Wingate Makes Plea For Farm People In F. B.

Georgia Farm Bureau Federation President, H. L. Wingate, today issued a statement calling upon all farm people to unite on September 9 into an effective organization to preserve and protect the farmers' place in the American economy.

The GFBF president said, "At this time when the issues facing the American people are so critical, and decisions so important to the freedom loving people of this nation, it is very important that the farmers give careful attention to the policies and actions of their organization. The Farm Bureau speaks for agriculture in Georgia and the nation. Let us keep our organization strong and make it constantly more effective as the voice for agriculture."

Wingate added, "During the next few months many county meetings will be holding their annual meeting. It is at these meetings here in Georgia and in similar county meetings over the nation that Farm Bureau policy is established. The time is here when the people must stand up and be counted on the issues facing us."

"In accepting this responsibility these county meetings should give close attention to the following:

"1. Resolutions that carry a clear and definite expression of the people in the area on all major issues.

"2. Elect voting delegates to the state convention. Elect delegates to the county convention who will accept the responsibility to attend and vote that county policies are expressed at the meeting.

"3. Elect county officers and board members who will accept the responsibility of office and give the leadership necessary to build a strong county Farm Bureau."

"Farm Bureau Methods and procedures should be carefully adhered to at all meetings.

"If the county will establish a clear policy, continue the election of responsible and conscientious officers to carry out their policy, and can truthfully say that Farm Bureau does not express the opinion of the majority of farmers of Georgia."

Baptist Begin Revival Sept. 21

The First Baptist Church will hold a week's revival services beginning Sunday, September 21 through Sunday, September 28, with the pastor, Rev. George Lovell Jr., preacher, and Ira C. Prosser, song leader. Services will be held every evening during the week at 8:00 o'clock.

First Baptist has delayed their annual revival until the completion of the new sanctuary and since it has been customary in their churches for the pastor to do the preaching at the first revival after completion of a new sanctuary, Rev. Lovell will preach each evening during the week and twice on Sunday.

Ira Prosser, the song leader, is a Bulloch county man, who is considered one of the outstanding young leaders in the Southern Baptist Convention. He is now Director of Church Music and Baptist Student Work of the Baptist General Convention in the state of Oklahoma.

Last Sunday afternoon under the direction of the Deacons of the church, a city-wide religious census was made here in preparation for the revival. Sunday, September 14, there will be a follow-up of the census. On Tuesday evening, September 16, all Deacons and census workers will meet at the church to make further plans for the revival. An all church prayer service is planned for next Wednesday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

The fine spirit of cooperation shown by the people of Bulloch county in sponsoring and supporting the program of Soil Conservation, as advocated and directed by the Board of Supervisors, I wish to take the opportunity to express our appreciation for this splendid cooperation which has greatly aided the conservation movement in Bulloch county and the entire district.

The conservation of our soil is vitally important to everyone, and the job of conservation is a big one requiring the interest and assistance of all our citizens. Working together, the job can, and is being done. The welfare of the present generation and the hope of future generations, depend upon the conservation of our soil. # Bulloch Farmers Observing Soil Conservation Week, Sept. 7-14

Soil Benefits To Be Emphasized

Efforts of Georgia Farmers with the help of Soil Conservation Districts to change the coloring of Georgia's hills and slopes from eroded red to predictive green through terracing, contour plowing and the planting of grassland and cover crops are receiving special attention this week with the observance of Soil Conservation Week throughout the state.

Sponsored by the State Soil Conservation Committee with the cooperation of state and federal agricultural and soil conservation agencies, observance of Soil Conservation Week, September 7-14, has been put before every Georgian in a special proclamation by the Governor. In this official state document Governor Talmadge proclaimed the week of September 7-14 to be "a period when our citizens emphasize the saving of our soil."

Through special meetings, church services, radio programs, and the farmer's problems. They are always complaining about the high prices farmers are receiving for their products while completely unaware of the high prices farmers must pay for the things necessary to produce those products. They must come to realize, also, that the farmer must spend money, time and energy in the preservation of the vital soil against the hazards of nature if he is to continue to be the best-fed people on earth.

We intend, are directly dependent upon the man on the land. He is the protector of that vital resource upon which our livelihood depends. Let us be more tolerant and understanding. Let us pitch in and help when and if we can. This job of soil and water conservation is a big job, but it can be accomplished if we will all do our part.

Gov. Talmadge Proclaims Week

September 7-14, 1952 has been designated as Soil Conservation Week in Georgia by the Governor and the State Soil Conservation Committee. This week has been set aside for the purpose of focusing attention on the results of bad land use and the benefits to be had from using the land properly and without damage from erosion, leaching, or robbing by plants. It is during this week that we hope to make the public generally aware of the problems of soil and water conservation and what it means to them as citizens of this great state. It is also hoped that a better understanding between rural and city people will result from having such a week.

It is not so in Statesboro and Bulloch county, because I've seen such splendid cooperation and helpfulness on the part of the business and professional people here, but in many places, the city people are completely ignorant of the farmer's problems. They are always complaining about the high prices farmers are receiving for their products while completely unaware of the high prices farmers must pay for the things necessary to produce those products. They must come to realize, also, that the farmer must spend money, time and energy in the preservation of the vital soil against the hazards of nature if he is to continue to be the best-fed people on earth.

Woman's Club Asks For Clean Streets, Vacant Lots

Let's clean up the streets and vacant lots of Statesboro," says members of the Beautification Committee of the Statesboro Woman's Club.

These ladies are asking the businessmen and merchants of Statesboro to make a special effort to sweep off the sidewalks of the business section of the city each Saturday night, so that when the city sweepers come along the streets will be swept clean and will not be a disgrace to the city.

Mr. Liddell, a former county agent in Bulloch county, 1917-1921, was presented to the group by Wallace Cobb, who said that he was the first man to give a farm demonstration in Bulloch county.

Mr. Liddell reviewed the history of the development of soil conservation program in the United States from its inception in 1937 up to the present time. He emphasized the farmer's need of a soil conservation program. He expressed concern over the water in the nation, saying that a water conservation plan is just as important as a soil plan.

He told the Rotarians that there are 460,000,000 acres of land in the U. S. "That's less than 3 acres of land per person. You have a stake in that 3 acres, and it should be your concern of what happens to it," he said.

Other blue ribbon winners in the show were W. W. Smith Jr., Emmitt Alford Jr., and Miss Frankie Deal. Miss Gail McCormick was a red ribbon winner. White awards went to Delmar Hendrix Jr., Jimmy Rigdon, Jappy Akins, and Miss Mary Ellen Rigdon.

Is It Our Responsibility Alone?

HE CAME IN with a letter in his hand. He handed it to us, asking us to read it.

He was a young man, and it was plain to see he has developed a keen sense of interest in the welfare of the community of which he is a part.

And as he talked, there was the reticence in him which goes with young people who want to help, want to be a part, who want to show interest, in community affairs, because they feel their youth is against them in standing up before their elders.

We read his letter.

And suddenly we realized that, in spite of all our pledges to keep this community as well informed as our facilities will allow, we have been found delinquent in our duty and responsibility to our community.

We did not try to alibi our neglect to this young man. We admitted it.

And in the hours after he left we found ourselves searching our conscience, seeking answers to the questions which kept coming up following our talk with this young man, and reading his letter.

We've known—it's common knowledge—that of the gambling that goes on in our community.

Why haven't we tried to learn the facts, confirm them, then published them?

We know of the incident to which the young man refers in his Letter to the Editor.

Why haven't we searched out the facts, and published them?

That bothers us.

To satisfy the question, we have discovered that testimony given before a Grand Jury is confidential and cannot be given out.

We had "the courage"—we're now not sure it took courage—to reveal the full testimony given in the open Mayor's Court regarding the Cassidy Case, then calling, through our editorial columns, for the reorganization of our police department.

If we had the courage to publish the "facts" regarding the gambling incident we could only depend upon "they say," "I heard," "I understand," and such statements, none of which could be substantiated by witnessed affidavits.

Then in our conscience searching we found ourselves rationalizing—the gambling which goes on here concerns a small group, most of whom are financially able to stand the losses, when they lose, and the winnings make little difference, when they win—it's the gambling urge being satisfied. Does this mean a breakdown in the morality of our community? Does it despoil the spirituality of the citizens of this community as a community, with no consideration of the individual's character?

There are still other questions which causes us uneasiness—we are afraid of losing subscriptions—we lost several following the "Cassidy Case" (though we did secure more new ones to offset these).

Are we afraid of losing advertising because of our editorial policy?

Are we guilty of "selecting" the things about which to "blow our editorial top?"

Are we guilty of being critical of only those things the community likes to hear criticized?

Because of the challenge in the young man's letter and his talk with us we must find the answers to these problems bothering us.

If we are to maintain our respect in ourself as a newspaper publisher and editor, then we must know these things.

Because there are young people, like the young man who visited us, who are becoming interested in the affairs of the community we must not give them reason to wonder if they can have a part in them, and wonder if their interest might be belittled.

No more serious damage to this community could be done than to do this to these young people.

Can we shift part of the responsibility of finding the answers to these questions to the community—the churches, the civic clubs, the individuals, our city officials?

Or is it our responsibility, the responsibility of the newspaper, alone?

We hope to find the answers.

rowly escapes smashing into an oncoming automobile, jams on his non-too-sure brakes to avoid mangleing the body of an innocent child, swerves around this corner on two wheels and pulls up to his house or office, gets out of his car almost before it stops, and then calmly sits down and smokes a cigarette and reads his paper.

"Let us give just a little thought to this reckless driving craze. Let us distinguish between fast driving and reckless driving. After all, every individual has a right to live and let live, and surely his American citizenship, his abode in the land of the free, his personal liberty, do not—at least should not—entitle him to jeopardize the lives of innocent men, women and children. Whenever a man's personal liberty interferes with the rights of others to live it is time for an awakening."

Up She Goes Again

BECAUSE WE DID NOT toss up our hat last week or the week before, does not in the least reduce the enthusiasm with which we toss it high this week.

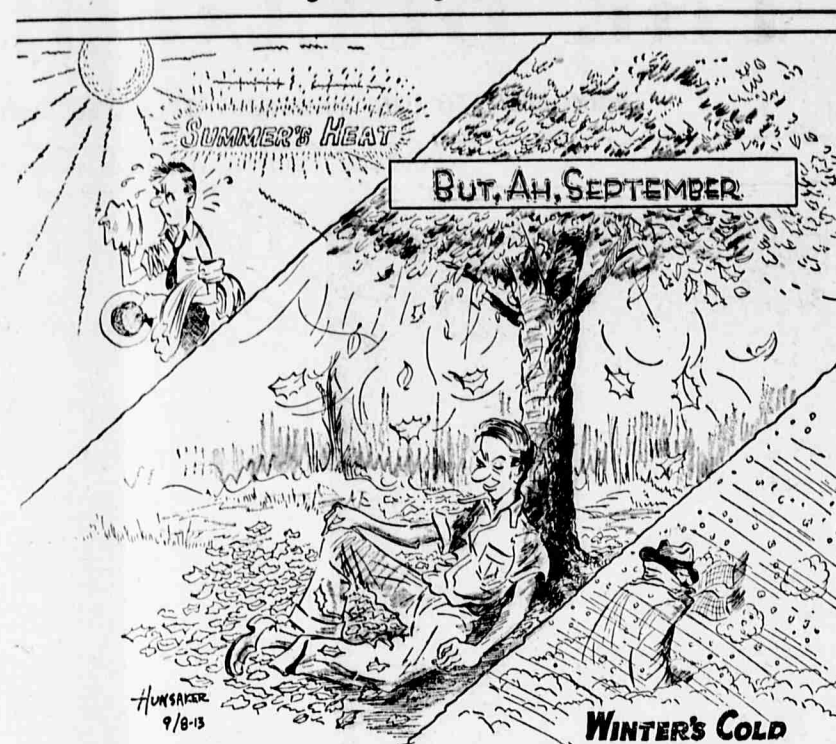

Kermit R. Carr, cashier of the Sea Island Bank, has been named Deputy District Governor of Region One of the Lions International.

For eleven years Mr. Carr has a perfect attendance record with the Lions Club. He was their president for one year and a one chairman for three years.

And so this week we commend the Lions of Georgia upon their selection and throw our hat high into the air for Kermit Carr.

ALL'S FAIR . . . . . By Jane

(TO ANN AND LANE)

"THE church was beautiful... the bride was as a queen... With dignity and grace... her brow serene... Her dress of candlelight satin, rich with pearls... Set a pattern for a bevy of charming girls."

The flower girls, Adria and India, were winsome and sweet... As they strewed rose petals beneath the bride's feet... The wedding ceremony, solemn and so right... Gave the minister's mother special delight... Ed Reeves, a frat brother of Lane, the groom, had practiced for hours alone in his room... The rites were solemn and impressively spoken... And we hope sincerely they prove a token... Of a long and happy life, devoid of all strife.

For Ann and Lane—May their happiness unfold... And blessings fill their lives more precious than gold... Yes, Mr. and Mrs. Johnston will go through life together, ready for sunshine or rain—any kind of weather.

PRATT HILL, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walker Hill, wanted a better wedding after he had been seated with his mother and daddy, he spied his grandmother and "Pa Cobb" closer to the altar than he, so he very quietly slipped out of his pew and went down an aisle, crawled up in "Pa Cobb's" lap and was a very good boy, until Jack Avert started singing. Pratt began to hum softly. Pretty soon he got so happy and sang right out loud. Don't let them kid you Pratt! I remember the time when a beautiful little flower girl, whose name was Ann Evans was in my niece's wedding. When the groom had slipped the ring on the bride's finger, Ann, then about two years old, requested "Dorothy, let me see your ring."

FOUR OLD HEADS GET TOGETHER

The dramatic episode of the evening, as far as members of the wedding party and their friends were concerned, came as the bride and groom, showered with rice ran for their "get-away car."

The pursuit went into action for the usual mad race—but with a difference. They thought they had effectively blocked all the streets and alleyways. But two old heads got together. Ed Watts of Montgomery, a cousin of the bride, Leodel Coleman, and Leavelle Fitch, the bride's uncle, and Kim Lane's brother, whipped up a bit of strategy which was so effective that afterwards, even Sammy Tillman, who was in the "get-away car," was not able to find it.

The incident that I now refer to makes the Cassidy case look like peanuts. This time, our police officers were on the job. They were at the scene of the crime. They even had the best base to make an arrest—no fully backed by the city laws and ordinances. Not even our most critical citizen could have argued that an arrest was unjustified.

man admitted that it was "silly as a whistle."

Here is how it worked:

Leodel had his car parked at the walk in front of Mrs. Grimes' home, with the engine running. He had posted Margaret Robertson at the door, open ready for Ann and Lane. Sammy Tillman and Ginny Lee Floyd, running ahead of Ann and Lane, jumped in the front seat with Leodel, pleased as punch at their delaying tactic.

But Lane and Ann whipped by, ignoring Leodel, ran across the street, and over to the Shearouse driveway where Ed Watts was waiting in his parked car. Ed fled down the Shearouse driveway to Park Avenue, whipped South, and pulled in behind Grady Altavay's machine shop near Claude Howard's lumber mill. In the meantime Leodel drove to the south end of College boulevard to block it. Bucky Atkins managed to get by him. Before Leodel took off, Sammy and Ginny Lee realized what was happening and managed to get out of Leodel's car and got in their car, only to find Mill street blocked to them by Leavelle's car. They were completely stopped.

By this time Bucky had found Ed Watts car with the bridal couple. Leodel let Bucky in between the street and Ed's car. It was then that Kim drove up in the real "get-away car." While Leodel and Ed kept Bucky trapped, Ann and Lane transferred to Kim's car and they were away. Leodel and Ed held Bucky for several moments. However, he finally succeeded in getting by Leodel and out of the trap—but it was too late.

Bucky drove back to Ann's home after an unsuccessful search and the couple was honeymoon bound to Nassau and Havana. FAY ANN JOSH LANIER had a very delightful party for all the children on their block of College Boulevard Thursday night. They entertained for their little son, Van, who is a bit over three years old and maybe a bit jealous of his little brother, Ramee. Josh engineered all the games, the kind he played when he was a boy, such as sack races and tug of war. The little fellows roared with delight. There was a weiner roast and later came movies. Imagine their surprise when they saw the rodeo just as they had seen it when produced in Statesboro, filmed by Josh in color. It made a real Western show for the guests. The

These questions should be answered: Why was an arrest not made? Why weren't the offenders brought before the proper authorities of this city at the proper time for a trial? Was it because a city official was involved? Most of us citizens aren't too bright. We know little about laws and ordinances; and even those that do seldom bother to demand justice. But, you know, one doesn't have to be very intelligent to know that the incident referred to above was whitewashed and kept under cover. Yes, it was finally brought before the Grand Jury—What happened to the Mayor's Court? Let every citizen answer these questions in his own mind.

Country Boys Set Up Funds For One Big Splurge

BY VIRGINIA RUSSELL

It is not unusual for country folk to visit town when the harvest is in. So perhaps it is natural that the three young workers in the family had dreamed of the city with its bright lights all during the tobacco season. The two older boys were ticket boys for different phases of the work for the new year. A barbecue supper was served to the men's group.

All during the summer's intense heat spirits were kept cool by thoughts of the anticipated sightseeing visit to Atlanta via Stone Mountain. Pennies were tucked away for the big splurge.

At last the time arrived for a short vacation to Grandmother's. From there the plans would be made. Also waiting at this wonderful meeting place were four teenagers—cousins. They were numerous young and older cousins but these four were quite special.

An out-of-town guest, Mrs. Odell Williamson was introduced to the group.

The nominating committee, composed of Mrs. Hamp Smith, chairman, Mrs. H. G. Parrish Sr., and Mrs. J. H. Griffith, announced the officers of the new year as follows: President, Mrs. Lenwood McElveen; vice president, Mrs. John C. Cromley; secretary, Mrs. Aquilla Warnock; treasurer, Mrs. Prather Deal. Committees from different organizations were selected to assist Mrs. J. H. Griffith in making outstanding plans for the coming year. The advisory committee selected is composed of children on the block are Jan, Johnny and Cheryl Welch, Amelia, Danny Florence Ann, and Jean Robertson, Frederick Shearouse, Raymond and Florence Summerlin. They were entertained from six until the parents came for them at 8 o'clock and were served a drink before they took the children.

HEARING THE NAMES of the Robertson Clan reminded me of something they did during a recent weekend. The children were given names last Christmas and told to save their money until Labor Day weekend when Mother and Daddy would take them to Atlanta. The time came for the holiday and it was a humdinger! They took in the stores on Saturday afternoon, saw the complete change of lights at Hut Park. They visited the Cycloarama. Even Hunter and Margaret rode the steam locomotive which replaces the pony rides of the past. Rode the trolly to the Fox Theatre where they saw so many things that Daddy got a bit stern about finances. Oh yes, they visited Stone Mountain.

As Hunter stood at the Hotel desk to settle his bill, Amelia, who had remembered his hard luck story asked, "Daddy, do you have enough money to get us out?" And Margaret, to cap it all, while they were visiting the Farmer's Market bought 2 bushels of peas and three bushels of butterbeans and put them all to shelling peas and beans on the homestead trail and the story happily ended with a butterbean train all the way from the market to their residence on College boulevard.

The crowd finally gathered. The sight-seeing had been greatly curtailed. Stone Mountain is not very exciting as viewed through the space allowed by the wind shield wiper. Other excursions were ruled out by the weather. The young ones were gay and happy in spite of it all. We saw the six teen-agers off in a car while several of us older heads were to follow. We tried that the guardian angel would not forsake them on the highway.

This trip was very educational. The young folks (we already knew it) discovered that Statesboro has everything Atlanta has (about) except escalators and Statesboro has a whole lot more than Atlanta has—that good old person touch. The yen for the bright lights has been satisfied—at least until the end of another tobacco season.

Soil Tests To Be Made Here Sept. 19

Bulloch county farmers may have their soil tested chemically on the court house lawn Friday, September 19.

Joel Giddens, associate agronomist from the College of Agriculture, advised the county agents this week that he could send the mobile soil testing unit to Bulloch county next Friday for the day. The unit was here some two years ago.

Farmers desiring to know the amount of phosphate, nitrogen, potash and other plans growing elements now in their soils are urged to bring their samples in Friday morning as early as possible. Mr. Giddens will also make fertilizer recommendations on various crops for these soils. This chemical test will help to eliminate some of the guess work in fertilizing various crops.

For shallow growing plants, like four rows of corn, samples should be from four inches to four to six inches. Where possible, these samples should be taken from the middle and not from the rows where fertilizer was applied this year. A shovel or spade can be used to procure the samples.

About one-half pint of soil from like areas of a field will be adequate for testing. Samples should be procured from all areas that have different existing conditions, such as low places, flat areas, rolling lands and also from areas that have a different crop growing ability from the other parts of the field and then labeled so they can be identified later.

Miss Gloria McElveen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee McElveen and Miss Inez Plake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Flake will leave next Sunday for Atlanta to enter nursing school at Georgia Baptist Hospital there. These young ladies were members of the 1952 graduation class of the Brooklet school.

What's the MOST SURPRISING THING about this BUICK?

WE'll tell you the answer to that one—the figures on the price tag.

For some reason, lots of people just can't believe they can buy a Buick at a price so close to "the low-priced three."

Maybe it's because a Buick seems so much better and bigger.

Maybe it's because they think Buick has so much more power and room—which is true.

Maybe it's because so many distinguished people own Buicks—which is also a fact.

But the fact remains—if you can afford a

Trading Post Make Plans for Two Pigs

The Bulloch county 4-H Club and the East Georgia Trading Post will cooperate in a pig feeding demonstration during the next two months, Miss Betty Jean Beasley, 4-H president, announces.

Gerald Groover, manager of the Trading Post, offered Miss Beasley one of the pigs for the 4-H Club if the club would supervise the demonstration.

Two pigs were procured from Harold Smith, grade Durocs, Friday, September 5. The weighed 88 pounds and Mike 45 pounds.

Miss Beasley and Mr. Groover elected to feed the corn, mineral and water. Mike is to have some hog supplement added to this ration.

Miss Beasley expressed the belief that if the larger pig was chosen to receive the supplement, hog growers might think Mike started off as the best pig and that he did not have a fair deal.

The pigs are to be weighed every two weeks during the demonstration. Miss Beasley stated that she would wait until the 4-H Club council met to decide what to do with Mike. Mr. Groover assured Miss Beasley that he would give the clubsters the pig. Miss Beasley and Mr. Groover are assuming that, from past experience, Mike will grow off considerably faster than Ike.

Soil conservationists estimate that there are about three acres of good cropland for every person in the United States and that about half of each three acres is damaged by erosion.

Soil conservation is not new. Agriculturalists were recommending more grass for the soils of New England more than 200 years ago, according to a U. S. Department of Agriculture bulletin.

It is estimated that more than seven million acres of cropland are needed for the 1951 increase in population.

Crimson Clover Fine For Pastures

Crimson clover does better on the better and more fertile upland soils. It does not do so well on the deep infertile sandy soils.

E. T. Mullis, representative of the Soil Conservation Service in Bulloch county, will help you determine the soils on your farm that are suitable for growing crimson clover.

Bulloch county farmers are urged to check on results being obtained with crimson clover on the following farms: Henry and Fred Bitch, Chise Smith, Furman Jones and R. L. Mann, of West Side; Cecil Kennedy, Sam Nevils, and Otis Holloway of Register; A. G. Roeder and Roscoe Roberts of Nevils; A. F. Murphy and Roy Kelly of Chito.
