How Your Television "Commercial" Will Look

To enhance an impressive list of manufacturing "firsts," Chevrolet now engages in another pioneering venture as the first motor car manufacturer to sponsor a regular commercial television show. Admittedly an exploratory venture to evaluate the possibilities of television as an advertising medium, these broadcasts were the first employing live talent to be sponsored by any automobile producer.

Four weekly shows were staged by Chevrolet and broadcast through the facilities of the American Broadcasting Company's television network. The shows were telecast at the Dumont Studios in New York for the three stations currently teamed in the ABC television network. Shown above is a scene from the second of the series, a half-hour program titled "Roads to Romance."

THE BULLOCH HERALD

DEDICATED TO THE PROGRESS OF STATESBORO AND BULLOCH COUNTY

Statesboro, Georgia, Thursday, July 25, 1946

NUMBER 36

Candidates Watch As Congressional Recount Proceeds

Judge J. L. Renfro, of the Ogeechee circuit, in his charge to the Bulloch county July grand jury at the opening of Superior Court here Monday morning urged a most program of soil improvement, the national government's contribution to schools, and the improvement of the countryside.

Judge Renfro told the jurors that the labor situation in this section has not improved in the past twelve months and that he has found farmers co-operating in barning tobacco. For that reason, he explained, the July term of court would be shortened as much as possible.

The Ogeechee jurist touched on land waste, urging the adoption of a soil improvement program. He stated that people move away when the soil becomes poor and that he feared loss of both our people and resources unless some thing is done. He also urged industrial enterprises to help balance the agricultural program.

Judge Renfro stated that in the South two-thirds of the population get education in rural schools and that the rural sections do not have finances to maintain proper schools. He stated that he favored national government contributions for schools. He also pleaded for improvement of rural homes, landscaping and modernization of farm homes.

J. W. Robertson was named foreman of the July grand jury.

GRAND JURY PRESENT.

JULY TERM, 1946
BULLOCH SUPERIOR COURT: We, the Grand Jury, chosen and sworn to serve at the July Term, 1946, Bulloch Superior Court, wish to submit the following report:

We hereby appoint Dr. John Mooney, Jr. as a member of the County Health Board for a term of four (4) years.

We recommend to the citizens of the County a more general observance of the Sabbath, especially to university work, fishing and hunting and other recreation of the Sabbath.

We wish to thank His Honor, J. L. Renfro, Judge of the Superior Court, for his able charge and courtesy to this body.

We wish to thank Mr. Fred T. Lanier, Solicitor General, for his assistance and courtesy in the matters presented to our body.

We recommend that the presentments be published in the Bulloch Times and The Bulloch Herald, and that the usual amount be allowed for publishing the same.

Respectfully submitted,
J. W. ROBERTSON, Foreman.
D. L. ALDERMAN, JR. Clerk.

He's 'Mister' To Us Now

The hue and cry have died down, the four years beginning January Bulloch Countians are settling back into the memories of the in-crease in the cost of living, the problems created in raising children, the business of making a living and keeping their homes.

The election is over and "The Man" has won.

In one of the most "rugged" campaigns in the memories of the younger voters, and according to some of the old heads, the "rough-est" they recollect, "The Man", Mr. Eugene Talmadge was elected governor of the state of Georgia.

We now address "The Man" as "Mister," for he is to be the governor of this great state of Georgia, and the governor, regardless of whom he be, commands that respect.

We do not hesitate to admit that the results of the election laid us low, but we're now up and about. One of Mr. Talmadge's more ardent supporters came into our office Thursday morning and passed out aspirin tablets, for which we are duly grateful. All Mr. Talmadge's supporters and friends in Bulloch county are being generous with us. Many have called by to offer us condolences and have shaken our hands and have assured us that Bulloch county and Georgia will profit by the selection of Mr. Talmadge to steer our destiny for very best.

This will be interpreted by many as "our covering up statement."

That's ok by us. Those who know us will recognize our sincerity and those who know us not have the right to think what they will.

All we ask is, "Mister Talmadge, consider well your charge. Friends would like to have to live in. Now

After a number of years I've come so accustomed to children bringing home stray cats and dogs to say nothing of toads, crippled birds and the like, that I wasn't too much surprised when my child began to ask just what kind of house I thought a guinea pig would like to have to live in. Now

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

It can be as hot as a fire popper. But that don't make no never-mind. If there's a square dance in the community they'll be there. Swinging your partner. Balance all! Dance with the gal with the waterfall. Skip light, ladies, the cake's all dough.

Nevermind the weather so the wind don't blow. So sings out the caller. And to you young people a "waterfall" is not what you see when you go to Niagara Falls, but, of all things, a hairdo!

Next to the fiddler the caller is the king bee at a square dance. He tells 'em what to do. It is he who controls the Figures—to the gentlemen, "Take nice little dainty steps," and directs the ladies to join a circle, "Pretty side out!"

In spite of the heat and the sweat the caller has the most fun of all. He has to be a man with big lungs and a powerful voice to be heard above the shuffling of feet on the floor, and the fiddler hunched over his fiddle.

"Constalk fiddle and a shoe-string bow. If that ain't dancing, I don't know."

Your caller may be dressed in overalls and brogans but he is the conductor of a living symphony of movement, a weaver of patterns whose elements are men and women. He is also humorist, minister, and poet. There he stands beside the fiddlers. He is about to call a dance change, the execution of which will take some time. The heat of the music is compelling.

RYALS-JOHNSEN

The marriage of Miss Lillian Ryals and Martin Wesley Johnson, Jr., of Hinesville, was solemnized last Friday evening, July 19 at 7:30 at the home of the bride. The impressive ring ceremony was performed by Rev. J. B. Hutchings, pastor of the Brooklet Methodist Church, in the presence of the immediate relatives.

The bride and groom entered the living room together. The bride was attractively dressed in a summer suit of white with a sheer, light blue blouse and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Ryals, mother of the bride wore a dress of black sheer with a white corsage.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. W. M. Jones, was dressed in a navy suit with a white corsage.

Mrs. Johnson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ryals. She is a graduate of the Brooklet High School of the class of 1945. Since her graduation she has held a position in Alders in Savannah.

Mr. Johnson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Johnson, Sr., of Hinesville, former citizens of this community.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left for Hinesville where they will make their home.

Applying needed minerals to pastures helps better pasture plant to grow and to provide more grazing.

SUMMER SESSION

ENROLLMENT 380

More than 330 students are enrolled for the second session of summer school at Georgia Teachers College, Miss Viola Perry, registrar, announced today.

Composed largely of Georgia teachers and returned veterans this student body, second largest late summer enrollment in the college's history, comes from from counties in every section of the state, Florida, South Carolina, Indiana and Cuba.

Cows should be fed according to their milk producing capacity so they will make the best production records.

In flocks from which hatching eggs are being sold, much better hatching ability is realized if eggs are cooled quickly and placed in cool, moist room.

Proper pasture management will increase the yield and quality of grazing furnished by permanent pastures.

Higher production can be realized if the laying houses are made comfortable for the hens. Ventilate laying house in front and rear. Insulate top of laying house by lining it with cardboard paper or putting in straw loft.

HONORING MISS TILLMAN

Miss Margaret Tillman, bride-elect, was the honoree at a lovely shower-tea given by her aunts, Mrs. Julian Tillman and Mrs. Herschel Franklin last Tuesday afternoon at the Tillman home which was beautifully decorated with dahlias, roses and other flowers of the season. The beautifully appointed table was covered with a imported linen cloth and was centered with a large bowl of pink roses and feverfew flanked by pink tapers in five-branched candelabra.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Arnold Anderson and forming the receiving line besides the honoree guest and hostesses were: Mrs. J. G. Tillman, mother of the honoree and Miss Lorena Durden.

An ice course and individual cakes were served by Misses Patty Banks, Betty Lovett, Nell Bowen, Annette Marsh, Betty Sue Brannen and Mary Lee Brannen. Punch was served by Misses Patsy Odom and Elaine West.

Mrs. Carl Franklin kept the bride's book and Mrs. Inman Dekle presided in the gift room. Others who assisted were: Mrs. Edwin Groover, Mrs. A. L. Clifton, Mrs. Cohen Anderson, Mrs. Leroy Kennedy.

Miss Tillman, who was lovely in a pink floor-length dress, was presented with a piece of crystal.

To Know Georgia See It First

All over Georgia people are becoming better acquainted with their state as a result of the "Know Georgia Better" campaign, recently launched by the State Agricultural and Industrial Development Board's Tourist Panel. The campaign, which opened in June and continues through August, has as its principal operation exchange visits among civic clubs and other groups throughout the state.

More and more calls and letters outlining plans of clubs to either visit or act as host to other clubs in various sections of the state are being received in the office of Lee S. Trimble, director of the A. I. D. Board's tourist panel, who is in charge of the unique campaign.

Latest clubs to indicate participation in the campaign are the Moultrie and Macon Chambers of Commerce whose officials say that they are open to entertain any board of directors of other C. of C. groups. Carrollton Rotary Club indicates it is ready to visit any other club, and the Hartwell Rotary Club says it is eager to act as host to any visiting club.

The women folk likewise are interested in the idea of knowing Georgia and her people better. For example, Pilots Clubs in Atlanta, Fitzgerald, Macon and Moultrie have indicated they are anxious to either entertain or visit other clubs over the state. Still other groups are in process of making their plans and several have completed arrangements for visiting or entertaining other clubs. Mr. Trimble pointed out.

The "Know Georgia Better" campaign has caught on because it is designed to benefit every community in the state both large and small. Letters and resolutions of endorsements have poured into the A. I. D. Board from civic clubs, state departments, banks, business associations and individuals. News paper stories, both of a feature

THIEVES LOOT SUTTON'S WHISKY STORE SATURDAY

Last Saturday night about 1:30 Sutton's Whisky Store was robbed of approximately 13 cases of whisky. Three men were reportedly involved.

Street sweepers noticed the door to the store was open and reported it to the city police. When the police arrived they discovered that the door had been torn down with a crow-bar which the thieves had left. Upon further investigation it was discovered that the thieves had been calmly taking the whisky off the shelves at the store and walking out the front door with their loot and storing it in the alley back of the furniture stores on South M Street.

No arrests have been made yet, but the city police say they have some good finger prints of the thieves taken off of the whisky bottles.

Ball weevil situation in Georgia is very serious, the cotton men point out. According to figures from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, there is only about two-thirds as much cotton as was available this year as last year.

No arrests have been made yet, but the city police say they have some good finger prints of the thieves taken off of the whisky bottles.

When facts such as these come to light, and constructive suggestions such as we are receiving are sent in, we know that the more we learn about Georgia the more we will exert ourselves toward improving our state's attractions and accommodations.

MARKET EGGS TWO TIMES EACH WEEK OF AGE

Market eggs twice each week of age. In hot weather if possible, this is especially important where one does not have a cool egg room.

Vaccinate pullets for fowl pox (sore head). This should be done in time for them to get over it before starting to lay. It is all right to vaccinate at eight weeks.

Check laying house for mites. Mites suck the blood of chickens at night and crawl off in the day. Clean up house and paint roosts.

SELL THE ROOSTERS. THE ROOSTERS FUNCTION IN THE FLOCK IS TO MAKE THE EGGS HATCH AND NOT TO MAKE THE HENS LAY. A LARGE PORTION OF THE SPOILED EGGS FOUND ON THE MARKET IS CAUSED BY THE EGGS BEING FERTILE. REMOVE THE ROOSTERS AND THIS WILL STOP.

SHEPPARD'S Warehouses No. 1 and 2

GOOD NEWS TO ALL TOBACCO
GROWERS EVERY WHERE

Statesboro Tobacco Market opened this A. M. July 24th with two full sets of buyers and will have two full sets of buyers for the entire season. This gives Sheppard's Warehouses No. 1 and 2 one set of buyers all day, every day, from 9 o'clock in the morning until 2:41 in the afternoon, or 1875 baskets we sell every day.

Sheppard's Warehouse had the highest sale opening day ever made in the history of the Statesboro Market. We sold 270,630 pounds of tobacco for $114,276.65.

We now have plenty of room for tobacco on our Monday sale at the Sheppard No. 2 and also room for all day sale at No. 1 Tuesday. We are prepared to give you the best service we have ever been before.

If you haven't been selling at Sheppards, try us with your next load and be convinced, as hundreds of others have, that we get you more money for your tobacco.

R. E. Sheppard & Son and Aubert Brannen, Managers.

Information on Early History of Tobacco Growing Is Vague

Authentic information on the early history of tobacco is quite limited. Available records of culture and use by the American Aborigines and the early colonists are fragmentary, widely scattered, often ambiguous and at times contradictory. It appears, however, that tobacco was widely used by the natives from northern Canada to the lower borders of Brazil and it was consumed in the form of cigars, cigarettes and snuff as well as by chewing and pipe smoking.

The name "tobacco" originally was applied by the natives to the tube or pipe in which the leaf was smoked. Use of tobacco was not merely a matter of personal habit but pipe smoking was an important feature of the formalities observed at state gatherings. Tobacco was widely used also in the treatment of human diseases. When Mexico was invaded by the Spaniards in 1519 the Aztecs were growing tobacco with much care and skill. They also understood the art of flavoring tobacco artificially for smoking. The Caribs of northern South America and the natives of Brazil also engaged in the culture of tobacco. Throughout the eastern United States and Canada the Indians cultivated Nicotiana glauca tobacco while in Mexico and southward N. tabacum was chiefly grown. The elaborate pipes found in the relics of the Mound

Pipe smoking was introduced into England about 1585 and soon extended into Continental Europe. Tobacco was introduced into Russia, Turkey, Persia, India, China, Japan and the West coast of Africa around the close of the sixteenth century. Thus, use of tobacco had become established in nearly all parts of the world before its culture was begun at Jamestown, hereby providing a wide foreign market except that the Spaniards in the West Indies were already engaged in exporting the leaf.

John Rolfe began tobacco culture at Jamestown in 1612 and from the crop of 1618, 20,000 pounds of leaf were shipped to England. Culture began in southern Maryland about 1631 where tobacco is today the leading crop. The early colonists in New York Pennsylvania, Connecticut and other colonies grew tobacco for a time but their output was not large and soon became nominal for a long period. In Europe two classes of tobacco were recognized, namely, Virginia and Spanish, the latter coming from the West Indies and South America. The Virginia product corresponded essentially to the present dark air-cured types, methods of production, which were borrowed largely from the Indians did not differ fundamentally in most respects from present procedures. The country being heavily forested, new land was constantly cleared for tobacco as rapidly as the old lands failed to produce good yields. As the settlers moved inland from the tide-water region it was found that the type of leaf was greatly affected by the changes in soil and climate. The seedlings were grown in beds covered with twigs and brush. The plants were set in hills prepared with the hoe and were spaced 4 to 4 1/2 feet apart. The plants were topped to 8 to 12 leaves and were suckered. Originally the leaves were harvested by pruning, and and Maryland tobacco averaged about 29,000,000 lbs. Throughout the eighteenth century Virginia and Maryland continued to produce the bulk of the tobacco crop. Production methods were considerably improved during the period. Surface burning of plant beds became standard practices. The heavy upland soils came to be preferred for tobacco. The hills for the plants still were prepared with the hoe and were spaced about 3 by 4 feet. Transplanting was done in May and June. The plants were topped to 5, 7 or 8 leaves according to vigor, and were suckered. In harvesting, the stalks were split as at the present time in the dark tobacco areas. In the curing barns the present day type of tier poles was used and in wet periods smothered fires were used to prevent house burn. After stripping, the leaves were tied into hands and then fermented in bulk before packing. At the outbreak of the Revolutionary War the combined exports of Virginia and Maryland had increased to approximately 100,000,000 pounds. Prices usually averaged 5 cents per pound or less and the crop of 1790 brought less than 2 cents per pound.

Lack of home-grown feed has been the greatest limiting factor in beef production in Georgia. Gather eggs often. When the egg is Grade A. Milk should be cooled quickly to keep its quality and so must eggs. Gather in wire basket and place in cool room over-night before packing.

Claim American Spas

Equal Those Abroad

American mineral spring resorts are unfairly considered inferior in their healing power to foreign spas, states Dr. Samuel Weiss in a special article in the Journal of the American Medical Association. The article, prepared under the direction of the Committee on American Health Resorts of the American Medical Association, says that "millions of patients have spent small fortunes in hunting health at European spas, when they could have had the same scientific care and considerable attention at home."

Citing a recent report on the subject, the article points out that we have in the United States 2,717 areas with 8,226 known mineral springs, indicating that our spa resources have scarcely been touched.

Much of the popularity of mineral spring resorts is attributable to the great number of digestive ailments. Dr. Weiss says that most digestive disorders originate in the nervous system and tend to become chronic as the nervous condition continues. Improvement in digestion is usually concurrent with improvement in the nervous condition. Nervous indigestion is usually induced by prolonged emotional strain, anxiety, overwork, lack of exercise and of rest, and above all by dietary abuses, including in some cases overindulgence in alcohol and tobacco.

The mineral waters act as an antacid, and as a cathartic or purgative. They tend to increase the flow of bile into the intestines, restore the mineral elements in the body and raw fluid from the intestinal tract.

'Thermostabilization' New Way for Preserving Eggs

A new method for preserving eggs in the home has been developed at the Wyoming agricultural experiment station by Miss E. J. Thiesen and Dr. Lawrence Morris. The new method, known as thermostabilization, will preserve eggs satisfactorily for periods up to six months. Eggs which had been stored seven months still scored very high in eating qualities, according to the judges who sampled them.

Thermostabilization consists of treating eggs in a hot water bath at 130 degrees for 15 minutes. The eggs must then be dried, dipped in a mineral oil bath, drained and stored in a cool basement at a temperature of from 35 to 50 degrees. The mineral oil bath should be at room temperature when the eggs are dipped, according to Miss Thiesen. The oil should be a thin tasteless mineral oil.

Thermostabilization is one of the newest and one of the best methods for preservation of eggs, asserts Miss Thiesen. The method used by the state experiment station should be followed closely for good results, and a thermometer is absolutely essential to check the temperatures during the hot water bath.

Storage Hazard
"Mothproof" containers alone do not eliminate the pest hazard. If they're tightly enough sealed, with no cracks, they keep moths from getting in from the outside but they don't prevent any moth larvae already lurking in the clothes from doing their dirty work. Hence the necessity for having the woodens thoroughly cleaned. As an added protection, use a spray or flakes of naphthalene, or paradichlorobenzene, or moth balls—pound for a small chest, 3 pounds for an average closet. The flakes or balls give off a gas which discourages the larvae from feeding and kills them if the concentration is high enough. As the gas is heavier than air and sinks, the flakes should be put high in the closet and renewed, if necessary.

Garden Lettuce
A newly developed lettuce known as Slobolt was developed by the department of agriculture especially for market and home gardeners. The new summer leaf lettuce withstands mid-summer temperature without quickly shooting or "bolting" to seed. Because of this characteristic, it produces usable leaves three weeks longer than such well-known leaf lettuce varieties as Grand Rapids, Black Seeded Simpson and Prize Head. If plants are set 10 to 12 inches apart and only the basal leaves are used as they reach a desirable size, lettuce may be harvested from the same plants over a period of several weeks. This characteristic makes it very desirable for home gardens.

Easy Ironing
Ironing is a tiring job but oftentimes something can be done to help relieve some of the strain. For example, some parts of the work can be omitted. If the wrinkles are shaken out of sheets and they are hung carefully on the line, they will look smooth enough to use without ironing. The same is true of dish towels, wash cloths and hose. Turkish towels are really softer and fluffier if left unironed. Practically one whole step in the ironing procedure can be eliminated by taking the clothes from the line when they are just damp enough to iron well. Pieces that combine thick and thin parts may need some spritzing but the others can be rolled loosely just as they are.

600 Famous Stradivari

Violins in Existence

Judith Klein, who applies the Italian name to the famous instruments, in an article in the New York Herald-Tribune, is authority for an estimate that there are about 600 Stradivari violins in existence. Their value, she says, ranges from $8,000 to $100,000 each.

Of the 500 violins, 40 cellos and 14 violas bearing the dated imprint of Antonio Stradivari, the master craftsman of Cremona, some 200, including about 18 cellos and 3 violas, are in the United States, 150 in England, 75 in France, 20 in Russia, 12 in South America and the rest scattered about the world, according to the Herald-Tribune survey.

Ironically, Italy, fatherland of the great instrument makers, had only five Stradivari. Of some 150 and 200 Stradivari instruments last known to have been in war devastated regions of Europe, some are believed to have been destroyed, others rescued and hidden to be brought to light in future years, and still others to have fallen into the hands of people who do not know their value, says the report. It is stated that most of the Stradivari instruments carry the names of celebrated past owners. For example, Mischa Elman owned the "Madame Recamier," Yehudi Menuhin owns the "Prince Khevenhuller" and Iso Bressell the "Lord Norton."

Machine Age Comes to

Large Brazilian Industry

The machine age is coming to Brazil's big carnauba wax production industry. Machines developed during the war are described as extracting one-third more wax powder than wasteful hand-beating methods produce.

Carnauba (pronounced ear-naw-bah) is the most valuable of all vegetable waxes. It comes only from thirty palm trees in the lowlands of northeastern Brazil. Wax of a thousand uses, it puts the shine on floors and furniture, automobiles and shoes.

The carnauba palm (Copernicia cerifera) has been transplanted to French Africa and Ceylon. But only the semi-arid easternmost bulge of South America inflicts on it the long annual season of drought that causes it to leave to exude their own moisture-retaining cover of wax. The wax appears like a layer of sticky yellow dust on the fan-shaped leaves and their yard-long stalks. The branch out from the crown of the palm 20 feet and more above the ground.

Lightweight Wool

The lightest weight woolen fabrics in the world were recently exhibited in London — the finest of which weighed a mere ounce per square yard and the heaviest only three and one-half ounces per square yard. Several dress fabrics were shown which weigh only one and one-half ounces per square yard, which means that a woolen frock for a woman need weigh only five or six ounces. The production of so fine a material is the result of experiments carried out in Leeds university and is due to the discovery of a soluble carrier to be used in the weaving of worsted yarn so finely spun that it will not stand the strains of normal weaving. This carrier, made of alginate, the basis of which is ordinary seaweed from British shores, is embodied in the yarn to give it support during the weaving. It is later dissolved away, leaving behind the light fabric in pure wool.

DDT of Long Use

Definite proof that a DDT spray kills flies, spiders and wasps 10% months after application has been found by an extension entomologist. He sprayed his garage on July 1, 1945, with a single spray application of a 2.5 per cent wettable DDT powder. On May 14, 1946, he found that the insecticide still had the power to kill flies. The DDT spray was applied with a three gallon pressure sprayer on the walls, windows, doors and on part of the ceiling. Fifteen minutes later the flies, mosquitoes, spiders and wasps were showing the deadly effects of the DDT. In May this year the extensionist caught two bluebottle flies, placed them in a jar and put the open mouth of the jar to the wall where DDT had been sprayed 10% months before. Within a few minutes these flies showed visible effects of DDT poisoning and within two hours they had died.

Street Lighting

A poll by the Street and Traffic Safety Lighting Bureau, Cleveland, Ohio, shows that 96 per cent of the police officials replying from cities of 10,000 population and over believe adequate street lighting can reduce the number of traffic accidents and that 71.8 per cent consider their own cities do not have adequate traffic safety lighting. A Utah city cited 9 night traffic fatalities during one year before improved street lights were installed and none in the four years since. A Washington city reported a 73 per cent decrease in traffic fatalities following installation of adequate street lighting. In addition to the regular traffic markings, the painting of dark walls, bridge railings, fences, etc., with white paint can vastly increase the illumination through light reflection and help to guide and safeguard both motorists and pedestrians.

Tobacco Growers Guard Good Tobacco Formula

Tobacco growers will give their formula for growing good tobacco rather freely—after they get their plants in the field. There is something rather "funny" about the answers you get from a tobacco grower before transplanting his plants.

Maybe he is afraid some one will talk him out of his plants, or some thing, but he just positively will not talk in public about his plans or progress. When cornered alone tobacco growers will admit success when they have experienced growing a good crop or good tobacco.

"Cornered" points could be summarized about as follows from the plant bed story:

Keep plant well drained. Trees should not obstruct sunlight on the tobacco bed.

Use one of the methods of blue mold control developed by the Tifton Experiment Station, and use it as recommended. (The Bulloch county farmers stuck by Ferman in 1946.)

If the plants need additional nitrogen top dress the bed with about five pounds of nitrate of soda per 100 square yards of bed.

Keep weeds out of bed. Water the plant bed when it needs it.

Information is not so hard to get from a weed grower on how he produced a good crop of tobacco. Brief summary of these points is about as follows.

Select the best tobacco land. Prepare land well. Fertilize with 1,000 to 1,500 lbs.

of a 3-9-9 fertilizer made especially for tobacco. Place the fertilizer to the side of the plants or mix it with the soil so as not to injure the roots of the plants. If possible, apply two or three tons of well rotted, finely pulverized manure in the drill about two weeks before setting plants.

Set plants in four-foot rows, 18 to 24 inches in the drill. First two cultivation should be deep and close to plants, after that cultivate fairly shallow and so as to throw dirt to the plants each cultivation.

Use recommended practices in controlling the budworm and hornworm.

Top tobacco at proper time and keep the suckers pulled out.

Harvest tobacco when at best stage of ripeness. Use common sense judgment in

Land Bank Can Still Make Loans

Congress has extended the authority to make Land Bank Commission loans for another year, according to T. W. Rowse, secretary-treasurer of the Statesboro National Farm Loan Association, who has just received official notice from Julian Scarborough, president of the Federal Land Bank of Columbia.

"The action of Congress in extending the Commission loans for another year will make it possible for the Federal Land Bank to serve a larger number of farmers," Mr. Scarborough said.

The loans are handled through the local national farm loan association just like regular land bank loans. They may be secured by a first or second mortgage on farm land and its improvements.

Secretary Rowse says that the extension of the Commission loans will be good news to many farmers in this section who are planning to rearrange their indebtedness on a basis that will put them in a safer position for the years ahead.

The association office is located at Statesboro, and handles the making and servicing of Federal Land Bank loans in Bulloch, Bryan, Evans, Effingham, Liberty, McIntosh, Long, and Chatham counties.

PREPARING PEACHES

Demonstrations and instructions on preparing peaches for freezing have been given at four home demonstration club meetings in Lamar County. Since no packing of fruits or vegetables is done at the local locker plant, homemakers must prepare their peaches at home before taking them to the freezer-locker.

Sinkhole Planters Reveal Their Secret Of Success

While other tobacco growers were looking for tobacco plants to set out early this year when Blue Mold layed havoc with tobacco beds, the growers in the Sinkhole district had plenty plants.

Harry McCormick of Brooklet Joins US Marines

It was announced in Savannah this week that Harry D. McCormick, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McCormick, of Brooklet, has been accepted for enlistment in the U. S. Marine Corps.

Young McCormick is a graduate of the Brooklet High School where he was active in sports particularly in basketball. He was transferred to Parris Island, S. C. where he will receive his boot training. He will then be assigned for duty with an aviation unit.

It is believed that the control method used by the growers in the Sinkhole district made it possible for every man who used it to have plenty of plants.

According to the growers here is the method they used: Ferman, containing ferric dimethylthiocarbamate, if fully as effective against mold as the original copper oxide-oil mixture, and is almost as good as bismuth subacetylate. Ferman is the cheapest spray material tested and one of the easiest and simplest to use. It is also the safest spray on small seedlings and is the only effective material that does not stunt small tobacco plants when used during cold weather. One pound of ferman will be ample for spraying a 100 square yard tobacco bed an entire season.

Directions for preparing ferman spray: Six pints of ferman weigh approximately 2 pounds and this is the correct amount for mixing 100 gallons of spray mixture. For smaller amounts use ferman at the following rates:

Ferman—1 1/2 pints to 25 gallons of water, or Ferman—1/2 pint to 8 or 9 gallons of water.

Place the powder in a fruit jar or similar container with a small amount of water and shake thoroughly. When all the powder is in suspension pour the contents of the jar into correct volume of water and spray this suspension on the tobacco plants. Mix only enough at one time for single application and stir constantly to prevent settling. Apply about 3 gallons per 100 yards of plant bed when the seedlings are small, increasing to 5 gallons when the plants are half large enough for transplanting. When preferred, vatol, OTU may be used as a wetting agent at the rate of one pound of vatol to two pounds of ferman, but this is not considered necessary.

When and how often to spray: Begin spraying each year BEFORE mold appears in the plant bed and continue regularly twice a week (Monday and Thursday) until the plants are ready to set, or the disease has caused a limited attack and the plants have started to recover. In mild winters, when beds are too far advanced, begin the first week in February or when the seedlings reach the 4-leaf stage. On most farms it will not be necessary to begin spraying until mold has been reported in the state.

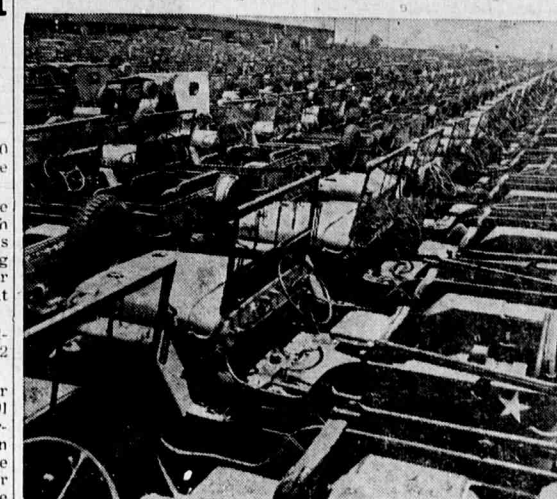

CANNING FOR MARKET

Five families in Appling county are canning products such as soup mixture, tomatoes, peas and snap beans for market, according to Mrs. Frankie Parker, home demonstration agent. Thousands of dollars have been added to the farm income of these families that have participated in this project for a number of years.

Wanta Buy a Jeep? These Are for Vets Only

Veterans will get a chance to buy these 2,700 jeeps directly from the War Assets administration in Atlanta, Ga. There have been numerous complaints from ex-servicemen that they have had to purchase government surplus goods through dealers. To correct this situation, the WAA has arranged these direct sales as empowered by recent legislation.

Maine's Record Potato Industry Got Early Start

Maine's potato industry had its commercial beginning early in the 19th century, with some coastal farmers recorded as raising potatoes for foreign trade around 1820. To Aroostook county early settlers came at about the time of the second war with England, attracted mainly by vast opportunities in lumbering. As time went on, however, it was found that available lumber resources were being exhausted and the settlers realized that potatoes had considerable commercial value.

Around 1870 the first starch factory was established in Aroostook, thereby placing commercial potato raising upon even more secure financial ground. From this point on potatoes became the chief crop of the county. In 1909 Maine began to lead the nation in potato production with a total of 23,500,000 bushels grown that year.

With developments in the use of farm machinery and expansion of railroad facilities, and employment of other modern practices, Maine's potato industry has continued to expand by leaps and bounds. In addition, increased use of fertilizers has resulted in higher yields per acre and improvement of seed and better seed selection has also been noted.

Unrestricted Use of Bromides Are Dangerous

Bromides as sedatives are valuable in the treatment of disease, but prolonged or unsupervised use may lead to serious consequences. Dr. F. Garm Norbury of Jacksonville, Ill., told the Illinois State medical society. While sedation with bromides is often justified to quiet an excited nervous system and control use causes no more hazard than any other form of therapy, uncontrolled use could result in bromide intoxication, he said.

"Bromide intoxication," Dr. Norbury explained, "may result from prolonged usage, habit formation, cumulative effect and self-medication. An increased desire to sleep, dulling of the higher mental functions, slurred speech, unsteady gait and ultimately clouded consciousness are symptoms of bromide intoxication."

Many states, he said, have restrictive acts on the sale of sedatives, but bromides can be purchased over the counter in Illinois. Although federal labeling requirements demand that hazards be mentioned, Dr. Norbury said a recent examination of labels on proprietary nerve sedatives "failed to impress" him as emphasizing that fact.

Service Stores & Shops Help the Whole Town!

What does your town need in the way of "services"—such as: overnight laundry, shoe repair, dry cleaner, barber shop, auto repair shop, etc.? Service establishments provide jobs and incomes, just as small industries do. But they also appeal to tourists and when you get a tourist to stop, he'll spend money!

Tourist trade, alone, can mean BIG incomes for alert shopkeepers—and their towns! Get your share of it!

TC Lab School Closes Summer Term Tuesday

Culminating Day exercises were held at the Teachers College Lab School Tuesday morning with the closing of the summer term. Students presented a three-part program.

Beginning at 9 o'clock members of the primary department held exercises in their classroom. Next students presented a swimming program under the direction of R. T. DeWitt, physical education director, and Max Lockwood, TC pool lifeguard. The closing program was presented by students in the upper grade level.

Miss Marie Wood of the TC faculty and Miss Imogene Herrin, Savannah Teacher, have conducted the summer program with the assistance of student-teachers.

A dead rat, frog, snake, or chicken in the weeds or under the building may start an outbreak of limberneck at any time. Be sure no feed gets wet and spoils where the chickens may get it.

Find Walking Helps Prevent Common Colds

More colds begin on Monday than on any other day of the week.

People whose work requires them to do a great deal of walking have the smallest number of colds and their colds are less severe.

Increases in the number and severity of colds follow sudden drops in temperature.

These newly discovered facts concerning the common cold are revealed by a 1945 analysis of workers' colds in several large industrial plants, reported by the 1946 Encyclopedia Britannica Book of the Year.

The industrial study disclosed that fewer colds are found in air-conditioned plants while the number is highest in drafty places. The analysis showed that December was the worst month for colds with October in second place. The smallest number of colds occurred in July.

Other facts brought out in the industrial survey indicate that with increasing age the tendency is toward fewer colds, but more severe ones. Another group of experiments, using 1,600 girls of college age as subjects, disclosed that periods of falling temperature along with heavy rains show a sharp increase in the number of new colds per day.

Turn Worn Collar to Extend Service of Shirt

Turning a worn shirt collar may be all a man's shirt needs for additional months of active service.

The first way is to rip off the collar, turn it over and restitch it. If the shirt is white, when the turned side shows wear, a new collar may be purchased at notion counters in stores. Matching the collar to the shirt as nearly as possible.

The second way is to rip open the seam that joins the neckband to the shoulder, and turn the neckband with the collar. Many homemakers find this gives a better looking job, because the new seam is covered by the necktie. However, turning the neckband requires moving the top button and working a new buttonhole.

Much wear on collars and cuffs may be saved, if shirts go into the wash before they are so badly soiled that they need rubbing. Soaping collars and cuffs and then soaking them for an hour or so before washing loosens some of the soil that otherwise has to be scrubbed off. Rubbing between the hands is suggested in washing in preference to scrubbing on a washboard. It is easier on the fabric.

Kill Bindweed

A practical method has been developed for completely killing bindweed, or perennial morning glory, by grazing with sheep. Sheep have long been known to like bindweed, but it is impossible to pasture the weeds close enough to kill them and still give the sheep enough to eat. The answer seems to lie in growing a crop less appealing to sheep than bindweed on infested lands. Such a crop supplies nourishment for the sheep at times when there is not enough bindweed to furnish proper feed. Sudan grass and rye are such crops. The botanist maintains that "since sheep prefer the bindweed to these crops, they will eat the weeds first. The weeds eventually die out because the sheep keep them grazed so close to the ground. The rye and Sudan grass not only supply the necessary feed, but aid in halting the growth of the bindweeds by competing with them for light, moisture and minerals if for any reason they are not closely grazed."

Italian History

From the early Middle Ages, Italy's many separate, self-ruled states were disorganized and dominated in turn by France, Spain and Austria. Gradually during the 19th century, the need for unity was impressed on the people, and in 1859 the absorption of other Italian states by the kingdom of Sardinia began. The victorious march of Garibaldi and his patriots through Sicily and southern Italy in 1860 hastened the proclamation of the modern kingdom of Italy on March 17, 1861. Venetia was added in 1866, Rome in 1870. Joining the Allies in 1915, Italy gained Trentino and Trieste in the northeast at Austria's expense by treaties after World War I. Italy's colonial expansion extended to Eritrea, Italian Somaliland, Libya, the Dodecanese Islands, reached a peak with Fascist conquests of Ethiopia and Albania in recent years. Italian possessions cover 1,300,000 square miles—11 times the homeland area.

Avoid Overworking Washer

Avoid overworking your electric washer by soaking the clothes about 20 minutes before putting them in the tub and by using plenty of hot water and good soap. Don't put too many clothes in the tub at once and don't wash them longer than necessary. If an electric washer sits in a cool place, the grease around the shafts and gears gets hard and stiff. Move the machine into a warm place or fill the tub with hot water a few minutes before starting the washer to avoid too much of a starting load on the motor.

Lespedeza got a one-way ticket!

If you're a city fellow, you may not have heard of Central of Georgia style pastures. If you are a farmer, you undoubtedly know all about this type of pasture.

More than twenty years ago, agricultural development men of the Central of Georgia started test pastures in fifty-six counties of Georgia and Alabama... introducing lespedeza and including also carpet grass and dallis grass.

The green fields multiplied rapidly. Today, their 360,586 acres yield a harvest of added prosperity for the whole region—with consequent benefits for you and everybody else in this area we serve.

This is one of the many ways in which the Central of Georgia has been busy promoting the welfare of the territory since 1888. In this work, the railroad is big enough to do the job well but not so big as to keep top management from being directly concerned with every project throughout the entire system.

is turned into supply ditches which carry it to contour ditches in the pasture. The pasture is irrigated by letting the water overflow these ditches along their entire length.

Mr. Urey has a pasture mixture of dallis and carpet grass, lespedeza and white Dutch clover on his irrigated pasture. This 30 acres of pasture supports 60 beef cattle, 100 hogs and three horses.

"Irrigation of pastures is one of the newer phases of irrigation as far as this state is concerned. A few dairy pasture irrigation projects have been started in the State this year to determine if increased grazing will pay for the cost of irrigation."

John Lanier, Candler County, used furrow irrigation on his tobacco last year and increased his income $288 per acre. Water from a nearby pond into a supply ditch is diverted to the tobacco row.

Mr. Lanier has improved his irrigation system this year to permit easier handling of the water in the field. He believes that providing supplemental water will pay tobacco growers dividends practically every year.

Dewey Adamson, Tattnall county, won a close race with a droughty spell last month by getting his revolving sprinkler system installed in time to save a one-half-acre okra crop. He had a perfect stand of okra but in a dry period the plants had used up the soil and were wilting.

Mr. Adamson was installing an automatic pressure water system and decided to see if he couldn't save his okra. He got some extra help, obtained some pipe and revolving sprinklers and got his irrigation system in operation. The irrigation revived the plants and saved the crop.

Watson Urey, McDuffie County, utilizes water from a five to six acre pond in irrigating 30 acres of pasture for his beef cattle. Water from each end of the pond dam
