Dogs—stray dogs, big dogs, little dogs...

The lady was calm and collected, when she talked to us Monday morning.

But she voiced a complaint which would set hotter tempers off like a July Fourth fireworks display.

And the cause?
DOGS!

Dogs—stray dogs, dogs with homes, big dogs, little dogs, mongrel dogs, fancy dogs.

The complaint?
Many owners do not obey the city ordinances and the state laws regarding the proper ownership and keeping of dogs. Police do not enforce the law which governs the dog population of our community.

The lady who called us Monday morning complained that the people in her neighborhood had not slept satisfactorily for several nights. They had called the police and according to her statement they do come to the area, but they "just ride through and around..."

On Sunday afternoon of last week we "flushed" four dogs from under our car port. On our way to town Monday morning we counted nine dogs of varying sizes, colors and breeds on the sidewalks of South Zetterower Avenue at Brannen Street. Reports came in during the morning of a gathering of dogs in the Lee Street section.

This problem is a chronic one in our community. The city and county health authorities issue warnings and cite the law requiring dog owners to have their dogs inoculated against rabies, and the law requiring the proper tagging and penning and keeping dogs. But recent reports indicate the warnings are short-lived and hold little meaning for most of those who own dogs.

Not all these dogs are strays. Many are fine dogs, pets of children of citizens who should know better than to allow them the run of the streets and yards of their neighbors.

Check the dog situation in your family. Is he being allowed the run of the neighborhood and keeping your friends and neighbors awake with his yowling as he joins other dogs running in packs? If he is a pet of your children do they assume the proper responsibility for his care, if you do not? Has he been properly registered with the city and has he been vaccinated against rabies?

And are your neighbors mad at you.

And do you get mad at your neighbors if you learn that they have called the police.

A maddening situation, isn't it?

But one that can be cleared up by dog owners obeying the law and by the police enforcing that law where dog owners refuse to do so.

It's that simple.

The Jaycees are doing a fine thing

If you were making a long trip over the Labor Day weekend which begins tomorrow and continues through Monday, and you had been driving for a long time you would welcome an invitation to stop and have a Coca Cola or a cup of coffee with cookies. You would find it pleasant to chat with some of the young people of the community. You would find it informative to read some of the descriptive material given you about the community and section in which you were traveling.

Tomorrow night and Monday night members of the Statesboro Junior Chamber of Commerce will play host to travellers on U.S. 301 and U.S. 25 as they pass through our community. With the cooperation of the City Officials and the City Police Department, they will invite travellers to stop and take a "coffee break" at the Simmons Shopping Center located on North Main Street near the courthouse.

Last year the Jaycees served nearly 1,500 cups of coffee and ten cases of Coca Cola and two cases of cookies during the two night rest breaks for tourists passing through Statesboro.

This is a project which has the enthusiastic support of all in our community and we express its appreciation to the young businessmen and young professional men who make up its membership. It's a fine thing they are doing.

For Safety's Sake

It's much better to stand still for a minute over the Labor Day holiday than to spend hours or days in a hospital. Keep this in mind when that other driver insists on taking the right of way. Labor has succeeded in making on-the-job safety a reality—now, they're out to pay tribute to Labor Day by asking their members and everyone else on the highway to do away with off-the-job traffic accidents. Many work accidents, are the result of someone's carelessness!

Take it easy on Labor Day Holiday

Beginning tomorrow evening, September 1, the seventy-ninth celebration of Labor Day will begin.

The three and one-half million miles of our nation's streets and highways will begin to swarm with what is expected to be the largest number of cars ever to take to the highways at one time.

Here in Georgia, our 89,000 miles of highways will carry one of their peak loads of the year. Last year nine people were killed on these highways. Four were killed due to drinking drivers, one to speeding, one to passing on a curve, one from running through a stop sign and two from "losing control," which police claim, in most instances, is a polite way of saying the drivers were going so fast they couldn't stay on the road.

Even though you may be one of the many who will stay at home, you will still find it necessary to get on our highways and streets during this long weekend. You will find it necessary to drive as carefully as if you were setting out for a trip to Miami or New York.

There is an ever present danger on our highways, but a long weekend such as the one coming up multiplies that danger many times.

It's a trite expression, but one we feel compelled to make... Take it easy during your Labor Day holiday!

This Week's Meditation

"I WAS NOT MEANT FOR THIS," I thought, as I grew restless toward the close of our summer vacation. All week long I had "taken it easy" with no demands upon me other than those I chose.

Our parents had gone to every extent in providing us with a week of rest and relaxation. Now, here I was, complaining to myself that I was not meant for this. An eagerness to return home, face the responsibilities of the daily task, and get to work, the vacation was over. For me, the vacation was over.

A similar experience came to me last week. This time it was an enforced vacation in our local hospital. I was not a visitor (my usual role) but a patient. Toward the end of my stay, I found myself saying again, "I must get out of here. I was not meant for this." Perhaps, I was getting well.

IT "SEEMS TO ME" we carry on a great deal of meaningless conversation about vacations and our desire to rest from our work. Numerous times I have walked into the sick room and jokingly said, "You get up and let me rest; for a while." Did I mean it? I hardly think so. I doubt if we are desirous of time off, or a vacation, as we say. Of course, the patient confined to the hospital room really wants this type of rest more than we say we do. He knows the rest is enforced, and that Hanging on the walls of a man's den, painted on the sides of a lamp, published as space writers in magazines, neatly lettered on little white cards in wallets, and peeping out anywhere else that an erring eye might glimpse them, you will find mottoes, legends, cryptic comments, principles, precepts, mandates, maxims, or even clichés, all committed to the improvement of your thinking and acting, throughout the gamut of possibilities, from the prevention of suicide (Fools Rush In —) to the disposition of a cigar butt (See below).

SOME OF THESE APHORISMS have the impact of laws and conscience, such as the sign in Henry Ford's office: "Cut Your Own Wood And It Warm You Twice."

Some reflect the vernacular of a nation, as the admonishment on the door of a British Non-Com's Club in Europe: "Other Ranks Only."

Some are apocalyptic, like the speed warnings on the Red Ball Highway: "Give It All You Got, Bub, Hell Ain't Half Full Yet," or ambiguously vulnerable as the notices over the astrays in the Fires, Smokers Put 'Em Here," which were promptly altered by someone to read: "Good Fires Prevent House-keeping."

The following news story was like a cool shower on a mid-August day. It was written by our neighbor Clyde Hollingsworth in last week's Sylvania Telephone. We're sure it'll make Readers D. rest. His headline read:

SHE SOLVED A CHICKEN PROBLEM WITH THE WISDOM OF SOLOMON

And the story goes like this: A Negro woman was among a group of passengers about to enter a bus at the Sylvania Bus Terminal last week. The woman carried among other things a sack which was a live chicken. The chicken's head was sticking out of the sack and was seen by the bus driver just as the passenger was about to enter the bus. "You can't take a live chicken on the bus," said the driver. In response the woman "wrung the neck" of the chicken right before the eyes of the astonished driver and other passengers, put the chicken back in the sack and nonchalantly climbed into the bus and took her seat in the rear.

A few miles down the road the bus driver noticed a feather gently settling in his lap, and then another. He looked back and the interior of the bus looked as if a small snow storm had hit. He stopped the bus and went to the rear to find the woman picking the chicken. "You can't pick a chicken in the bus" screamed the exasperated driver. "I've done picked him" replied the passenger. "Now I's gonna draw him."

The defeated driver returned to his post shaking his head as he mumbled something that sounded like "Take a bus and leave the driving to us."

There is a Georgia law which reads: "The Bible, including the Old and New Testaments, shall be read in all the schools receiving State funds, and not less than one chapter shall be read at some appropriate time during each school day. Upon the parent or guardian or any pupil filing with the teacher in charge of said pupil in the public school, a written statement requesting that said pupil be excused from the said Bible reading as required by this section, such teacher shall permit such pupil to withdraw while the reading of the Bible is in progress. Such request in writing shall be sufficient to cover the entire school year in which said request is filed."

Asides from these correlations, the study noted what most teenagers, their parents, and friends already know: The involvement rate of youthful drivers in automobile accidents is about twice as high as the average adult's and the severity of their accidents is considerably greater.

Parents simply must realize the urgency of exercising more authority over their teen-agers in the matter of how and when they drive," the report concludes.

And since the figures and the statement write their own edicts, we simply add: Amen — Greensboro Daily News.

Statesboro's Midget football season opens at Rec Center

By RALPH TURNER

Statesboro's Midget Varsity begins its fourth season of football this fall with 45 eager candidates battling for first string positions. The Midget Varsity began their fall practice Monday morning, August 21. The Varsity consists of seventh and eighth grade boys who weigh between 80 and 115 pounds.

The 45 candidates are probably the best group of football players to come along in quite some time. Practice sessions last week left the impression that the eleven boys that start off

Peanut harvesting time is here again

By ROY POWELL, County Agent

Peanut harvest time is here again. You can make a higher quality peanut for market and seed purposes by proper drying. Moving off the tops of peanuts will help them dry quicker and more uniformly in the windrow. When peanut vine growth is heavy and hay is not to be saved, a rotary type weed and stalk cutter should be used.

In clipping, be sure to cut off only the top one-third of Spanish and other bunch type peanuts and the top one-half of runner varieties. This clipping will reduce the load on the harrower whether picking from the windrow or stacked peanuts. But be sure that cutter blades are sharp, and do not cut more off the tops than recommended. Clipping more seriously reduces shaking and picking efficiency.

When harvesting, cut the taproot of the peanut plant just below the area of nuts. To do this, peanut digger blades should be sharp and adjusted relatively flat. A dull blade, set with too much pitch will wedge and pull peanuts from vines. The slight pitch and thickness of the blades will generally lift and loosen soil around peanuts sufficiently for good mechanical shaking.

Under most conditions, shaking is best accomplished with the overhead type peanut shaker. With proper adjustment of blades and shaker, excessive soil and rocks in peanuts may be avoided.

If digger blades are functioning properly, it is easy to adjust height to permit only a soil-combing action of the test through the soil. Speed of the shaker-conveyor unit should slightly exceed the forward speed of the machine.

Keep the windrowing rods adjusted to form a loose, fluffy windrow about the width of the combined to be used. Avoid adjustments that leave a narrow twisted windrow.

It is strongly recommended that the shaker-windrower be equipped or improvised with a heavy drag bar to the rear of the peanut shaker rack. This equipment smooths the soil bed which the digger blades pick up of rocks and soil, less damage to peanuts, particularly where whether is dry, and more uniformity in drying.

Information on schools to be presented

The public relations committee of the Bulloch County Education Association, met Monday afternoon in the library of the Statesboro High School, to set goals for the ensuing year.

This committee, through the use of the local newspapers, radio and local news outlets, will try to interpret the total education program to the people, and give the public an opportunity to become acquainted with teachers as citizens, willing and able to share in solving the Community's common problems.

A series of news articles and radio programs will begin soon. Citizens are encouraged to read the local papers more closely and listen to the radio regularly in order not to miss getting valuable information about the schools. "Your support of, and your cooperation in, working for quality education in the schools of Bulloch County is badly needed. Learning has no age limit, say members of the committee.

Wages-Hours increases go into effect

Employees in Georgia were reminded today that amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act, generally known as the Federal Wage-Hour Law, become effective on September 3, 1961.

The amendments, which are the result of a study by the Department of Labor's Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions.

Williams said that employees who are now covered by provisions of the law will be entitled to a minimum wage of at least $1.15 an hour. The law continues to apply to employees engaged in interstate commerce or the production of goods for interstate commerce, unless specifically exempt.

Coverage of the Act has also been extended to employees of large enterprises engaged in commerce or the production of goods for commerce, Williams pointed out. These newly covered employees, mostly in the retail and service trades, will be due a minimum wage of at least $1.00 an hour. Also covered are employees of some large gasoline service stations, local or interurban transit systems and construction enterprises.

Williams said that the Act's overtime provisions will continue to apply to workers who are already covered. They require time and one half for all hours worked over 40 in work-week. For employees who are newly covered under the Act, overtime pay will not be required until 1963.

Exemptions continue to apply to such establishments as hotels, motels, restaurants, hospitals, and a few other service establishments. Williams added that the retail or service establishments exemption now in effect will continue to apply to establishments which are not in $1 million enterprise, or if in such an enterprise, have less than $250,000 in annual gross sales.

If employers or employees have any questions on how the amended Act applies to them, Williams urged them to contact the nearest Wage-Hour office of the U. S. Department of Labor.

do you? do you think it makes sense to expect one combine with hardly any adjustment to perform efficiently in all types of soil under all kinds of conditions? Field tests have shown that it's just too much to ask. That's why Lilliston has produced six models with actually hundreds of possible variations. That means that you not only get a combine that is practically custom-tailored to your specifications, but one that you can easily adjust to suit your land, your crop, and the conditions prevailing at the time you're harvesting. Result: cleaner, faster, better combining—and higher profits when the harvest is done.

just a few of the special features on the new 1961 Lilliston peanut combines DRAPER adjusts automatically to keep the proper tension. You don't have to touch it. It also cleans itself—specially designed rollers simply sweep the dirt back to the soil.

SIMPLY by pulling a pin you can quickly change air blast direction to maintain consistent top performance—adjust separation at the combine is working.

FLASH! More evidence that the Lilliston is the Combine for 1961. Here's what Mr. L. B. Connel, Manager of Wight Tractor Sales, has to say: "I have just come from a field demonstration where Lilliston's 1961 Peanut Combine was in operation and I want you to know that your machine led the field in every manner of speaking—the forward motion, clean runs in the bag, nuts off the vines. And there is no loss this year behind the machine. Again Lilliston has proven its superiority in engineering a machine for the peanut grower."

SPEED of cylinders can be changed to suit the conditions and type of crop. You can get mild or aggressive action—from one extreme to the other—or anywhere in between.

COME IN and let us show you all the new engineering achievements that make the 1961 Lilliston Combine the finest implement that ever harvested a peanut crop. No other machine can touch it.

Farmer is key in preventing peanut damage

The key role in preventing insect infestation in peanuts belongs to the farmer, and if the farmer doesn't do his part in providing a sound crop, the efforts of the other hands in the marketing chain in trying to get a clean and wholesome product to the consumer are largely nullified. The lower-quality product is of course immediately reflected in the farmer's pocketbook.

Since research has proved that insect infestation, or the things that cause infestation and later damage, start right on the farm, the Department of Agriculture recommends the following steps to farmers as a means of keeping peanuts in good condition and improving the price received from the crop:

1. Wait until peanuts are mature before digging them up, thus cutting down on the amount of shrivels and increasing the percentage of sound peanuts.

2. Clean up harvesting equipment before use lest insect infestation in accumulated debris catch the new crop. Spray combines with 5 per cent DDT.

3. Adjust and operate the harrow properly—not too high a speed, not overloaded, and use a good insecticide before the peanuts are placed in storage.

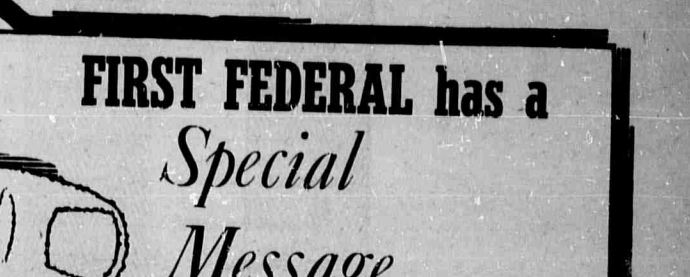

4. Use clean (fumigated, if necessary) or new bags to avoid insect infestation. The pressure being put on this by the Department of Agriculture is to keep the peanuts clean and free of insects and also to prevent peanut contamination by other chemicals.

5. Clean up trucks before using them to haul peanuts to get rid of insects and also to prevent peanut contamination by other chemicals.

6. Handle the peanuts carefully at all times to prevent cracking the pods and shelling out loose kernels. Avoid walking on them. Do not move or handle them more than necessary.

7. Clean up trucks before using them to haul peanuts to get rid of insects and also to prevent peanut contamination by other chemicals.

Continued heavy rain will cause considerable damage to the peanut crop in this section of the county. If the weather man is right, rain is predicted through tomorrow (Tuesday). The peanut crop on a whole is about ready to harvest. Any way if they are to be harvested, they need some sunshine for at least a few days.

Let us hope that the rain stops, and that the sun will shine for a few weeks until the peanut crop can be harvested.

Dr. Henderson's Report on GSC

EDITOR'S NOTE—Last week we published the first of a two part article on Dr. Zach Henderson's report on Georgia Southern's Progress to Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, Chancellor of the University System of Georgia. This week we conclude the report.

In reporting on student conduct Dr. Henderson wrote: "While student conduct was in general quite satisfactory, there were isolated instances in which a small minority of students persisted in habits some what in opposition to institutional goals and the best interest of the student population. An attempt was made to work closely with residence hall directors and the faculty in identifying potential deviates and in initiating preventive counseling procedures. Drinking, boy-girl relationship and lack of respect for college regulations accounted for about ninety percent of the disciplinary problems encountered."

The college president stated that "the Frank I. Williams Center provides modern facilities for the student body. The new building provides modern facilities for the student body. The new building provides modern facilities for the student body."

"Georgia Southern is a fast growing college and the needs become greater each year. As the college enrollment increased from 600 to 1,200 the real needs more than doubled. At the present time we need more classrooms, more dormitories, married students apartments, more room in the library, a new auditorium, and more faculty members. For the year 1961-62 we will be operating six residence halls, four for women and two for men. In both the men's halls there will be three to the room, in the women's hall there will be three to the room, and in one, four to the room. Housing on the campus for women was closed on April 6th and now we have more than 100 young women on the waiting list. The need for additional classrooms is becoming as critical as that for residence housing."

"The following is a list of the building needs: 1. Addition to the Library. 2. Two classroom buildings. 3. Two residence halls for women. 4. Two residence hall for men. 5. Housing for married students."

Dr. Henderson emphasized the need for the enlargement of the curriculum, pointing out the shortage of college teachers for junior college and said that a request for permission to begin work in this area will be made during the fall of 1961.

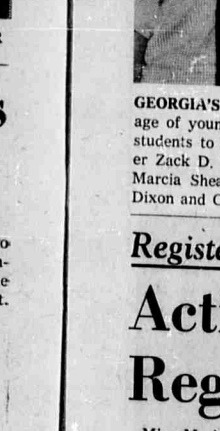

During the 1960-61 school year three new buildings were completed — The Joseph E. Carruth Building, the Arts and Industry Building, the Mamie Venable Building, and the Home Management House. The Carruth Building was used during the summer of 1961 and the Mamie Venable Hall will open for the fall quarter, 1961.

Major repair work done during the 1960-61 year totaled $55,475 and was as follows: Remodeling classrooms and offices and providing air conditioning, $35,000; music building repairs, $425; campus improvement — "developing, curbing, gutting, repaving, and painting" of the campus, $1,500; and library roof, $1,750.

But Do You Really UNDERSTAND The Bible?

Many people maintain that the Bible is so simple and clear that anyone can understand it.

Yet today the Christian world is divided into conflicting opinions as to what the Bible means. Sincere and equally learned Bible scholars take different meanings from the same words, and there are many Christian sects which disagree on basic Bible questions.

The average Christian who wants to understand the Bible, finds all this confusing... wondering which interpretation to accept, whom to believe. The result is that the Bible often gathers dust on the family bookshelf, when it should be bringing joy to the hearts of men.

Catholics, of course, join with Christians everywhere in recognizing the complete Bible as the inspired Word of God. It could not be otherwise, for it was the Catholic Church which assembled the books of the Bible nearly 1600 years ago, and which preserved its precious message on parchment for thousands of years before the invention of the printing press.

It is unfortunate, however, that some of the most devoted Bible readers do not understand it. As a matter of fact, Holy Scripture is seldom correctly understood unless we have certain preliminary knowledge concerning God's revealed truth.

In writing the New Testament, its authors took into account that a knowledge of God's revelation already provided. The books they wrote were intended to instruct and confirm teachings already known—not to announce something entirely unknown. When you have this preliminary knowledge, the Bible is neither contradictory nor confusing.

PREPARE SOIL WELL
USE SOIL TEST
MEET LIME NEEDS

At Planting...

Apply at least 500 lbs.
of 6-12-12 or 5-10-15
and 50 lbs. Nitrogen.

Follow soil test
recommendations
on winter grazing

By ROY POWELL, County Agent

Soil tests take the guess work out of your Big M Pasture Program.

A soil test makes you right four ways: (1) Right amount of fertilizer, (2) Right kind of fertilizer, (3) Fertilizer in the right place, and (4) Right amount of lime.

Livestock secure calcium through the plants they graze, so don't let lack of lime be the weak link in your pastures. Lime those soils according to soil test. This will make your fertilizer dollar go farther.

Fertilizer can add profits. Follow soil test recommendations and apply enough fertilizer of the right ratio. Use at least 500 pounds of 6-12-12 or 5-10-15 per acre at planting. This gets winter grazing off to a good start.

Fifty pounds of nitrogen to the acre at planting will insure early growth in time for fall grazing. Nitrogen is the production element that increases gross protein and boosts yields. It puts the green grass into highly nutritious cow feed. In late winter, just before growth starts in the spring, another shot of nitrogen of about 50 pounds per acre will yield extra returns in the spring flush of grass.
