Southern Democrats ask, 'What shall I do?'

Democrats in Statesboro, Bulloch County, Georgia and the South are wrestling with their consciences, seeking the right way to go between now and including election day on November 8.

With John Kennedy nominated for president and Lyndon Johnson nominated for vice president and both pledging support for an unacceptable to us, so-called Civil Rights plank in the democratic platform, there is bound to be a great deal of personal soul-searching for the answer to the question, "What shall I do?"

How can we accept a platform plank which infers that we in the South exclusively are guilty of the violation of the assurance of "equal access for all Americans to all areas of community life, including voting booths, school-rooms, jobs, housing and public facilities."

We concur with the minority report which was presented to the Convention by James H. Gray, chairman of the Georgia delegation, before the adoption of the platform on Tuesday night, July 12 in Los Angeles, in which it was set forth that the states in the South "... have been subjected to even conceivable harassment in the field of civil rights at the instigation of well-organized pressure groups residing for the most part in States that have not favored the candidates for the

This sort of civil rights plank will lead us down the road to a super-state which is contrary to our interpretation of what a Democracy is and should be.

We abhor that kind of democracy which creates and sustains and says that big government alone has the all wisdom and compassion to deal with all our problems, ignoring private institutions and private enterprise, personal initiative and private will.

The final paragraph of the minority report says:

"In all our considerations, let us remember this one thing about our presence in history: That the essential conditions of America's swift development and unusual progress has been freedom — freedom to make social choices, freedom to promote our economy, freedom to elect our rulers. Freedom made America great, and that freedom gets its initial thrust and energy from the flexible and unregulated interplay of personal vitalities. Efforts to suppress this proper function inevitably produce the moral tensions, disorders and confusions in mounting crescendo today."

Yes, Democrats all over our South are wondering, "What shall I do?" come November 8.

There'll be a lot of fishing done on that day, no doubt.

The higher the fewer

Does anyone doubt that the higher the price of anything, the fewer the people who can afford it, and therefore the smaller number that will be sold?

Does anyone doubt that the less sold, the fewer the jobs needed to make it?

Therefore, when union leaders and workers refuse a guarantee to increase efficient production to the best of their ability and enough to pay for any increased wage demanded, they are deliberately reducing the number of American jobs—and they know it.

Wage negotiation can be very simple, effective, fair—if they are honest.

Are we forgetting our home folks?

We have before us two news stories, one from the Christian Science Monitor and the other from Baton Rouge (La) States Times. Both go to some length to deride handling of tourists along U.S. 301 and U.S. 17 through Georgia. They deplore the treatment tourists get at the hands of county sheriffs and deputies when caught in a "speed trap."

We know where the traps are and the Georgia Department of Commerce and the Georgia Department of Public Safety know where they are. And the traveling public has been warned.

We also know that the entire state of Georgia has to accept responsibility and must suffer the consequences attached to these isolated "speed traps."

Now we have been as loud in our protest as the next one about the operation of these speed traps. Realizing the economic impact that the business of tourism has upon our community and every other community along these heavily traveled highways we have pleaded for cordial relations with the tourists.

But we just wonder if, in our preoccupation with the business of pleasant relations with the tourists, we have not forgotten the business of pleasant relations with our hometown folk who are forced to use our streets which are also segments of these tourist routes?

We suggest that our city fathers make a serious study of the traffic situation in our city and determine how it affects our home folk.

Statesboro is a city in which a lot of people make their home — not just a stopping place for tourist where they should be made comfortable and happy that they'll spend money here. That's desirable, of course. But there exists a responsibility to make the people of Statesboro and Bulloch County happy too.

Let's work at it.

The Walkers are safe

According to an announcement made Monday by the Board of World Missions Methodist missionaries from Georgia have all been safely evacuated from the Republic of Congo. The Atlanta Methodist Information Office lists Mr. and Mrs. David E. Walker and their three children of Statesboro as among the Georgians who had been evacuated. It does not say what date they were evacuated but did say that "wives and children were evacuated first, followed several days later by their husbands."

The Board added that the escaping missionaries reported that none of them were harmed or molested in any way. Neither was there any hostility or property damage to any Methodist property.

In our "Uneasy Chair" on this page we have a letter which Mrs. Walker wrote to her mother, Mrs. Mamie Lou Bondurant of Statesboro, on June 30, Independence Day in the Congo.

In the light of the fast developments in the new Republic of Congo, Mr. and Mrs. Walker's friends and Mrs. Bondurant's friends are happy to have later word that the Walkers are safe.

FIND THE PRESIDENT

By LAWRENCE E. HOUSTON JR.

THE SERVICE of Holy Communion was in progress. As the minister, I was serving the elements of the bread and the wine when I spied my youngest daughter kneeling beside her mother. Needless to say, she was taking it all in with that bright-eyed curiosity of a four-year-old.

As I approached her, she caught my eye and vigorously shook her head. I ignored her. Then, as I passed the trays in front of her, she whispered to me: "Daddy, I don't like that." A word to the wise being sufficient, I passed her by. After I had dismissed the group with prayer, I realized my youngest daughter was not happy. Her hand was pressed firmly across her eyes as she followed her mother back to the pew.

I DISMISSED the incident from my mind, but as I opened the front door to the parsonage, there Becky stood, and I knew she had not immediately, in a flood of tears, she poured out her heart with her father.

"Daddy," she cried, "I don't like that wafer, but I wanted something to drink." Then I knew—The communion wafer was tasteless to her, but the grape juice would have been quite refreshing so close to the noon hour.

THE SACRILEGIOUS aspect of this incident fades away before a mounting spiritual application. The service of Holy Communion is not to be taken lightly. It is not to be understood as a "sweet and sentimental remembrance of Jesus." It is meaningful to us only as we acknowledge His grip upon our lives. This means we become involved in the heart of the faith, and not simply superficially.

Not a few of us shrink from the austere demands of the Christian faith. It is a rather shocking experience to learn that the Cross is not just a nice symbol, but a stark reality — not only for Jesus, but for us who follow Him. We cannot receive the Holy Communion without recognizing the heart of our faith to be a cross.

TO IDENTIFY ourselves with Christ means the possibility of a life of loneliness, rejection, misunderstanding, and ridicule. It means the possibility of suffering for what one believes. It means, among other things, living a life of struggle and of intense toil.

This we must remember—The literature of hope has come out of the environment of suffering, while the literature of pessimism has been born in times of comfort and prosperity.

IT IS NOT a wayward thought that someone should draw back from the elements of the Holy Communion. Those elements mean identity with the crucified Christ. Such identity could be unpleasant but redemptive!

Alcoholics have little curiosity about AA or anything else which might interfere with drinking. They seek the company of drinking friends in all the haunts from the home and cocktail lounge to the bar. But they draw the line at the Alcoholics Anonymous meeting. They are not only not curious about it, they are not willing to go to it until there is within them some little desire to stop drinking.

Even then they may feel shame and may lack the small amount of humility necessary to walk in the front door of the AA club room. The typical alcoholic, having been arrested for beating his wife or disturbing the peace in a bar, will stride proudly out of the jail and down the alley to the AA rear entrance. Once inside his first anxious query may be, "Are you sure nobody's gonna find out I was here?"

An alcoholic characteristic such as this may seem strange to well-adjusted people. It appears at best illogical; at the worst insane. Actually, it is a reaction resulting from the thinking which distorts or completely ignores the truth. An AA Step implies that this is insanity. Openly it is called dishonesty. Honestly, ruthless honesty, is necessary for sobriety. Because of this the Alcoholics Anonymous preamble formerly stated: "The only requirement for membership is an honest desire to stop drinking."

After years of experience which resulted in a better understanding of the thought process in the alcoholic mind, this word "honest" was deleted by the General Service Conference of AA. It now reads: "The only requirement for membership is a desire to stop drinking."

the editor's uneasy chair

The following is a letter from Mrs. David Walker, the former Miss Dorothy Kennedy, daughter of Mrs. Mamie Lou Bondurant. She and her husband are Methodist missionaries in the Congo. It was written June 30, which was Independence Day in the Congo. Rioting, killings, and turmoil followed and there was great concern for Mr. and Mrs. Walker. A short wave radio report was sent to Mrs. Bondurant last week which reported that the Mr. and Mrs. Walker and children were safe.

We believe the letter Mrs. Walker wrote to her mother has local interest and we have permission to use it here.

Independence Day Wembo Nyama, Via Lusambo Province du Kasai Republic du Congo June 30, 1960

Dear Mother and Ben

The day dawned cool and foggy like most other dry season days in Congo.

It was like the day before was and like the day after would be. The same rooster crowed, the same goats bleated, the same babies cried. The people awakened and came out. They looked at the palms which towered over the mud and thatch houses. In this peace of a new day it seemed strange that nothing was different, for this was Independence Day.

FOR EIGHTY YEARS they had lived in a colony of Belgium. Today their country joined with the man of Africa who have declared their independence. Today they were a part of the new Congo Republic.

What did we expect? During the past year and a half, as the Congo raced toward independence, many have thought all would be well on this day—that wealth and happiness would be showered down. Others feared disorder, revenge and bloodshed. The two neighboring Belgian families moved to the larger state post at Katakomb. The missionaries stayed at their posts. Stephen, our six-year-old, had wanted to know if he could see independence. We explained why he could not, yet I believe we did see it in the joy on people's faces and in the spirit in which our people accepted their independence.

ANY CELEBRATION calls for a feast here. This one was special. The missionaries were invited for the first time. At noon the drums called the people together. Each family came with its own dishes and "food" (rice and cassava greens). First hot tea and lots of milk and sugar were served. Dottie Gilbert and Dot worked with two African women on that. Papa Ndjula was in charge of the leaders. Drums called the people to church to thank God for their independence and to pray for their country and its leaders and to pray for peace all over the world. Each person was asked to give one franc (two cents) offering for the work of the Congo Protestant Council. Pierre Shaumba, one of the Methodist ministers, has recently been selected the first African Secretary-General of the organization whose work is so vital in this country. The people were most generous in their offering and the service was almost unanimously attended at Wembo Nyama.

THE CITIZEN can exercise an influence upon political affairs by not voting as well as by voting. In some instances, abstentions from voting may become more meaningful than votes themselves. For one thing, an obvious absence of votes rules out the prospect that any politician or party can legitimately lay claim to "a mandate from the people."

For another, it signifies the existence of a substantial body of public opinion which is not only uncommitted, but manifestly unconvinced. The very silence of non-voting citizens makes them a force to be reckoned with. What often is described as apathy may in fact be political linealness—a state which can be ended abruptly by the presentation of an acceptable program.

THE "GET OUT THE VOTE" promoters make a great thing out of the high percentage of voting which characterizes a number of countries other than the United States. They point reproachfully to America's low incidence of voting in contrast with that in England, Belgium, Switzerland, they usually omit reference to extraordinarily high percentage of voting in dictatorships, where everyone votes, but no one has a choice.

That matter of "choice" is the secret of America's success in popular government. The American is free to choose from among candidates and among causes, and if he finds none worthy of his endorsement, he is free to withhold his vote until the matter of choice becomes politically available.

In short, he can vote not only as he pleases, but if he pleases.

THE CONSERVATIVES who sought so futilely to arouse grassroots support in 1956 for T. Coleman Andrews as a third-party candidate failed in their attempt, but they did leave a footnote to political history with this slogan: "A vote for the lesser of two evils is still a vote for evil."

Miss Zona Cone honored at parties here

Miss Zona Cone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Cone, who reside in London, after ending a long career of teaching in the United States, home of her forefathers and is now residing in Savannah. Last week, while visiting her cousin, Miss Constance Cone, she was entertained at parties.

On Monday, June 11, Mrs. Harry Cone invited all of the relatives, to attend a lovely party at her home on North Main Street, honoring Miss Cone.

Mrs. Cone's home was exceptionally attractive with summer flowers. A crisp white organza cloth over a rose print table cover added charm to the refreshment table. Mrs. Cone served puffs filled with chicken salad, date tartlets, cucumber sandwiches, petit fours, green and pink mints, nuts and punch.

Mrs. Frances Brown assisted in serving.

Invited to meet Miss Cone were Miss Constance Cone, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. R. (Bob) Richardson, was honored on her third birthday, Wednesday afternoon, July 13, with an out door supper given by her mother at the home of her grandparents, Commander and Mrs. A. M. Gullege.

The big table was covered with a festive birthday cloth decorated with flowers, ribbons, balloons and party hats. The guests were served chocolate sundaes, miniature birthday cakes, salted nuts and punch. The birthday cake was decorated in white, pink and green with a doll in the center, and three candles.

Teresa was adorable in a blue crepe organza dress with white embroidered pinaflore.

Those winning prizes in games were Lynne Johnson, Wendell James, Matt Bohler, Mrs. W. E. Cobb, Mrs. J. H. Parties begin for Miss Nesmith

On last Thursday afternoon the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Hudson H. Goddard was the scene of a lovely "Brides Party" complimenting Miss Judy Nesmith, a popular bride-elect. The hostesses were Mrs. Goddard and her daughter Carol. Mixed summer and potluck parties were beautifully arranged throughout the home.

The most unique of the many games played during the afternoon was the "brides veil" made by teams of two girls who were given sheets of white tissue paper and pins. One was the seamstress and the other the model for fitting the garment. A prize was given to Penny Trappnell and Janell Rushing for the most beautifully made veil. Each guest was reminded to bring a favorite recipe for the Brides Cook Book.

Parties begin for Miss Nesmith

On last Thursday afternoon the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Hudson H. Goddard was the scene of a lovely "Brides Party" complimenting Miss Judy Nesmith, a popular bride-elect. The hostesses were Mrs. Goddard and her daughter Carol. Mixed summer and potluck parties were beautifully arranged throughout the home.

The most unique of the many games played during the afternoon was the "brides veil" made by teams of two girls who were given sheets of white tissue paper and pins. One was the seamstress and the other the model for fitting the garment. A prize was given to Penny Trappnell and Janell Rushing for the most beautifully made veil. Each guest was reminded to bring a favorite recipe for the Brides Cook Book.

The honoree was recognized by a lovely appointed golden chair in which she was seated by the hostess upon arrival.

The honoree chose for this occasion a white soiree dress with a large pin tucked collar, front fitting waist with full swirling skirt. Her corsage was of red roses to match her accessories.

The color scheme was green and white which was used in the invitations, favors and refreshments. The favors were white miniature wedding bells tied with green ribbon and groom written in green. In keeping with the color scheme lime sherbert, fruit bars and assorted nuts were served.

The honoree was presented a china salad plate in her chosen pattern. Those invited were Mary Kent Gillenwater, Ruth Gillenwater, Jimmie Lou Lanier, Penny Sue Trappnell, Walter Lou Lanier, Donnie Anderson, Janell Rushing, Dolores Aycock, Pat Moore, Anne Cromley, Sandra Nesmith, Mary Alice Belser, Shirley Jenkins, Mrs. Bobby Martin, Mrs. Charlie Deal and Mrs. Walton Nesmith.

Individual tables adorned with magnolia blooms, candles and foliage were set up at intervals over the lawn, for the meal to be served. A long spacious table was in the center lighted with hurricane lamps to give balance to the unique scene.

Maude White takes part in 10-day workshop

What are the foundations of the growing personality and behavior of a child which enables him to become the kind of person who can function successfully as a free citizen in a democratic society? What characteristics and attitudes should adults strive for in their particular roles of helping to build these foundations in the child? These and many other questions were studied in the ten day workshop in Greensboro, N. C., which a Bulloch Countyman had the honor and privilege of attending.

Miss Maude White, visiting teacher for the Bulloch County Schools, was invited, with all expenses paid, to participate in the Regional Leadership Training Workshop for Parent-Educators in Greensboro, N. C., from July 5 to July 15. The workshop was sponsored by the Institute for Child and Family Development of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, with the aid of a grant from the Ford Foundation.

The basic materials and procedures used in the workshop were those developed by the Parent Education Project at the University of Chicago. Miss Ethel Kavin of the University of Chicago, director of the Parent Education Project, was one of the consultants in the Greensboro Workshop.

There were twelve Southern states represented with Miss White and Mrs. Selma T. Richardson, director of Nursery Schools at Atlanta, representing Georgia in the Workshop.

The topics for study during the ten days were "Feelings of Security and Adequacy," "Understanding of Self and Others," "Democratic Values and Goals," "Problem-Solving Attitudes and Methods," "Self Discipline, Responsibility and Freedom," and "Constructive Attitudes Toward Change."

The Workshop participants were adults of all ages, occupations, and educational backgrounds, who are interested in helping children to become mature, responsible citizens, able to function in and maintaining a free, democratic society. The program was designed for study, discussion groups in which parents, teachers, visiting teachers and others interested in children participate.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Jennings and small daughter, Harriet of Gainesville, Ga., spent several days last week with Mrs. Jennings' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Smith, Dr. and Mrs. Jennings left Thursday for St. Simons where they will be at the Cloister for their first anniversary of their marriage. This is a sentimental journey for the couple. Little Harriet will remain with her grandparents.

The guests were entertained on the patio which is bordered with gorgeous caladiums. The porch chairs and tables are white wrought iron and with the decorative arrangements of day lilies, daisies, marigolds and zinnias, it was a charming party scene. Coke, chicken salad sandwiches, potato chips, and sweet cookies were served on wicker trays or baskets.

Her guests were Mrs. Gerald Groover, Mrs. Talmadge Ramsey, Mrs. Curtis Lane, Mrs. Donald Hackett, Mrs. Weldon Dupree, Mrs. Robert Lanier, Mrs. Stothard Deal, Mrs. Jack Wynne, Mrs. Julian Hodges, Mrs. Frank Hook, Mrs. Charles Olliff Jr., Dr. Helen Deal, Mrs. John Van Horn, Mrs. F. C. Parker Jr., Mrs. Mary Watson, Mrs. Jim Sikes, Mrs. John L. Jackson, the honoree, Mrs. Kitchens, and her mother, Mrs. J. C. Gray.

The guests were served chicken salad in timbales, pineapple and cream cheese sandwiches and Danish coffee cake, and coffee.

Betty's friends invited were Mrs. William Akers, Mrs. Tommy Powell, Mrs. Leon Thompson, Mrs. Dan Munn, Mrs. Jimmy Morris, Mrs. Buck Akers, Mrs. Charles Hendrix, Mrs. Henry S. Chenault, Mrs. M. R. Satcher, Mrs. Roger Holland Jr., Mrs. Orren Brannen, Mrs. Gene Burgamy, Mrs. Ray Mitchell, Miss George Anne Prather, Mrs. John E. Jones, Mrs. H. P. Jones Jr., Misses Bonnie and Willette Woodcock, Mrs. Ed Echols, Mrs. Isaac Bunce, Mrs. Lester Brannen Jr. and Mrs. Bill Olliff.

Mrs. Don Russell entertains for Mrs. Olan McCoy

Mrs. Don Russell was hostess at her home on East Jones Avenue Saturday with an afternoon tea honoring Mrs. Olan McCoy a recent bride, formerly Miss Shirley Ann Kent of Nashville, Georgia.

Mrs. Robble Dean Allen met the guests and introduced them to Shirley who was very attractive in a dress of white eyelet with pink ribbon entwined in the waistline, she also had pink accessories.

Mrs. Clarence McCoy mother of the groom stood with Shirley in meeting the guests. The brides book was kept by Mrs. Virginia Lewis.

Mrs. Don Scarborough was in charge of the display of gifts. The table covered with an exquisite linen cut work cloth was centered with a lovely flower arrangement of pink summer flowers in a low crystal bowl.

Mrs. Elaine Hulst presided over the tea table which had punch, party sandwiches, cookies, mints and nuts were served. Mrs. Russell mingled with the guests and was at the door as the guest departed.

Some 30 friends called during the afternoon.

Willie Jean White and Jackie Hart are married

The Statesboro Baptist Church was the scene Sunday afternoon, July 17, at 3 p.m. of the marriage of Miss Willie Jean White, daughter of Mrs. William Dewis Creech, and the late J. Willie White, to Mr. Jackie Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hart, Sr. of Statesboro.

The Rev. J. Robert Smith officiated.

A basket arrangement of white gladioli, white crystal chimes and snapdragons placed against a background of palms formed the bridal setting.

Mrs. Roger Holland Sr. played the wedding music and Dr. Roger Holland sang "I Love Thee."

The bride and groom entered alone. The bride was lovely in a street-length lace dress over summer taffeta. She wore a small white feather hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of white orchids.

The mothers of the bride and groom wore pink carnation corsages.

The bride and groom and their parents received congratulations from their many friends who attended the wedding in the vestibule of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Hart left for a honeymoon. On their return they will reside in an apartment on East Grady street.

Mr. Hart is employed with the Statesboro Rockwell Corporation. Mrs. Hart is employed with Grimes Jewelry Company.

Dotty Daniel is honored at breakfast party

Mrs. Fred Smith, Mrs. Harry Smith and Mrs. Arnold Anderson, were hostesses Saturday morning at breakfast at Mrs. Bryant's kitchen, a lovely compliment to Miss Dottie Daniel, who is being entertained at a series of parties, prior to her August wedding.

The table, overlaid with white, was centered with a beautiful bride doll. On either side lovely vases held arrangements of delicate pink altheas, accented with dainty purple thistle with miniature ivy trailing from the center. Dotty's place was marked with bride and groom dolls.

The hostesses' gift to Dotty was a dinner plate in her china. The guests were Miss Daniel, her mother, Mrs. Bird Daniel and her sisters, Misses Anna Bird and Mary Daniel, Mrs. J. D. Blitch, grandmother of the groom, and his mother, Mrs. Dan Blitch, Mrs. Jimmy Blitch, Misses Sue and Nancy Ellis, Mrs. William G. Hill, Mrs. Bob by Joe Anderson of Atlanta, Misses Cynthia Johnston, Maurice Martin, Lynn Smith and Mrs. Aubert Brannen Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Williams of Route 1, Brooklet, announce the birth of a son, Craig Edward, on July 12 at the American Legion Dining Room in Statesboro on July 16. The class was welcomed by Class President Bill Olliff and the invocation given by Bobby Joe Anderson.

A smorgasbord supper was then placed for the group. The banquet table was centered with a large arrangement of lavender chrysanthemums, flanked on either side by the table by tall wrought iron candleabra with smaller arrangements of dahlias and Queen Anne's lace.

Following the dinner, the class president, Bill Olliff, called the meeting to order and extended his pleasure in meeting with the class again. Class Secretary Bobby Smith then gave class information and asked for roll call of the class members. Those present gave information concerning themselves and their family. For those absent, information was supplied by the secretary.

The members were informed that the class members now have a total of 89 children, the oldest, 13 and the youngest, 2 days old. Of these, there are four sets of twins. Class member further absent was Mrs. David Walker now in the Belgium Congo.

Woman's Club...

There was a program on Tallulah Falls where each person who attended the Club Institute gave her impression of the school.

At the Freedom Program, Hon. Prince Preston was the speaker. Afterwards, during the Social Hour, there was a "Count Your Blessings" program at which $25 was collected for "Care."

An annual Christmas Party was given for elderly and inactive members.

HOBBY SHOW
A Hobby Show brought out the talents of many members.

An informative program on "Landscape Design" made everyone want to improve her surroundings.

There was a "Film on Science Georgia" that made each person present feel a great deal of pride in our state, and which gave information that many of us did not previously know. A Safety Program, with Lieut. McKennon as the speaker, made us aware of the many accidents on the road, and what we as citizens could do to correct the situation.

The Club has been represented at both District Meetings, the State Board Meeting, the Club Institute, and the Convention.

WIN AWARDS
At the convention, the Club received awards for placing:

First in the sale of Post Cards;
First in the sale of Georgia Stamps;

Second in the Mamie K. Taylor Award for the Home Department;

A citation for having 90% or above in the Achievement Goal;

A Certificate of Merit for 100% Contribution to "Care;" and

An Award of Merit in the Vogue Pattern Contest.

FOR THE FUTURE
Mrs. Bob Mikell, who is chairman of the American Home Department, announces that Mrs. Perry Bland and Mrs. J. E. Bowen, Jr., will enter the Home-maker's Contest.

Preston speaks at dedication of Claxton PO

CLAXTON, GA. — A crowd of 700 persons, including guest speakers Sen. Herman E. Tamm and Rep. Prince H. Preston, is expected for the dedication of Claxton's modernistic new post office building on Sunday, July 31.

Mr. W. L. Crawford, Atlanta

The public is invited for the festivities which will include a 45 minute concert by the Parris Island Marine Band, starting at 2:30. The official dedication of the new building will follow the concert. Open house will follow the dedication with refreshments being served.

Regional Director of the Post Office Department and a host of other postal officials are expected to attend.
