Recruits for band are sought

Forty new recruits for the Elementary School Band is the objective of the campaign which will begin soon in the Sallie Zetterower and Mattie Lively Elementary Schools, according to C. L. Tarpley, new band director of the Statesboro schools.

"It is not impossible to achieve this objective," Mr. Tarpley said.

"All parents desire their children to play some musical instrument," Mr. Tarpley continues, "and the schools here offer the best opportunity for them to do so."

In order to determine those best suited to participate, scientific tests have been given to determine the inherent musical ability of the children, he pointed out.

Arrangements will be made whereby instruments may be rented for three months to make sure the children will succeed before future investment is made, the bandmaster said.

At a recent meeting of the Sixth District of the Georgia Chiopracetic Association, Dr. K. R. Herring of Statesboro was elected chairman of the district for the coming year. The meeting was held at the DeSoto Hotel in Savannah on September 18.

tions for police, water and other departments have been made and the first Civil Defense rector for Statesboro and Bulloch county has been appointed. The most recent significant development in Statesboro is the progress of the City of Statesboro, which is now making plans for bringing in natural gas. Mayor Bowen and other city officials worked for a long time to make this possible for Statesboro citizens.

Mayor Bowen is also a leader in the move to secure new industries for Statesboro and Bulloch county.

Underprivileged kids to get to see big circus

Through the cooperation of Statesboro and Bulloch county merchants and the Statesboro Lions Club, hundreds of underprivileged children will see the King Brothers Circus when it comes to town Thursday, Oct. 13. And at the same time, other children and adults have the opportunity of seeing the circus and helping a worthy humanitarian cause.

Sponsored by the Lions Club, with three other organizations, also sharing, the circus will play plans for the extension of the city limits in order to keep pace with the rapidly expanding population of the community.

Editorials

National Newspaper Week — October 1-8

One week each year the newspapers of our nation take time out to focus attention on an institution in whose operation you have a vastly greater hand than perhaps you've ever realized. The institution is your newspaper—your weekly newspaper.

This week is the one designated this year as National Newspaper Week. The theme is built around the idea that "Your Newspaper Fights for Your Right to Know."

Let's begin by dismantling that term newspaper. It means paper which, after due processing, comes to you covered with news. Paper is a self-evident, tangible thing. There is no disagreement as to what it is. But what of news? It is a far less self-evident and deceptively intangible.

News, in fact, is all things to all men. What it is depends on who is defining it.

And it is your definition, not the editor's, that matters. The paper stays in business if it does a competent job of fulfilling your definition of news. If it devotes itself just to the editor's conception of news, it soon fails.

When a newspaper man speaks of his news judgement he doesn't mean his ability to determine what really counts under some mysterious process of selection. He means, instead, his ability to surmise what you will consider news. How good he is and how successful the paper is depends on how unerringly he can make that surmise.

Corner shrubbery is traffic hazard

Some accidents focus our attention on imperfections in our attempt to make our streets safe for automobile drivers.

Police patrol our residential sections in order to serve as warning to race-track drivers. Stop signs are erected to halt drivers at certain intersections. Yellow lines are painted on the streets to indicate pedestrian zones.

But street corners in our residential sections on which shrubbery or trees grow are allowed to remain and they stand as constant hazards to traffic.

An accident occurs and a "reason" offered is in many cases "obstructed vision." The driver complains that he or she "just didn't see the other car coming."

Most of this vision-obstructing street corner shrubbery could be eliminated without destroying the beauty of the corner.

We believe that property owners would not object, but would be glad to cooperate with the city authorities, where the obstruction is on private property. Where it is on city property, we believe the community would approve their decision to take it up.

They're better women because of her

It must still seem just a little strange for the girls of the Junior class at the College to return to Lewis Hall from classes or from club activities, or from the dining hall and not see or know that

All readers won't agree that some particular item is news, naturally, but the editor must meet each reader's definition often enough so that every reader will feel he's getting his money's worth when he buys the paper.

That is where and how you have such a very big hand in determining what goes into a newspaper.

Now as to the effort to take this function away from you. It lies in a growing effort by some people, who are neither editors nor representatives of the readers, to decide arbitrarily which facts shall be printed—without reference to what any individual might consider news.

These people are the censored. They appear in government and in pressure groups. They include those who try to conduct government behind closed doors and in secret places. They are all those who would take away free access to information which the citizen, with his individual right to say what is news, is entitled to have.

National Newspaper Week's purpose will be served if you, the reader, will pause to contemplate the big part you are playing in the printing of the news and whether you are willing to have that part taken away from you.

A sure way to lose this part is to reason that when freedom of information goes the editor is the only loser. You lose, far, far more than any editor possibly can.

Miss Mamie Veasey is not there.

Two years ago "Miss Mamie" retired and made her home here in Statesboro. Then last year she moved to Chattanooga, Tenn. And then news reached us that "Miss Mamie" passed away and that funeral services were held for her on September 10, at Lafayette, Ala.

For almost a quarter of a century "Miss Mamie" was a mother to the girls who came to school at our college.

"Miss Mamie" loved the college through all its years of progress—during its years of struggle. She called Statesboro her home.

And we're sure that every girl who came under her care is today a better woman for it.

"Miss Mamie" is being missed at Teachers College.

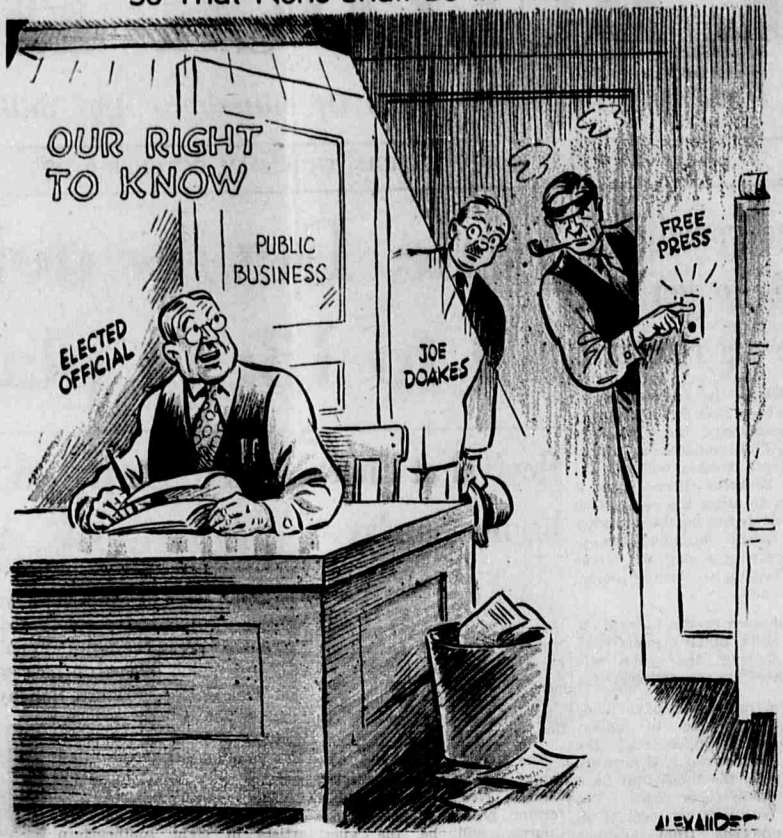

All those who knew her and loved her miss her.

We commend our city for their action

We commend our city officials upon their action to improve the sidewalks of our business section. Work began Monday on that section from the Bargain Corner to the Bulloch County Bank on North Main street. A new smooth finish sidewalk will replace the old concrete blocks. The blocks taken up will be used to repair the sections around the courthouse which are in bad state. That section on West front of H. Minkovitz and Sons will be repaired.

These sections of our sidewalk have been hazards to pedestrians for a long time, and we join the citizens of our community in commending the city for their action.

So That None Shall Be In The Dark

It reached out and shook my hand and with the tears in his eyes he turned away and walked out into the world. He was seventeen years of age and he was in trouble. He had made up his mind to join the Navy.

Just a few days before a letter had come to me through the mail. It was a letter from the Navy Department. Will you recommend this man for service? It had said. What of his character? his loyalty? his citizenship?

I HAD SENT him word to come and he came into the office there was a sadness in his heart which few could understand. He sat down and we talked and he told me of his plans.

It was a hard thing to do, to tell him what you would have to write. It was hard to tell him that the truth would have to be told or that you would have to refuse to write him a recommendation.

He looked at me with level eyes and as the tears came I somehow knew that in this boy could be found the makings of a man. He understood it said and asked me to write that which was in my heart.

AND THEN he went away, carrying with him a feeling that somehow, somewhere along the way, someone whom he loved had failed. Someone had failed to guide him, to love him and to believe in him, and having been denied that which every child must have, he had failed himself.

This Week's Meditation

By Rev. J. W. Grooms

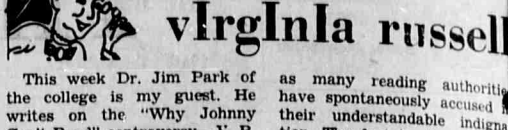

THE CORONATION OF COMRADESHIP. TEXT: "Verily I say unto thee, today thou shalt be with me in paradise." Luke 23:43.

What the dying thief had in mind when he appealed to Jesus is difficult to determine, but in his words, and in Jesus' answer one common element appears: companionship. The thief asked not for pardon, rewards, honors, or any advantage, only that Jesus should remember him; and Jesus promised none of these things, only "Thou shalt be with me." Time and place are secondary. The personal relationship with Jesus was supreme. Here we see the coronation of companionship.

WHAT HAD these two men in common? In life's purpose they were as far apart as the east and the west. The deeds of Jesus were as much above the deeds of the thief as heaven is high above the earth. In his experiences they were as unlike as light and darkness. Jesus sat on God's throne while the thief groined under his footstep. How could they be companions? How can two walk together unless they be agreed. They were comrades in suffering.

HOW MANY A PERSON measure the richness and reality of his Christian life. Not his religious habits, nor by his beneficent deeds, nor by his lip's confession, for other motives may prompt these. It is a longing to share Christ's life, to be united with him in a mystic, monastic fashion, but in all life's experiences, is dominant, he cannot be far from the kingdom of God. "O Master, now we walk together unless they be agreed. They were comrades in suffering.

This week Dr. Jim Park of the college is my guest. He writes on the "Why Johnny Can't Read" controversy. V. R.

WHAT FLESH DIDN'T TELL ABOUT WHY JOHNNY CAN'T READ. By J. D. PARK, Ed. D. Director of Teacher Education Georgia Teachers College

The current tempest of praise and censure being heaped upon the late lamented Joseph P. Fleish has been enjoyed in teaching circles. It is a deficiency that has existed since long before Johnny (or his parents) learned to read, and it is one which becomes more damaging and dangerous daily. This deficiency is not pointing out in Fleish's work, but success heavily underscores it. This deficiency lies in the fact that teachers have not yet discovered a way to instruct Johnny (or adults) to read, interpret, and evaluate what they read. In other words, they have not yet discovered a way to instruct Johnny (or adults) to read, interpret, and evaluate what they read.

Fleish counted on this ability on the part of parents for whom he wrote the book to make it successful. Naturally, he could not read, and he was the very factor about reading which would discredit his whole effort; so he failed to include any mention of reading for meaning. I will leave it to the many others who have already done so to bring out the numerous false accusations, tendentious statements, and ungrounded generalizations of why JOHNNY CAN'T READ. But it is to the credit of these same scholars who have labored tirelessly that more Johnny might read well, that they have shown increasing alarm over the need for a kind of instruction that would enable and compel all Johnny's to read.

It was voted that the South-east Bulloch Chapter meet the fourth Wednesday night in each month. At this regular monthly meeting a business session will be held, supper served, and the time and place for other activities of the group scheduled. A motion was made and carried to extend the contest for writing new members two more meetings.

Ernest L. Veal has completed plans for the mission day work in several communities. He will teach the book, "The Story of the Church," on his brush statements to bring that generation of loving parents to spring instantly to the defense of the manner in which they were taught in their own early childhood. Again, it has.

Authorities on reading throughout the nation have pointed out Fleish's obvious disregard of the factor of teaching in children to read for meaning. He did not do this out of ignorance, as may have assumed. It could only have been done deliberately. This successful author possesses a keen analytical mind and has demonstrated the fact by producing a number of exceptionally well received books in recent years. Nor is he as ignorant about the teaching of reading as the confusions in his recent book would indicate, or

There are perhaps two outstanding factors which have made the public so susceptible to his reading habits. One of these might be traced back to the story of Washington and the cherry tree, or before. Once we believed that tender story, but one day some investigator wrote an article disproving it. The next day, like many another since that time it has been discredited. Marking has this strange quality which makes him enjoy the downfall of his fellows, especially those who have been better, more successful, or more

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

OLD-TIMERS who were up town early Monday morning found their memories stirred when the city engineer began tearing up the sidewalks along North Main street from the Bargain Corner to the Bulloch County Bank. Pretty soon after they began tearing up those concrete blocks the workers dug up the ends of three fat light-wood posts, still in an excellent state of preservation. Some guessed that they were the remains of old hitching posts which might have been along the street back in the days when But City Engineer James Bland says the best guess is completed that they are the remains of the hitching posts which supported the tin shelter which at one time covered the sidewalks of Statesboro. They are about six inches in diameter and about 16 inches long. The assumption is that when the streets and sidewalks were paved and the tin awnings removed the posts were saved off at ground level, the ends remaining in the ground to be discovered Monday morning. The fact that created the excitement is that the posts ends are still solid and firm with no evidence of rotting after all these years.

There was the feel of autumn in the air Monday morning. Makes a person feel good and the city engineer says "The Thanksgiving is not far off and that Christmas is soon to come. Leaves are covering yards and sidewalks. Football reigns supreme on Friday nights for the high school crowds and on Saturdays for the college crowds and the old spall. We used to think that June

REGULATED OR NON-REGULATED LOANS?
The Consumer Finance Industry of Georgia is an integral part of the economy of the state and its citizens.
As such it has a responsibility to all the people, in order that the public not be misled by the many minor loans of lenders who would take an unfair advantage of their fellow citizens.
This, we in the industry have consistently tried to do.
The business of lending is regulated by law. This is necessary in order that the public not be misled by the many minor loans of lenders who would take an unfair advantage of their fellow citizens.
We pledge our full cooperation with State, County and City governments in continuing a strict adherence to both letter and spirit of the law in all our relationships with the public.
We urge you, as a citizen of this great state, to acquaint yourself with the laws regulating the lending and borrowing of money, so that you may be in a position to judge fairly and impartially the charges or complaints which may be made against the Consumer Finance Industry.
We want to be FAIR to the public. We want the public to be FAIR to us.

Henry Blitch, Willis S. Williams plan to attend state convention

Plans for attending the State Farm Bureau convention came up for right much discussion at the West Side meeting Tuesday night and at Stilson Wednesday night.

Henry S. Blitch, president of West Side, and Willis S. Williams, president at Stilson, both planned to attend the state convention in Macon October 10 to 12 and wanted several men and women from each of the chapters to go along with them.

Both groups reported approximately the same membership renewed this year as they had in 1954. Stilson turned in 112 cards and West Side enrolled 119.

Larry Berenbeck, field man for the Water Resources Development Corporation out of Denver, gave both groups a report on their efforts to procure more water from clouds in this area this year. He traced the history of their work since 1944 and enumerated the various developments in the work and why they started using silver iodide to seed the clouds.

These small particles are much smaller than normal dust and moisture in clouds collect around them, which in turn gives a smaller rain drop that reduces the run off, he pointed out. He stated that the generators had not operated in this area since July 29 nor would they be used any more until harvest was completed.

A. R. Clark Jr., and John N. Rushing Jr., vice chairman and treasurer of the local organization, respectively, addressed the meetings also.

JUDGE RENFROE AT STILSON

Judge J. L. Renfro, who was the speaker at Stilson, Judge Renfro expressed the belief that every individual was put on this earth for a good cause of some kind and that they should live so that when they looked in a mirror and faced themselves, they could do so with a clear conscience. Just living so that you don't get caught doing things you should not do is not enough, Judge Renfro stated. You have to live with yourself, and need to live where you can enjoy living with yourself. If an individual is to make the world brighter, this is necessary.

Judge Renfro enumerated the many improvements in living conditions since 1900 in material things and then urged those present to make a special effort to improve themselves as well. He enumerated the many reasons some people gave for not wanting to join the Farm Bureau. For instance, he declared that no one should try to live off of the efforts of his neighbors. They are honor bound to help carry the load.

Dan C. Lee warned the group at Stilson that they would have to plant their own cotton for two years now. Francis Groover reminded the group of the community committee elections on October 4, from 8 to 10 p. m. at the regular voting places.

In the drawings at Stilson, Mrs. J. W. Newman got a free membership in the Farm Bureau for this year. W. W. Robertson got a free subscription to both local papers, Fred D. Edwards a subscription to one of the papers and Mrs. W. A. Groover and Mrs. J. H. Woodward free apples.

Mr. Blitch announced that H. L. Wingo, president of the Georgia Farm Bureau, would be the speaker at Stilson. Judge Renfro expressed the belief that every individual was put on this earth for a good cause of some kind and that they should live so that when they looked in a mirror and faced themselves, they could do so with a clear conscience. Just living so that you don't get caught doing things you should not do is not enough, Judge Renfro stated. You have to live with yourself, and need to live where you can enjoy living with yourself. If an individual is to make the world brighter, this is necessary.

Mr. D. A. Edentfield, a co-operator of the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District, of the Ogeechee community reports highly good results from his terracing system which he installed last year. At first he didn't like the idea of putting a sodded waterway down the middle of his field, but since the heavy rains this year he thinks it is a very good idea. He thinks the terracing system has done several thousand dollars worth of good already. We hope they will continue to save his soil, water fertilizer, crops, and improve his yields thereby.

Mr. Carl Hodges planted a wildlife border of bicolor lespedeza last March with plants distributed through the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District by the State Game and Fish Commission, and a finer first year's growth I've never seen. It is higher than my head now and thick. He planted it thick and it kept down weed competition. I believe this is the secret of success.

Mr. Paul Johnson on U. S. 80, northwest of Statesboro, has the best old wildlife border of bicolor and sericea lespedeza that I have ever seen. He established his seed in 1947.

We hope to get more good wildlife borders over the county for the production of our quail.

For a penny electricity does a day's dishes

That's all it costs for electricity to wash and dry two loads of dishes in an electric dishwasher. All over your home, electricity works in many ways, for mere pennies a day. It washes, cooks, cleans, lights, even entertains.

Electric service is the biggest bargain in your family budget. And the men and women of the Georgia Power Company work constantly to keep it that way.

Georgia homes pay 22 per cent less than the national average per kilowatt-hour.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1955

The Bulloch County Home Demonstration Council met Friday afternoon at the Methodist Church with the Warnock Home Demonstration Club serving as the Hostess Club for the afternoon. Eighty-five ladies from each of the fifteen clubs were present.

The Warnock Club members did two skits for the group. 1. The Wrong Way to Conduct a Club Meeting, and 2. The Right Way to Conduct a Club Meeting. Miss Joyce Davis gave a most interesting and inspiring devotional. Her topic was "House Cleaning." Mrs. Barnes led the group in several songs.

Council project chairman joined Mrs. Sara Thigpen for a panel discussion in which each chairman gave her individual project report. Excellent reports were given and definite signs of progress was evident.

Mrs. Emmet Scott, Council President, presided at the business session.

Dates were set up for the following events: Chrysanthemum Show, November 10. Bazaar, November 10, to be set up between the hours of 2:00 and 3:00. Program Planning Meeting, Wednesday, December 7th. Annual Banquet, January 4th. To increase our attendance at our council meetings, it was decided.

GTC enrollment 28 percent over 1954

An incomplete enrollment of 744 students has been reported by Georgia Teachers College a 28 per cent increase over last year's final fall quarter figure of 584. Still a week to go before the deadline for late registration Monday, October 3.

Dean Paul F. Carroll said 1,000 students is anticipated within the next three years, according to college officials. The prospect of this increase makes plans for a new women's dormitory mandatory, since the increase this year has already swelled over the normal capacity for the women's dormitories. With the two large men's dormitories, housing for men is of no immediate concern.

Today's incomplete figure represents an increase of 160 students over last fall quarter. Breakdown according to classes: 26 freshmen, 175 sophomores, 149 juniors, and 131 seniors, according to Miss Viola Perry, registrar.

The other factor is the accused respect mankind has learned for the scientific method by which so many of our traditional beliefs and values have been disproved. In late years, such a mass of scientific light has come to bear on things physically and otherwise that we have all been required many times to alter our thinking and our behavior. We buy fewer patent medicines and more books. We are taught, to respect and honor their teachers.

Flesh knew both these facts, and he counted on them to pre-dispose the public to accept on first reading, and with some shock, the flat accusations and misleading statements about Johnny's reading teacher. The scientific and scholarly investigation has conditioned us to accept new thoughts and new ways without a second glance.
