Bermuda test plots to be seen at Baxley

Plans for a Grass Field Day at the Georgia Baptist Children's Home farm near Baxley are well under way, the Rev. Charles D. Stewart, chairman of the planning committee, appointed by supervisors of the Atlanta Soil Conservation District, says.

Fertilizer demonstration plots of three acres of Coastal bermuda each are being treated by various fertilizer manufacturer's agronomists. Two three-acre plots, both highly fertilized, are being grazed—one irrigated and the other unirrigated.

Hay cutting and baling demonstration will be conducted on 20 acres of Coastal bermuda grass August 26 when the event is planned to demonstrate management, fertilization and uses of Coastal Bermuda.

Ten acres of the hay field July 19 received a unit of anhydrous ammonia per acre following a heavy application of commercial fertilizer earlier.

Miss Nell Curtis to be here for U. S. Navy

Miss Nell Curtis, Navy Department Civilian Representative, has announced that she will be located for a limited time at the Navy Recruiting Station, Post Office Building, in Savannah where she will take applications for stenographic positions with the Navy in Washington, D. C., and will interview and test those who meet the basic requirements.

When questioned as to the effect of the President's policy to cut Federal spending upon recruitment activities, Miss Curtis explained that there is a shortage of good stenographers in the labor market and it is necessary for Navy to recruit for applicants to be used in clerical positions regarded as essential after careful review by the department.

Miss Curtis may be reached at the Navy Recruiting Station, Room 1B, Post Office Building in Savannah between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. Mondays through Fridays. Further information and special appointments for evenings and Saturdays may be secured by writing or phoning.

One day Farm Bureau membership drive set for Wednesday, September 2

Bulloch county and Georgia Farm Bureau leaders and members are set to beat their national record set last year by conducting the first one-day Farm Bureau membership drive in the nation. The result last year was 35,000 members in one day.

The gigantic force of workers will begin their canvass of farm homes in communities throughout Georgia on Wednesday, September 2. The army of workers will be on the move early, with individual county workers getting together at an early morning breakfast scheduled in most counties at 6:30 a. m.

Assembled workers, together with rural Georgia folks who are set to beat their national record set last year by conducting the first one-day Farm Bureau membership drive in the nation. The result last year was 35,000 members in one day.

lens and issues will discuss the present agriculture situation and outlook.

Governor Talmadge has already proclaimed September 2, 1953, as National Farm Bureau Day, and has issued a statement calling to the attention of the producers of food and fiber the importance of uniting into an organization to promote their economic welfare and advancement. Similar statements have been issued by Georgia congressmen and by farm leaders in all 48 states.

The one-day drive this year follows on the heels of one of the most concentrated publicity campaigns in the history of Georgia Farm Bureau. Local publicity committees have been busy for several weeks distributing their radio to one of approximately 40 radio stations scheduled to broadcast a special Farm Bureau Day program. The broadcast will include a message from H. L. Wingate, president of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation, and Georgia Senator Richard B. Russell. The two authorities on farm prob-

Bankers loan farmer more than other agencies

During 1952 Georgia farmers called upon the state's banks to provide them with more credit than was extended by any other type of farm lending agency, according to W. G. Cobb, president of the Bulloch County Bank, who represents the Georgia Bankers Association as Bulloch County Key Banker.

Quoting from the twelfth annual study of farm lending by the Agricultural Bankers Association of the American Bankers Association, Mr. Cobb noted that on January 1, 1953, Georgia banks had loans totaling $55,375,000 outstanding to farmers, compared with $27,916,000 held by Farmers Home Administration, which had the second largest block of farm loans outstanding.

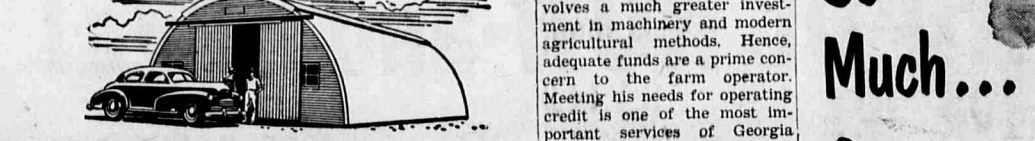

"As they have in the past, the state's farmers continued last year to turn mostly to their banks when they needed credit," Mr. Cobb said. "The amount of credit the farmer needs to run a successful operation is much larger today than it was in past decades," he continued. "Farming is now a mechanized, highly competitive enterprise; and operating a profitable farm involves a much greater investment in machinery and modern agricultural methods. Hence, adequate funds are a prime concern to the farm operator. Meeting his needs for operating credit is one of the most important services of Georgia banks."

Dawn Of New Day' tells about Bulloch's fine farms

By JACK GILCHRIST
Constitution Farm Editor

A new color film depicting Georgia revolutionary transition from row crops to grassland pastures exhibited for the first time at West Side School Tuesday night as hundreds of farm people joined members of the Agricultural Extension Service, bankers and other interested persons for the world premier of "The Dawn of a New Day."

Two and one-half years in the making, the new film contains practical information on pasture programs with Extension Service officials believe will be of value to thousands of farmers throughout the state.

Theme of the film, which was produced by the Extension Service through the sponsorship of the Trust Company of Georgia, is the development of pastures and the livestock industry in Georgia. "The new day," which the film portrays adequately, began over a decade ago when farmers began using machinery, planting new grasses and employing better fertilization practices.

The picture tells the story of a master farmer as he changes his farm operation from just row crops to a more diversified program including pastures and livestock. It shows the farmer, portrayed by Blitch, as he maps out the changes with his county agent, visits and talks with his banker, tours the state studying various pasture grasses, the preparation of the land, fertilization, seeding and planting, and the final results of a well-planned, balanced program.

THE BULLOCH HERALD

Dedicated To The Progress Of Statesboro And Bulloch County

STATESBORO, GEORGIA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 27, 1953

NUMBER 41

Bulloch County gathers at American Legion Club to honor Cpl. Walter Olliff Moore, freed Korean Prisoner Of War

"Pray for the boys left in Korea" and "We have a free country. Let's keep it that way," was the speech Cpl. Walter Olliff Moore made to his homefolk as they honored him with a great homecoming at the American Legion Club on U. S. 301 last night.

A wonderful crowd was there to welcome him as he arrived at the head of a mile long motorcade led by Portal, Statesboro and Bulloch county officials.

Congressman Prince Preston was the principal speaker at the ceremonies which preceded an old fashioned barbecue given by the American Legion.

"Congressman Preston stated in his brief talk that 'every man, woman and child in America owes a debt of gratitude to Olliff Moore.' He added that Olliff Moore commands the respect and deepest admiration of every citizen of Bulloch county and the nation."

On the speaking platform with Congressman Preston were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brack, parents of Corporal Moore, and Miss Jackie Moore of Rockyford.

Francis Allen was master of ceremonies. Elder Henry Waters gave the invocation. Among those welcoming Cpl. Moore were: A. S. Dodd, state commander of the American Legion; B. B. Hodges, commander of the local post; Allen R. Almer, chairman of the Bulloch County Board of Commissioners; A. B. McDougald, representing the city of Statesboro; J. E. Roland, mayor of Portal; and county school superintendent H. P. Womack.

The civic clubs of Statesboro presented Moore with a certificate for merchandise.

"Hello everybody in Georgia," Cpl. Moore said as he stepped into a microphone he had set off the plane at the Municipal Airport in Atlanta Monday afternoon, completing the second leg of his long journey home from Prison Camp No. 5 at Unsong, Korea.

Congressman Moore, who was captured by the Communists in Korea on November 4, 1950, arrived in Atlanta from San Francisco, by plane. He arrived in Statesboro on Monday afternoon, completing the second leg of his long journey home from Prison Camp No. 5 at Unsong, Korea.
