

For Parents Of Teen Age Drivers

THE FOLLOWING resolution for presentation to the State Department of Public Safety was introduced by the Honorable Wilmer D. Lanier to the Georgia Citizens Council, in session recently.

Resolved: That this Council call attention of the State Department of Public Safety to the fact that children under legal age are operating automobiles; and that this condition seems to be confined to no particular community, but is somewhat general over the State; and further That the State Department of Public Safety, through its facilities, call upon the sheriffs and chiefs of police to enforce the existing laws, also write to the mayors of each town a letter asking the local officers to please enforce the state law; and that the department give special attention to the enforcement of that portion of the traffic laws with reference to children operating cars; and

That the Department of Public Safety make such other appropriate comments as it deems proper to try to stop, if possible, this condition.

This resolution, which the council adopted, grew out of a very active discussion on the problem of children under fifteen years of age driving cars. Although it was admitted that possibly there were some isolated cases where traffic judges and officers did not enforce the laws, it was the consensus that these were definitely in the minority, and that the fault is not enforcing existing traffic laws went back to the lack of support and cooperation on the part of the public rather than to failure of the law enforcement officers to perform their duties.

The council members said they and many other Georgians were shocked at the utter disregard of many parents for that law which prohibits under-age children from driving automobiles. And they stressed the fact that this condition existed in no one community, but that it was prevalent over the state. They were agreed that, regardless of the standing or importance of the family of the child driver in the community, the parents should be brought into court for breaking this law, and given a severe penalty.

This indifference to the law by some parents works a distinct hardship on those parents who want to observe the law, but whose children plead with them for permission to drive the family car, on the grounds that other children of their age are driving cars—and "getting by" with it.

The council takes the stand that the public and parents should see that this law prohibiting children under fifteen years of age (unless accompanied by an instructor or an older driver) should be strictly enforced. There is no way to materially reduce the far-too-many traffic accidents daily occurring on Georgia's streets and highways, if existing laws are not enforced, and if the public will not back up the officer who tries to enforce such laws.

Poor Sportmanship

HE CAME IN and sat down

He got set to get something off his mind.

Then in plain words he let us have it. According to our visitor Statesboro is without equal in its overall desirability as a place in which to live and to rear a family.

The people are the finest he has ever known, and he has been around.

The finest recreation program in the section gives the city's youth the opportunity to develop into wonderful citizens.

Culturally speaking the citizens are equal to and above the standard in any place he's known.

He went on detailing all the fine things, about our city.

Then he came to the point of his visit. "But," he said, "The sense of sportmanship in this town is the lowest of any I've ever known."

He then went on to describe the sorry display of sportmanship by some local fans at Pilots, Field when the Statesboro Pilots play a visiting team.

He stated that in his opinion, at times, the "ragging" of the umpires and even the local players got to be offensive and unfit for the lady fans.

An ardent fan of the Pilots, he believes we have a fine club. He believes that the records might show that they play better baseball when they are away from Statesboro. He believes they would play better baseball if the fans who are constantly critical of the game, would remember that the players are human too. He believes that the crowds at the games might be better if there was some assurance that the "beefers" would change their tune and lend their loud mouth to the support of the players.

He admits that the loud mouth fan is a part of baseball. He admits that the fan has a right to be critical. He admits that a lot of times the player or the umpire may deserve a bit of good humored, honest criticism.

But he refuses to admit that the loud mouth fan has the right to allow his enthusiasm for the game to spill over in vocal vilification.

He believes that Statesboro fans can turn the game into something fine and inspiring by lending their voice to the encouragement and support of the members of the Pilots baseball team.

Having gotten it off his mind he said goodby.

Up It Goes Again

THIS WEEK we toss our hat up high for Dan Blitch, who has been named president of the Student Council at Georgia Tech.

This is a fitting climax to Dan's student career at Tech. He has been a leader since his first year there. His scholastic standing is high.

So it is with pride that we toss our beat-up hat for Dan Blitch, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Blitch Jr.

And while our hat's up in the air we say congratulations to Russell Everett, Jr., Joanne Groover, Mrs. Guyton McLeod, Frances Rackley, and Edna Wales, all of Statesboro; Fred W. Brown of Stillson; Johnny DeNitto of Brooklet; and Mrs. Ernest A. Hensley of Portol, who are among the 78 named on the spring Dean's List at Georgia Teachers College. It takes an average of B-plus to make this list, and that's something.

And there's Ann Waters who made the Dean's list at the University of Georgia.

To them all we say "good going."

Is There A Reason?

HOW CAN ANYONE ACCOUNT for the attitude of Statesboro and Bulloch county toward the local blood program?

In twenty-five counties in the Savannah Regional Blood Center there are only three counties—Long Jenkins, and Tattnall whose blood collection record is lower than Bulloch's.

With a 1951-52 quota of 1,225 pints we were short 1,047 pints, having contributed only 178 pints to the center.

While contributing only 178 pints we were short our local hospital, 476.5 pints or 267.69 per cent over our contribution.

Last week the Elks Lodge assumed responsibility for the June 11 visit of the Bloodmobile. They secured pledges from 250 people who assured them that they would be at the Recreation Center to contribute a pint of blood.

The Elks Club made the contribution of a pint of blood attractive—a $50 bond went to one donor, $25 worth of gift certificates went to another, and a $25 bond went to a third.

Yet with the figures in only 96 donors reported and 93 pints of blood collected. Why?

Farewell-Welcome

REV. JOHN LOUGH preached his last sermon to the members of the Methodist church here last Sunday.

Rev. J. F. Wilson will preach his first sermon to the members of the First Methodist Church here Sunday, June 22. We regret to see John Lough, preacher, citizen, leave Statesboro. We said the same thing about Charlie Jackson, preacher-citizen, when he left three years ago and John Lough took his place. We know well we say the same about J. Frederick Wilson when the South Georgia Methodist Conference says he must go elsewhere.

We like preachers. We like them because they make good citizens.

We like them because of their constant fight against unworldly things and their untiring efforts to save us lowly ones for a better life.

So long, John Lough, preacher-citizen. Welcome, Frederick Wilson, preacher-citizen.

Why He Went To Church

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

We commend the following piece written by Dr. Louis Newton for the Junior Chamber of Commerce "Come to Church" program during the month of May.

We were on a fishing trip and with plenty of time to talk, we finally got around to the question of religion. I asked this business man, Why do you go to church?

He made several casts before answering my question, and then, looking me in the eye with disarming sincerity, he said:

"I'm glad you asked me. You are the first person ever to ask me such a question, and this is my first effort to put into words one of the really vital phases of my life.

"I would say, first, that I go to church because it provides something that I cannot get elsewhere. I am active in civic and fraternal circles, as you know, and I deeply cherish all that these organizations bring into my life; but none of them can take the place of the church—of worship and fellowship which I find in the church.

"I would say, second, that I go to church in answer to something deep in my heart that is ever reaching out toward God. I could not face the issues of life without this sense of reaching toward something beyond me. You know what I mean. This world has its weapons, and they are keen and effective. If I am to maintain myself in the midst of a secularized society, I must constantly renew my spiritual armor.

"And there is a third reason. I go to church as an anchor for my soul. I delight to read good books, and to follow the offerings on radio and TV, but these do not entirely satisfy. Indeed, they whet my appetite for the ultimate, and this I find in the quiet hours of Bible study and the worship in the church. It is the church which provides the sure and steady anchor for my soul."

I have observed this man for years, and I have often thought of what he said that day in the church. I think his stability as a business man. Because he goes regularly to Sunday School and church, he seems to have a certain side that leaves him without any frustrations. He is a faithful tithing man. He seems to possess a poise which makes him effective in his home, in his office, and in the hours of leisure, and, best of all, in his pew.

ALL'S FAIR . . . . . By Jane

In June come wedding bells; we congratulate the bride. Well, Dad, you'd have your day. We hope you were satisfied.

By Craft and rotten politics; By Reds on every side.

Come July, we'll celebrate our freedom; while the time, we're tied Toward Honesty and Good Government and Truth in which we abide.

In July, let's nominate Dick Russell: He alone can turn the tide. If we choose Russell in July, towards the presidency he'll ride.

For his high courage and sagacity will be felt the whole world wide. "The hopes and fears of all the years" in this man reside.

Mothers can look on sons with increasing joy and pride, That now at least they'll not be torn ruthlessly from their side. So won't you think it through, the benefits derived.

From casting your ballot for a man who'll see that you are not deprived. The Bill of Rights and the freedoms will never again be denied.

Yes we're for Russell spoken openly and not implied, We speak our position freely, though some may deride. For more than all, we want for all a better life where Love and Peace will forever abide.

NICE GOING LT. THOMAS, First Lieutenant James E. Thomas, now in Korea, home address, 417 Fair Road, Statesboro, Ga., has made his wife very proud of him. All of his friends, especially his former associates at the Bulloch County Health Center are proud of him.

The first week in June, De Alva Thomas received two letters from her husband in the same mail. She read according to the mailing dates.

In the first, "Tommy" appeared to be mildly upset. His Colonel had ordered him to submit phases of scaled models of sanitation. Now before Jimmy was called into service he had taken a correspondence course in Sanitation Engineering. He was, and they were, very anxious to please the Colonel, so he labored long and hard at his assignment. That was as far as Jimmy got in the first letter. The second letter purely excited the spirit, a jubilant spirit. He'd read—ly succeeded. When the scale model was turned over to the Colonel, the Colonel called General Dulany to come over and look at Jimmy's models. The General was pleased, but Jimmy thought he was in another jam. The General was so very pleased that he called for an assemblage of all the sanitation officers, for all the executive officers, for all the mess sergeants, 75 in all, and requested Lt. Thomas to display his work along with a talk to the officers.

A nurse said she knew he was scared. Making a speech is not considered his favorite task. But the Lieutenant though he began a bit haltingly, was soon so enthusiastic about his models that in no time at all, 45 minutes had passed, but Jimmy was still going on. Following his discourse, General Dulany consumed 15 minutes in congratulation and praise for Lt. Thomas' work.

WHEN MARY LEE CROMARTIE left Wednesday of last week for Long Island, N. Y., her cook who has been with her for many years told me, "I shore did want to go to New York with Miss Mary Lee, but I knew Miss Maud was up there, and there wouldn't be room for her, and she certainly wasn't going to stay anywhere but with her folks. Anyhow, she said I got to keep the flowers from dying. Yes the cook wanted to see Pruella and Mary Lee away, and to see Pruella and Bob Pruella and especially the baby, Pruella Frances.

NEXT WEEK, MRS. DICK BOWMAN and her daughter, Lee and Lynn, will be leaving Statesboro where they have spent several months with Loren's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Durden, for New York City, the Port of Embarkation to join Lt. Bowman at Burton Wood England.

JUST LISTEN TO THIS! Mrs. Dick Barr, remembered here as Betty Grace Hodges who is visiting her mother accompanied by her two children, Leola and Betty, coming down from Rittman, Ohio April 1. That very morning Dick became ill and was hurried to the hospital and in no time at all he was in the operating room. A nurse was assigned to him but of course, Betty Grace spent as much time as she could with her husband. One day the nurse asked, "Betty where are you from?" "Betty said Statesboro, Ga. The girl was practically dumb from exhaustion. "Why," said Leola, the nurse, "I'm from Clito. Then it was Betty's turn to explain. "You don't mean it? I am right at Clito myself. ## MELTON-RUSSELL

Historic Macedonia Baptist Church located on "The Old River Road" was a lovely setting for the wedding ceremony Sunday morning at 9 o'clock, uniting in marriage Elizabeth Melton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer B. SIDE-DRESSING PAYS Side-dressing should be applied to cotton soon after chopping is completed, says agronomists. If more than 100 pounds of nitrogen is to be used, apply half during the chopping period and the remainder later.

CONTROL INSECTS
A well-planned cotton insect control program should be used to prevent losses due to these insects. Insect pests can be controlled if poisons are used as recommended, entomologists point out.

Gechee Farm Bureau Treated to Fish Supper At Regular Meeting

The Gechee Farm Bureau was treated to a Gechee river red snapper supper at its regular meeting Tuesday night by Emmitt Lee's committee.

When Mr. Lee found that he was chairman of the June serving committee, he proceeded, according to Mrs. Lee, to use that as an excuse to go fishing often and to get the perch in the water. The R. T. Aarons, V. Simmons, Mrs. Omie Lee and others on the committee probably did their share in helping to catch enough fish for the supper, but Mr. Lee was given credit for being the champion fisherman.

Mrs. W. A. Hodges stated that Gechee was to have 65 from the community to meet the bloodmobile on Wednesday following the meeting.

The July 4 meeting will be at Williams Landing, down on the Gechee river, C. W. Zetterower, president, announced. A basket dinner will be served.

With inflation hitting the dollars coming in the Farm Bureau as every other place, it has been necessary for dues to be raised to $5 for this year. R. P. Maell, county president, stated to the group that the Farm Bureau is actually at work now in the communities that have completed their survey of subscribers.

A motion picture on safe auto driving was a part of their program.

HIGH COTTON YIELDS

Results of the Georgia 5-Acre Cotton Contest show that yields are in direct proportion to the amounts of balanced fertilizers used. The number of applications of poison made to control insects and the number of plants per acre soil and water conservation plan prepared for their farms. The Soil Conservation Service with the F. H. personnel are preparing these plans with the farmers and by this teamwork it is hoped more soil and water conservation can be established on the land.

Joint action along the above lines have been affected on the farms of E. F. Williams, and B. F. Deal southwest of Statesboro, and other seven houses are operated by W. E. Cobb and H. P. Foxhall under the name of Cobb and Foxhall, and R. E. Sheppard and Aubert Brannen, operating under the name of Shepards Nos. 1 and 2.

Complete plans to utilize every acre of land on his farm by putting it to work producing what it is best suited. The low, wet land which has been being idle will produce fescue and clover pasture. The eroded hills will balance the pasture program on the already infested bermuda land.

Calvin Hendrix is planning on putting in permanent pastures and practice sound crop rotations.

Simon Krock, Soil Conservation Service Engineer was in the county recently planning an irrigation system for Lehman Franklin whose farm is north of Statesboro in the Middleground section.

The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of Interior has complete stocking ponds in the county with bass (trout) where bluegill bream had already been stocked.

Pond surveys have been made on the farms of Josiah Zetterower just north of Statesboro, W. R. Newsome near the airport, W. C. Cromley, Jr., and Sr. at Brooklet, D. R.
