and sworn to serve at the January Term, 1958, of Bulloch Superior Court, beg to submit the following recommendations and presentments:

1. School Superintendent H. P. Womack made a report on the county school system; and a delegation from the Board of Education appeared and discussed immediately needed facilities at white and colored schools and the financial problem of providing them. It was determined that approximately $70,000 above presently available funds is needed in this connection. The Grand Jury recommends that the Board of Education of Bulloch County furnish immediately needed facilities through an additional tax levy of three mills for the years 1958 and 1959, and while the Grand Jury believes this will solve the most pressing needs at this time, it recognizes that there may be other needs in the future.

2. Miss Hattie Powell, clerk Superior Court, appeared before our body and discussed the salary of the deputy clerks and assistants in the clerk's office and we recommend that the representatives of Bulloch money requests of all non-defense agencies.

The First Session of the 85th Congress cut non-defense budgets from two to 31.4 per cent without any resultant curtailment of service. It stands to reason such can be done again.

Denmark Sewing Club holds meeting with Mrs. Wilbur McElveen

The members of the Denmark Sewing Club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wilbur McElveen with Mrs. O. E. Royals as co-hostesses.

The president, Mrs. R. L. Roberts, presided over the business meeting. This being the first meeting of the year, new officers were elected by a nominating committee as follows: president, Mrs. Kelly Williams; vice president, Mrs. H. H. Zetterow; secretary, Mrs. E. W. DeLoach and treasurer, Mrs. R. P. Miller.

Contests were enjoyed in which prizes were given, after which dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses with a red and white color scheme being used. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Uleus Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Cloyce Martin and Tew were Friday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Cromley at Brooklet.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Newton of Savannah visited Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ginn during the weekend.

Dr. C. R. Jordan, entomologist, Agricultural Extension Service, says in 1919-20 an outbreak of the spruce budworm destroyed the 40-year supply of pulpwood, based on the rate of use at that time.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Zetterow and Linda visited Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Royals at Brooklet Saturday evening.

Delores Davis was a patient at the Bulloch County Hospital during the week, having had her tonsils removed.

Miss Annette Fields of Savannah spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Griffin.

MRS. GROOVER ENTERTAINS AKINS-GROOVER REHEARSAL PARTY

Mrs. W. A. Groover of Stillson, mother of the groom, entertained members of the wedding party at Hodge Party House on Savannah Avenue. The guests were met by Mrs. Groover, Mrs. Jesse Akins, the bride's mother, and were directed to their places by Mrs. Francis Groover. They were seated at a T-shaped table with the bride and groom seated at the head of the table.

The table covered in white linen was centered with a miniature bride and groom with a lovely arrangement of blue and white flowers furnishing dainty bridal buffet.

Mrs. Billy Rushing, while visiting in Statesboro, entertained Miss Etta Ann Akins at morning coffee at the home of

Etta Ann Akins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Akins, the bride's mother, was married to Wilson Page Groover of Jesup and Bulloch County, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Groover of Stillson, at an afternoon ceremony on January 26 at the Statesboro Primitive Baptist Church. Elder T. R. Scott officiated before a background of Westwardia ferns interspersed with burning tapers, with spiral candles grouped on each side. A sunburst arrangement of white mums and snapdragons centered the altar, flanked by seven-branched candelabra holding white cathedral tapers. Reserved pews were marked with white satin bows.

Mrs. W. S. Hanner, organist, played the wedding music and accompanied the soloists, Mrs. Arnold Anderson Jr. of Aiken, S. C., as she sang "Because" and "O Mystery of Life," and Paul Brisenidine who sang "Prayer Perfect" at the conclusion of the vows.

The usher-groomsmen were Jappy Akins, brother of the bride; Francis Groover, brother of the groom; M. L. Miller and Clifford Parks of Essex. Clifford Groover served as the bride's best man.

Miss Jewel Hart was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Mary Miller, Mrs. Ray Mitchell of Savannah, Miss Beverly Brannen of Statesboro and Augusta, and Mrs. Francis Groover. They wore powder blue tulle dresses, cocktail length, fashioned on princess lines with full skirts. They carried fan-shaped bouquets of Better Times roses tied with Better Times ribbons. They wore contour bandeaux of Better Times tulle.

The bride, entering with her father who gave her in marriage, was lovely in her wedding gown of white satin with long train and long sleeves. The gown was accented by a large silver tray, string beads, and a cascade of pearls. The floor-length skirt was accented by a large satin bow in the back with loops of satin gracefully draped. MRS. GORDON FRANKLIN FETTED AT MISCELLANEOUS TEA

Mrs. Ellis's Tea House on Park Avenue was the scene Saturday afternoon, January 26, of a lovely miscellaneous tea as Miss Linda Cason, Sylvia Zetterbauer, Jane Richardson of Atlanta, Mrs. H. L. Akins, and Mrs. Homer Cason entertained in honor of Mrs. Gordon Franklin of Athens, who was before her marriage on January 17, Miss Ann Cason.

The tea house was beautifully decorated with house plants and camellias. Mrs. Homer Cason met the guests and Mrs. Henry Blitch introduced them to the receiving line, composed of Mrs. Doris Cason, mother of the bride, Mrs. Franklin, honoree, who was radiantly lovely in a pale blue dress, and Mrs. J. E. Grover, hostess. Mrs. J. E. Grover, hostess, was seated at the head of the table. The guests were seated at a T-shaped table with the bride and groom seated at the head of the table.

Guests were seated at a T-shaped table with the bride and groom seated at the head of the table. The guests were met by Mrs. Groover, Mrs. Jesse Akins, the bride's mother, and were directed to their places by Mrs. Francis Groover. They were seated at a T-shaped table with the bride and groom seated at the head of the table.

The bride, entering with her father who gave her in marriage, was lovely in her wedding gown of white satin with long train and long sleeves. The gown was accented by a large silver tray, string beads, and a cascade of pearls. The floor-length skirt was accented by a large satin bow in the back with loops of satin gracefully draped. Her finger-ring veil of illusion fell from a pearl-encrusted cap. She carried a cascade bouquet of orchids and valley lilies.

The bride's mother wore a teal blue costume suit with matching accessories. Mrs. Groover, mother of the groom, wore a beige print crepe. Both wore gardenia corsages.

Mr. and Mrs. Groover left for Florida during the afternoon, the bride traveling in a blue and white cotton tweed suit with matching accessories.

They will make their home in Jesup where they are both employed by the Agricultural Extension Service. The bride is assistant home demonstration agent in Wayne County and Mr. Groover is assistant county agent in Wayne County.

Babytantes

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Davis announce the birth of a son, Ted Lewis, on January 5, Mrs. Davis was formerly Miss Fostine Akins.

An interesting article was read about the life and death of Mr. Donald Cavilla, who died Nov. 21, 1957, at the age of 108 years, at the Bethany Home for Men at Millen.

The hostess served Russian tea and ginger bread. Those present were Mrs. J. L. Zetterbauer, president, Mrs. J. R. Blackburn, Miss Julia Carmichael, Miss Lenora Hogarth, Mrs. J. B. Everett, Mrs. Della Palmer, Mrs. Wiley Mikel, Miss Dell Ellis, Mrs. J. D. Fletcher, Miss Blanche Bradley, Mrs. F. C. Parker Sr. and Miss May Kennedy.

On Saturday evening, January 18, Mrs. E. L. Akins, Miss Penny Allen, Mrs. George King and Mrs. Sudie Lee Fulford of Swainsboro entertained at a dinner party at Mrs. Bryant's private dining room honoring Miss Etta Ann Akins and Mr. Wilson Groover who were married Sunday, January 26.

The table was centered with snapdragons and white chrysanthemums in a silver bowl.

The guests were Miss Akins, Mr. Groover, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Groover, Mr. and Mrs. Bucky Akins, Miss Charlotte Blitch, and Paul Brisenidine. Miss Ada Lee Fulford, Swainsboro; Jappy Akins and M. L. Miller. The gift to the bride was Rev. Cook's ware.

Farm Bureau Farm Bureau holds annual meet: all county officers are reelected

The annual meeting of the Bulloch County Farm Bureau was held Monday night at the Marvin Pittman School auditorium with President W. C. Hodges presiding.

The group was entertained by Mary Alice Belcher, playing the accordion, Jessie Lou Clark, singing two numbers, Betty Jo Brannen's dancing, and the "Belcher Quartet," singing two numbers. This group of young people took part in talent and queen contests sponsored by the Farm Bureau last year, and furnished outstanding entertainment at local Farm Bureau meetings, county meetings and state convention.

A financial report of the past year's activities was given by Mr. C. M. Cowart, secretary and treasurer of the Farm Bureau, and the state convention report was given by Mr. J. H. Wyatt, vice president. Mr. C. M. Cowart presented the membership report of each community chapter, and commended local officers for the fine work done in 1957. Mr. Hodges also presented the 4-H scholarship to Johnny Dekke for his outstanding 4-H work.

All county Farm Bureau officers were re-elected for 1958 and includes: president, W. C. Hodges; vice president, J. H. Wyatt; secretary and treasurer, C. M. Cowart; and chairman of Farm Bureau Women, Miss Henrietta Hall.

Extension agronomists J. R. Johnson, P. J. Bergeaux, and W. H. Sell of the University of Georgia College of Agriculture, presented an interesting program on soil testing, fertilization and liming, and gave a report that Bulloch County farmers in 1956.

WARNOCK FARM BUREAU MEETS

The members of the Warnock Farm Bureau held a special meeting of the group Wednesday night to discuss plans for a proposed community house, and to elect Farm Bureau officers for the year. A delicious barbecue supper was served by a special committee in charge of the program.

Mr. Ben Smith presented a proposed plan for a new community house, and announced that Mr. Joe Hodges has offered a one-half acre lot for a building site. The group voted unanimously to accept the generous offer Mr. Hodges

1958 outlook for livestock

HERE is the 1958 outlook for livestock and livestock products. This column concludes a series on the 1958 agricultural outlook prepared with information from Extension Economists S. J. Brannen and J. J. Lancaster.

HOGS: Plenty of feed will help push hog production in 1958 above that of 1957. Prices for the first half of the year should be about equal to 1957 prices. But as pigs from a seven to eight per cent larger spring crop hit the market prices are likely to drop sharply and remain below '57 levels in late '58.

Any increase in pigs farrowed for sale after August should be approached with caution. Despite prospects for relatively low feed prices, profits from hog feeding will be slim in late 1958. Things worth trying are: (1) Farrowing more pigs per litter, (2) save more of the pigs that are born, (3) get the maximum out of grains fed by giving pigs adequate mineral supplement, and (4) control parasites and diseases.

BEEF CATTLE: Fewer cattle will be slaughtered in 1958 and prices for cattle generally will be better than in recent years. However, an abundance of feed can be expected to slow down and perhaps cut short the present downswing in cattle numbers.

Cattle feeding profits should be about average as lower feed costs and higher prices for fed cattle will offset higher prices for feeder cattle.

The brighter outlook for the next two or three years could lead to keen competition for animals to boost herds as was the case from 1949-51. It may be well to remember the sharp price decline which followed as the calf crops from these herds came to slaughter.

DAIRYING: Increasing production per cow is pushing milk production to new record levels each year despite declining dairy cow numbers. Prices farmers receive for milk are favorable in relation to prices for other farm products. This can be expected to stimulate dairymen to push production per cow further upward. It will also encourage expanding herd size and other farmers to enter dairying where not prohibited by market re-

Palate TO GEORGIA COUNTIES

Bulloch County

HOME OF INDUSTRY, FARMS
HOST TO HUNTERS TOO

Bulloch county, one of the largest counties in the state, was named for Archibald Bulloch who came to Georgia in 1733 and purchased a plantation on the Savannah River. Bulloch, a courageous fighter who opposed the British rule, served as president of the Provincial Congress of Georgia before the Declaration of Independence. Statesboro, established as the county seat in 1803, is the home of Georgia Teachers College. Bulloch county also has wide-spread agricultural interest and is well known to sportsmen for its abundance of wild life including deer, duck, quail, and so on.

In progressive Bulloch county and throughout Georgia, the United States Brewers Foundation works constantly to assure the sale of beer and ale under pleasant, orderly conditions. Believing that strict law enforcement serves the best interest of the people of Georgia, the Foundation stresses close cooperation with the Armed Forces, law enforcement and governing officials in its continuing "self-regulation" program.
