Land Owners Warned Against White-Fringed Beetle, Insect Pest

The White-Fringed Beetle, a serious economic insect pest of agriculture, has been found in Statesboro and at one other isolated location in the county. The property owners concerned at the isolated infestation have been contacted regarding the pest. Therefore, it is necessary to contact authorized White-Fringed Beetle inspectors before moving soil, farm produce, plants and shrubbery, in order that arrangements may be made for treatment or proper methods of handling the articles to prevent further spread of the insect.

FB to Hear Lady At Annual Meet

Dr. Pauline Parks Wilson, dean of the school of home economics at the University of Georgia, will be the lady speaker at the Bulloch county Farm Bureau's annual meeting, R. P. Mikell, president, announces. Mr. Mikell stated that a program of music and talks by some outstanding women and men, along with the usual business of the annual meeting, was being worked out for the January 4 meeting.

White-Fringed Beetle inspectors may be reached and further information obtained regarding the movement of these articles. The Georgia Department of Entomology, working in close cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is taking the necessary steps to prevent further dissemination from these areas which were recently found to be infested. The Department of Entomology has instigated the necessary quarantine action to regulate the movement of these articles most likely to carry the insect pest. Methods whereby regulated articles may be safeguarded or made free from infestation have been developed for the convenience and use of persons concerned.

The insect spends a large part of its life cycle in the soil, in a grub stage; therefore, the movement of soil in any form or quantity is especially hazardous. Consequently, restrictions have been placed on the movement of soil from any regulated area whether moved independently of, in connection with, or attached to nursery stock, plants, produce, articles, or things.

All persons were requested to cooperate in the program to prevent further spread of this economic insect pest.

Sutlive Talks to Rotarians Here

Mr. Kirk Sutlive, public relations director of the Union Bag and Paper Corporation of Savannah, was the guest speaker at the Statesboro Rotary Club Monday of this week.

Mr. Sutlive, a former newspaper editor, told the Rotarians that of the 438,000 acres of land in Bulloch County, 218,000 acres or 65 percent, are in forest lands, and that 70 percent of all the land in the First District is forest land. Pleading with them for adequate protection of forest against fire he said that only one third of the lands in this section are protected against fire, while in other sections of the states, the protection is one hundred percent.

However, he had a good word for the First and Eighth Congressional Districts stating that they have shown the most intelligent growth in forestry of any section of the world.

Speaking briefly on Union Bag and Paper Corporation he stated that ten years ago they had about one thousand people working with them for $1,000,000 a year; today there are 4,500 on the pay rolls receiving $9,000,000 a year.

With Mr. Sutlive was Mr. Kelly industrial relations manager of the corporation.

PEACE ON EARTH. CHRISTMAS 1946

The Song of Christmas

THE long journey from Nazareth to Bethlehem . . . a new Star in the sky . . . heavenly music above the hills of Judea . . . the flutter of angel wings . . . the swift journeying of the Shepherds . . . Mary and Joseph and the new-born Child . . . the coming of the Wise Men, with their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh . . .

From these inspiring things the Song of Christmas was fashioned more than twenty centuries ago. The years have added new notes of happiness. Carols and song upon the air . . . candles gleaming into the night . . . secret whisperings and laughter in the home . . . greetings going from friend to friend . . . deeds of love and mercy done in the name of a Child.

No great symphony or composition can match the Song of Christmas. It rises above the clatter and roar of the city; it throbs through the scattered town and hamlet; it sings through the sunlit islands of the South; it permeates the frozen wastes of the Northland. In ever-widening volume its strains echo around the world.

Before its magic the hosts of darkness take flight. It touches the slumbering chords of memory; it heals old hurts and scars; it binds loved ones in a closer and deeper tie. There are no friendless or forsaken within its sound; under its influence the strong reach out to help the weak. Peace and Love and Joy, these are its loudest notes, and they are for all men. For the Song of Christmas is the greatest of all songs because it is understood by every heart.

The Season's best to our friends

How well we remember those old fashioned Christmas dinners—father at one end of the table; mother at the other end, and the children in between, wondering if father would ever get done carving the turkey. And what mince pies!

Wouldn't you like a Christmas like that this year of 1946? We hope that your Christmas is as much like that as the changing times will permit, and that all the joys of the old days will abound.

Miracle Play In Modern Texas Town

LOS PASTORES, the hybrid Spanish-Indian miracle play introduced to Mexico centuries ago by Spanish monks and presented in San Antonio during the Christmas season, is enacted primarily for its spirituality.

A group of amateur actors go from house to house by invitation and because it is traditional that no one prompted by idle curiosity should witness the performance, only the initiated can find the scene of presentation.

Usually someone's back yard becomes the stage; the doorsteps serve as background for the Nativity. Manger scene various objects are set on the stairs; pieces of crockery, tinseled pinecones, pottery saints—anything the householder considers especially beautiful in the center of the lowest step, the Christ Child (a life-sized doll placed on a platter with divers gaudy candy) is surrounded by plaster shepherds, donkeys, etc.

A tent opposite the Nacimiento gives evidence of representing hell; a bonfire has been built within and live devils emerge therefrom.

The play has no definite time for beginning, but finally, a girl starts to walk back and forth reciting. Overdressed shepherds drone a seemingly endless song. Eremita, the comic relief, carrying a rosary of spoils, also represents the soul of its earthly journey and is often accompanied by the white winged Archangel Gabriel.

It is a never-ending performance: seven devils, six in sequined black with animal masks and the fork-tailed Lucifer in brilliant red, are finally vanquished; likewise, a wild Indian is overcome and kisses the Christ Child; the shepherds and all in attendance kiss the Child, solemnly and as slowly as possible.

Faith and Peace Are Eternal . . .

TWENTY centuries have passed since the inn at Bethlehem was overcrowded because of Caesar Augustus and his census.

The pilgrims who crowded the inn were committed to oblivion by their contemporaries and, except for the census and resultant conditions at Bethlehem, it wouldn't matter too much if Augustus completely vanished from the history books.

It is generally immaterial that, as puppet king of Judea, Herod fortified the kingdom and kept it out of the clutches of Cleopatra, rebuilt the city of Samaria, and endowed several pagan temples long since crumbled into dust. Few people know, and fewer care, that his wife and two sons were murdered at his command. This sort of a Romanized Jew, is remembered chiefly because of his hypocritical treatment of the Wise Men and because he authorized the slaughter of the Holy Innocents—and even this deed of incredible cruelty might have been forgotten if the Babe of Bethlehem who grew into the Christ and bequeathed a new philosophy of love and peace to all mankind.

Some men question what has been accomplished during the 20 centuries since Bethlehem.

True enough, some of the records have been written with indelible ink of hatred and prejudice and splattered with much blood; but cynics had best not rest their arguments too confidently upon the gory records written or provided by men who either did not know Christ or openly rejected his commands.

On the other hand, the glad tidings announced to a few shepherds at Bethlehem have inspired courage and faith and love such as no earthly decree or proclamation has ever called forth.

Faith and Peace are eternal gifts—and twenty centuries are mere fleeting moments of Eternity.

Greatest Stamps Of Entire World

Officials estimate at least 100,000 lives are saved each year—in America alone—by funds made available by the annual Christmas Seal campaign against tuberculosis.

In 1933, a Danish postal clerk, Einar Holboell, by name—conceived the idea of a voluntary tax on Christmas greeting cards which would benefit the underprivileged. Specifically, Holboell visualized establishment of a fund to build a hospital for tubercular children. The ministry granted Holboell permission to sell his seals at post offices and the Christmas Seal campaign was launched. In many countries, the seal campaign is conducted largely in co-operation with postal authorities and, in some instances, the seals are parts of special postage stamps.

The American Red Cross became interested in the project in 1907 and co-operated with the National Tuberculosis Association. To strengthen the nation-wide campaign, the Red Cross and the Tuberculosis Association jointly conducted the sale of the seals and, until 1919, the emblem of the Red Cross appeared on the seal.

In 1919, the double-barred cross, international emblem and trademark of the warfare against tuberculosis, was embodied in the design of the seal. In 1920, the Red Cross wished to devote its energies to the annual Roll Call seal arrangements were made whereby the sale of the tuberculosis Christmas Seal is conducted exclusively by the Tuberculosis Association.

Santa Claus By... Any Other Name

Santa Claus is inseparably associated with the spirit of gift-giving in America, but in other lands, various gift-bearers are just as eagerly awaited.

Commemorating the arrival of the Magi on Epiphany, the Wise Men leave presents for good boys and girls as they pass through Spain and other Catholic countries during their annual journey to Bethlehem.

Italian Befana and Russian Babouska are variously reported to have hesitated to follow the Wise Men, misdirected them, and refused shelter to the Holy Family in their respective countries, these two ageless wanderers slip toys to the pillows of sleeping children, and then looking for the Babe of Bethlehem whom they have never found.

Christkind, in keeping with the German idea of Christmas, is the messenger of the Infant Jesus who brings happiness to good children; Polish and Hungarian youngsters search the house for strands of angel hair—conclusive evidence that the Holy Angels are near to bestow gifts upon the worthy.

In France, the Yule Log is allowed to burn momentarily, extinguished and covered with a cloth. After the Log has failed to yield gifts, the children are sent to ask pardon for their omissions in private. Meanwhile, parents place the presents beneath the cloth to be discovered by the returning children.

Syrian legend sends the Gentle Camel of Jesus, laden with gifts, riding over the desert on Epiphany Eve—exhausted by the hastening Wise Men, he was blessed with immortality by the Christ Child.

The identity of the gift-bearer is immaterial; but it is vital that no child be disappointed; no trusting heart betrayed; lest the magic hour passes, leaving broken dreams and twisted emotions to wander across the wilderness of eternity.

STUFFED ANIMAL VARIETY
Among the newcomers to the stuffed animal collection of toys is the fawn which is gaining in popularity with most of restrictions on its manufacture removed.

Sheng Dan Jieh— A Holy Festival

The celebration of Christmas is gradually becoming widespread in China as more and more families are converted to Christianity. Sheng Dan Jieh—literally, Holy Birth Festival—is the Chinese name for Christmas. Private homes are decorated with large white posters inscribed with Chinese characters meaning Peace, Good Will, etc. The Christmas tree is also popular; symbolically called the Tree of Light, it is usually made of paper mache and, trimmed with paper flowers and ornaments, it is not artificially lighted.

Gifts are exchanged within family circles and there "surprises" for the children: American lead pencils, picture books and even cast-off Christmas cards are exceedingly popular.

Early mass on Christmas morning is the focal point of the religious observances. Lantern-lit processions enter dark churches before dawn and, after mass, wend their way home singing Chinese translations adapted to the original melodies of "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "Silent Night," and other traditional Christmas carols.

HER QUILT CHRISTMAS

KATE YARROW had so often she would be an old woman before her time, that she had begun to think of herself as quite middle-aged. Actually she was not quite 30, nor had her full days as mistress of the Yarrow household turned her hair gray or her cheeks wan.

Sometimes, since she had taken her mother's place, Kate did think she was imposed upon. But she blamed no one. Her father was generous enough with the money, and she had Martie in the kitchen and old Sam for outside work. But five inconsiderate younger brothers and a grumbling grandfather made a household that required supervision.

For the past two years, Kate thought, there had really been no Christmas. But this year would be different. The brothers, all in boarding school or college, had accepted invitations to spend the holidays with room-mates. One sister was visiting an aunt, and the other had gone south with her ex-acting but father was spending the season with a thoroughly capable widow who, it had been whispered, he was considering as a possible second wife.

Leading Carols

By LYN CONNELLY
A SONG which made its appearance in 1942 entitled "White Christmas," is in its fourth year and well on its way to permanent recognition as a Christmas favorite.

Her father was generous enough with the money, and she had Martie in the kitchen and old Sam for outside work. Lantern-lit processions enter dark churches before dawn and, after mass, wend their way home singing Chinese translations adapted to the original melodies of "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "Silent Night," and other traditional Christmas carols.

Gifts are exchanged within family circles and there "surprises" for the children: American lead pencils, picture books and even cast-off Christmas cards are exceedingly popular.

Four voices of four hamlets round,
From far and near, on mead and moor,
Swell out and fall, as if a door
Were shut between me and the sound.

Each voice four changes on the wind,
That now dilate, and now decrease, Peace and good-will, good-will and peace,
Peace and good-will, to all mankind.

Christmas Trees, Cribbs and Ceppi

Christmas trees and cribs, with in respective spheres of influence, provide focal points for observances of the season.

Various legends claim to tell the story of the first Christmas tree; actually, evergreen decorations were so closely associated with pagan celebrations that they were banned by many ecclesiastics of the early church.

According to literature, the first Christmas tree was set up at Strasbourg, Germany, in 1604. Even then, the cry rose against heathen customs and, as late as 1801, the Rev. Henry Schwann was severely criticized for setting up a Chris-mas tree in his church in Cleveland, Ohio.

St. Francis of Assisi received special permission from the pope to present a tableau of the nativity scene. This first crib, set up at Greccio, Italy, in 1223, was an immediate sensation; the renaissance endowed the cribs with ornate paganry and, modernly, the crib is to southern Europe and Catholic countries what the tree is to America and northern lands.

Eighteenth century Italians were fond of a fantastic decoration called the Ceppo. Pyramidal in construction, the Ceppi were made on a framework of lathes with transverse shelves rising to three or four stories, depending on the overall size of the Ceppo.

The whole thing was covered with colored paper, tufts, tassels, fringes, tiny pine cones, and little flags; a manger scene was represented on the lowest shelf, while the upper ones were covered with small gifts, etc.; wax tapers were placed along the sides and a large gift cone ornamented the top. Although the original designer probably never saw a Christmas tree, the Ceppo—aided by a little imagination—bridges the gap between Christmas cribs and trees.

Star of Bethlehem Phenomenon of Age

The Star of Bethlehem has been the subject of extensive research and discussion.

Modern astronomers have considered several natural phenomena theories without attaching too much weight to any such hypothesis.

The first chapter of the gospel according to St. Matthew begins:

"The book of the generation of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham..."

And confirming Bethlehem as the city of David, the angel of the Lord declared:

"For unto you is born this day,
in the city of David, a SAVIOUR which is CHRIST the Lord." St.
Luke 2:11.

Considering tradition, which accepts that King David's shield borne a six-pointed star, the Star of Bethlehem appropriately
"... stood over where the young Child was," St. Matthew 2:8.

Used As Good Luck Charm Rings of mistletoe were worn around the neck in Sweden to prevent sickness.

'White Christmas,' Modern Day Carol

Irving Berlin's "White Christmas" has definitely joined the procession of Christmas music. Let us hesitate to admit so recent a creation to the inner sanctum of cherished traditions, let's see just how old some of our Christmas favorites really are.

Denmark launched the annual Christmas Seal campaign against tuberculosis in 1904; Dickens's
"Christmas Carol" was written in 1843; Samuel Clement Moore wrote
"The Night Before Christmas" in 1822; W. C. Dobson, one of Queen Victoria's favorite artists, dispatched the first Christmas card in 1846, and, historically, the first Christmas tree was set up in 1604.

One can imagine the first Chris-mas card—like "Gloria in Excelsis" of the angels. However, of our popular Christmas carols today, "Adeste Fideles" is undoubtedly the oldest.
Its origin is controversial; some say it was a graduate of the Clater-clans, others date its composition variously—from 1250 to 1800. Even accepting 1680, "O Come All Ye Faithful" antedates—for example—
"The Herald Angels Sing" (1780), "Silent Night" (1818), and
"O Little Town of Bethlehem" (1838).

There's a lot of Christmas tied up in the confident expectancy of childhood and the nostalgic memories of growing-up, so,
"May your days be merry and bright
And may all your Christmases be white."

Saint Nicholas Day in Holland

When Christmas rolls around in Holland, it is quietly and religiously observed: St. Nicholas Day, December 6, is the day of gift-giving and justification.

For weeks, life-sized figures of St. Nicholas have decorated shop windows and men dressed as Nicholas have stood in front of business establishments, and driven around in horse-drawn carts delivering parcels.

At last the great day arrives: if there are several children in the household, sometimes they are gathered together from neighboring households. Bishop Nicholas (dressed in full vestments and accompanied by his Moorish servant) attends the children's party and impresses them by his knowledge of their shortcomings and chides them familiarly before distributing the treats and gifts he has brought for them.

After the youngsters have had their fun, the grown-ups sit around a festive table and open their surprises. Small gifts are baked in loaves of bread, packed in enormous crates, wrapped in bales of paper—each wrapper directing the present to a different person: the longer the donor and final recipient remain unknown, the greater the general justification.

Indicative of the spirit of the season, packages containing gifts are often entrusted to strange passers-by who are instructed to leave the parcel on such and such a doorstep and ring the bell.

California Has Mile Long
Avenue of Lighted Trees

Merry
Christmas

The trees comprising the mile long Avenue of Christmas Trees in Alameda, Calif., are descendants of the Deodara Cedars of India which grow upon the slopes of the Himalayas.

While traveling in India in 1882,
Capt. Frederick J. Woodbury garthered the seeds which he planted latter on his ranch in California. When the seedlings were about two feet tall, the captain's sons transplanted them to line the wire driveway leading to the ranch residence.

The once priviledged driveway at the foot of the Sierra mountains is now a busy public thoroughfare and Captain Woodbury's seedlings, luminated each year at Christmas, attract thousands of visitors annually.

TAKE A LOOK BEHIND
When you pull away from the curb, it is not enough simply to shove your hand out and give it the gun.
Look behind you and wait for a good opportunity to enter the moving traffic. The Georgia Highway Safety Committee issues a warning that if you don't, you'll lose and argument, because if you pull away from the curb without looking the consequent accident will be your fault.

Mince Pies of Deep Christmas Tradition

No Christmas dinner would be complete without mince pies. While they have long been a part of our Christmas tradition, they originally had a deep symbolic significance.

WAITING FOR SANTA... They know that Santa will soon be around and are taking a last look before going to bed to see that everything is in order for him.

It is said that the coming year's weather may be forecasted by cooking an eye at the sky during Christmas week. Here are a few of the beliefs, conflicting in many details:

- If the sun shines through the apple tree on Christmas Day, there will be a good crop the following year.
- If ice will bear a man before Christmas, it will not bear a mouse afterwards.
- Thunder and lightning Christmas week means much snow the balance of the winter.
- Rain causes more damage than frost before than after Christmas.
- At Christmas if meadows are green, at Easter they will be covered with fruit.
- If windy Christmas Day, trees will bear much fruit.
- A wet Christmas means an empty granary and barrel.
- A green Christmas makes a fat graveyard.
- A warm Christmas means a cold Easter.
- A green Christmas is followed by a white Easter.

Lyons First Born Welcomed Warmly

"... But the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head."—St. Matthew 8:20.

At Foundling hospital in Lyons, France, the first infant received on Christmas Day is luxuriously welcomed with great ceremony: the tradition contrasting the lot of the infant Saviour and that of one of his most helpless little ones.

Nola Birthplace Of Church Bells

The use of church bells is said to have been inaugurated during the fifth century by Bishop Paulinus of Nola, in Campania.

Although the derivation is doubtful by some authorities, it appears that the Latin word for bell—campanula—was derived from the bishop's town, Nola, and district, Campania.

When the Infant Jesus Selected His Playmate

According to various legends, the holy Family travels about on Christmas Eve. Long ago in England—tick babies were carried to the hreschold at midnight. If the child recovered, it had been healed by the passing Christ; if the baby died, the Holy Child had chosen the infant to be his playmate in heaven.

Facts and Fancies Of New Year's Day

New Year's with its open houses, parties, exchanging of New Year's cards, horn tooting, Add Lang Syne and New Year's resolutions, is one of the oldest of celebrations. As a holiday it has been observed since ancient times, and has been marked throughout history by the giving of gifts and the exchange of greetings.

The early Persians said "Happy New Year!" with colored eggs. They regarded New Year's in much the same way we, today, regard Easter—as a time of renewal of all things. And on New Year's Day, pagan Britons received branches of sacred mistletoe from their Druid priests.

According to some authorities the custom of gift-giving at New Year's originated in 747 B. C. when the Romans presented Tattius, king of the Sabines, with boughs from trees consecrated to Strenia, the goddess of strength. Consequently, New Year's gifts became known as "strenae" and were exchanged among friends and neighbors and exacted by emperors from their subjects.

The Emperor Claudius showed unprecedented concern for the "popular" pocketbook by serving notice to the Roman citizenry that the cost of "strenae" given to him should not exceed a specified amount.

While the observation of New Year's dates from early Persian time, the modern version with its noise and celebration is a vastly different affair than the B. C. period.

Henry III of England, however, wasn't so considerate. He followed the tradition of exacting New Year's gifts from his subjects, and this custom was carried on by succeeding monarchs up until the time of Charles I.

It was this practice which caused one of Henry VIII's most embarrassing moments. One "Honest Old Layman," instead of presenting his sovereign lord with the usual purse of gold, gave him the New Testament with a leaf conspicuously folded down at Hebrews XIII, 4, which passage bore certain appropriateness to the monarch's domestic failings.

Most noted for fabulous New Year's "hauls" was Good Queen Bess. Her presents ranged from jewel-embroidered petticoats to fatted geese for the royal larder.

However, when Oliver Cromwell and the Puritans took over the English government, they put an end to this extravagant practice, only to have it revived later by the royal Stuarts.

In Merrie Olde England, the common New Year's article of exchange amongst the ordinary citizenry was a pair of gloves. Occasionally the gloves were accompanied by sums of money which came to be known as "glove money."

A story is told of Sir Thomas More, lord-chancellor, who decided a case in favor of a certain young lady. On the following New Year's Day, she sent him a pair of gloves with 40 gold coins enclosed. Sir Thomas returned the coins with the following note: "Mistress, since it were against good manners to refuse your New Year's gift, I am content to take your gloves, but as for the 'lining' I utterly refuse to take it."

Pins, too, were a common New Year's gift at this time and the money accompanying them was referred to as "pin-money"—hence our modern term.

Today, in England and America, the practice of exchanging New Year's gifts is practically obsolete. But the spirit of hope and good will and resolution that characterizes the coming of the New Year is kept alive by the friendly and growing custom of exchanging New Year's cards with their colorful holiday symbols and hearty messages of cheer.

Lincoln Issued Famous Emancipation January 1.

The Emancipation Proclamation was issued by Abraham Lincoln on New Year's Day, 1863.

The Proclamation abolished slavery in those states and parts of states which were in rebellion on that date and, though other days are observed in various parts of the country, January 1 is the date most generally observed as Emancipation Day.

French Celebrate New Year's The famous "Jour de l'An"—New Year's Day—is probably the gayest day in the calendar of the French-Canadian. That is the time of family reunions and of exchanging gifts.

The tale of Bonchevalier and the tree of humanity, told with minor variations throughout France and Germany, is one of the most charming of all the Christmas tree legends.

Bonchevalier was traveling through a dense forest once upon a Christmas Eve. In the distance one tall evergreen stood apart from all the others; it seemed aglow with lights and, from afar, a star appeared to rest among its topmost branches.

As he drew nearer, Bonchevalier saw that the tree was covered with candles—some standing upright and others inverted. The star at the top seemed to be the vision of a child whose beautiful head was surrounded by a pale amber halo.

Word spread through the village that Bonchevalier had seen a vision, dreamed a dream, or perhaps experienced a phenomenon. The knight himself admitted that the whole thing seemed incredible; if it was a vision, he could not interpret it; but he was absolutely certain he had seen it and his story was always the same.

Learned citizens of the community questioned him and shook their heads—so did everyone else, except his mother.

The tree of humanity had been revealed to her son, she said proudly, and all the world would be blessed by his vision.

Indeed, Bonchevalier's vision symbolized the tree of humanity; the candles represented persons, the good ones standing upright; the bad ones inverted; and the child at the top was the Infant Jesus who watches over all the world of humanity.

Letter To Santa

I wrote a note to Santa Claus
I thought it would be fun.
I said I'd like a lot of things Especially a gun.
But Father shook his head and said
That wise old Santa knew
I'd shoot myself or someone else
And that would never do.
So then I wrote and asked him for
A sleigh with jingle bells,
An auto, and a train of cars,
And a pound of caramels.
But sister May she cried
Oh, don't ask for all those noisy toys
And Santa knows that candy
Ain't good for little boys.
So then I wrote and asked him for
A music box to play
And a watch just like my father's
To tell the time of day.
But brother Tom he laughed and said
Your brain must be askew,
Old Santa never brings such things
To little kids like you.
At first I felt discouraged
But now I'm not because My mother says that no one knows
The mind of Santa Claus.
She says it's safe to let him bring Whatever he thinks best,
And mother has, I truly think,
More sense than all the rest."

VOLUME VII 3 FB's Name New Heads

J. A. Hart, B. F. Deal, and J. V. Anderson have been named presidents of the Ogeechee, Warnock, and Sinkhole Farm Bureau chapters, respectively, for 1947.

Mr. Hart served as the first president of the Ogeechee chapter and built its membership from a few to some 64 for the coming year. C. W. Zetser was named vice president and W. R. Newsome secretary. At their meeting Tuesday night, Bright McConnell, Augusta, was the honor guest and speaker.

Mr. Deal also was Warnock's president when there were only a few scattered members in the community. They enrolled 81 members this year. Ben H. Smith was elected vice president following the steak supper Wednesday night and W. P. Anderson remained secretary.

Mr. Anderson succeeds George Strickland as president of the Sinkhole chapter of 73 members. John M. Strickland is the new vice president and B. L. Bowen is the secretary. This group, like Ogeechee, had a turkey supper Thursday night. Delmas Rushing was named to group orders for Coker's 100 With cotton seed. The entire community plans to plant only the one variety this year.

These three elections completed the community elections, getting down to the county election on January 4.

Those who give themselves grow richer.
The kindly word, the spontaneous smile, the thoughtful deed — those are outward expressions of the goodness inside the hearts and minds of men.

Those of us in the newspaper business must record the little things that make new days by day. Often we wish there were less of pettiness in the world and more of the spirit of Christmas scattered throughout the year. But the day that marks the birth of Jesus brings with it a rebirth of faith and hope and a realization that deep down inside each person there are Christ-like qualities of selflessness, loyalty and devotion to the highest principles of God and man. It is those qualities which make Christmas the most joyous season of all.

Truly, there is "joy to the world" in abundant evidence of self-giving, of hands clasped in friendship, of hearty good wishes. How insignificant are the little troubles and things of the world in the light of the Christmas spirit that pervades the world!

And so we again join in the gladness of the season to wish all our friends and subscribers

Good Books Are True Friends

In the best books great men talk to us, give us their most precious thoughts, and pour their souls into ours — Channing.

By Mrs. F. F. Baker

We are accustomed to thinking of the Victorian Age as one in which all the women were ladies (prone to fainting in moments of excitement), and all the men were gentlemen, who wore whiskers, and had very formal manners. "Forlone Sunset" by Michael Sadlier, shows us another side of the Victorian period. In addition to being an intensely interesting novel, it has a fine social history of the times.

The main characters are Paul Gladwin (who is discovered by his father for being too wild) and Lottie Heape, whom he rescued as a child, from worse than bondage in London's most degraded section.

Paul is given a position as tutor by Mr. Crocker, a fine Christian gentleman, who also takes Lottie into his home, and brings her up. Lottie seems born for trouble, however, and when she is eighteen runs away to London, after causing Paul's dismissal in disgrace.

After this, Paul seems unable to hold any responsible position, and gradually slips lower and lower on the social scale.

Meanwhile Mr. Crocker becomes involved in a very unsavory business scandal, and eventually commits suicide.

Lottie decides to become a dancer, with the aid of an innkeeper named Uncle Tom, but instead runs away again with Cornelius Fleschman, a wealthy continental, and has very formal manners.

With kindest thoughts and all good wishes the entire City Council and each employee of the city join me in hoping for every merry Christmas and a New Year filled with happiness, health and prosperity.

J. Gilbert Cone.

On behalf of the young people of the Statesboro High School and the members of the faculty, we say to the patrons of the school and the people of Statesboro and Bulloch County, "Merry Xmas and Happy New Year."

In wishing you the best for the New Year we present here a brief report on what we have accomplished during the year now coming to an end.

The elementary school building has been completely renovated and painted throughout. It contains one of the best equipped libraries in the state and the year has seen many new volumes added and considerable new furniture.

The high school library contains 3241 volumes of the best books published and occupies the entire eastern end of the second story of the high school building.

The combined bands of the high school and the elementary contribute 87 pieces. A building in which to house our band is planned.

A full time physical education program has been added to the curriculum.

The Industrial Arts Department added this year, has near a hundred students enrolled.

The Commercial Department has approximately doubled last year's enrollment, with 63 now enrolled.

The Home Economics Department has recently had installed five new electric stoves and two refrigerators. Six new sewing machines have been ordered.

The Journalism Class edits the school newspaper, The Hi-Boy, which is one of the best school publications in the state, having won the trophy in contest with 16 Southeastern states in 1940 and on each entry in the Georgia Scholastic Press Association has won a certificate of distinction.

The Criticism, the school year book, won the "All-American" rating; this year, which is the highest as well as a high school year book can win.

With the new year coming up we pledge you an even greater year in 1947.

Again we say: "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

S. H. Sherman, Superintendent of Statesboro High Schools.

The loyalty shown by the people of Bulloch to the college is appreciated by the faculty. The hundreds of graduates from Bulloch College who live in this section help to give the high standing that it has throughout the State.

Let us all continue to work together to give the college the best, and through our schools extend our good influence throughout the entire State.

Sincerely,
Marvin S. Pittman,
President.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Because we are printing the Herald on Saturday our society columns will carry only those parties and personals on things that happened through Saturday. Our next issue, Thursday, January 2.

NEGRO SCHOOL TURN IN $267.04 ON CHRISTMAS SEALS CAMPAIGN

The first returns from the 1946 Christmas Seals sales came in this week from The Negro High School of Statesboro High and Industrial School.

I am happy to take this opportunity to extend to every one this special word of greeting at Christmas Time. If I should express for each of you a wish it would be this brief word of prayer: "God us so to celebrate this day in humility and gratitude, in unselfish love and cheerful service, that our keeping of Christmas may be a blessing to our souls, a benefit to our fellowmen, a memorial of Christ, and a thanksgiving unto Thee for Thine unspeakable gift of the Saviour." Amen.

Rev. Claude G. Pepper, pastor First Presbyterian Church.

A FRIEND OF MAN

Let me live in my house by the side of the road.

It's here the race of men go by. They are good, they are bad, they are weak, they are strong. Wise, foolish - so am I; Then why should I sit in the house and wait for the Saviour?

Or hurt the cynic's ban? Let me live in my house by the side of the road.

An be a friend to man.

— Sam Walter Ross.

The passing years, the passing generations, the passing individuals along the highway of life all say to us that we "live in a house by the side of the road," that we are only one of the infinite plan, and that we too shall pass away.

Therefore we should - we must - be sympathetic, understanding and cooperative if we would serve the noblest and best purposes as a friend to man; the wisest man said, "He that would have friends must show himself friendly;" the angelic choir at the Savior's birth

St. Lucy Honored Throughout Sweden

St. Lucy's Day, on December 3, inaugurates the Christmas season in Sweden.

On that day the prettiest girl in the household is chosen to impersonate Lucy, very early Christmas morning she will go through the house awakening the household and giving each person a cup of coffee or some sort of sweetened beverage.

Her costume is traditionally a white dress with a red sash, and she wears a wire crown entwined with hollyhock leaves—similar to the American cranberry—studded with nine candles.

Liturgically, St. Lucy was martyred about 300 A. D. The story goes that Lucy gave her dowry to the Christians—whose courage she admired—instead of turning it over to her fiancé. The enraged young man informed against her and she was condemned to be burned at the stake; unharmed by the flames, she did not die until thrust through with a sword.

Lucy is commemorated somewhat diversely in Switzerland where she is the legendary wife of Father Christmas. Wearing a round cap over her long braids, a laced bodice and a silk apron, she marches around the village with Father Christmas and distributes gifts to the girls while he looks after the boys.

Deciphers Story of Old Syrian Tablet

A scholar at Yale university recently translated an inscription on a clay tablet found in Northern Syria which comprised "the oldest known narrative of the miraculous birth of an exceptional child," antedating similar tales familiar in Old Testament literature.

The ancient tablet was one of several unearthed during a series of archaeological expeditions begun in 1929 at Ras Shamra, the site of ancient Ugarit, and the translation was made by Dr. Julian J. Obermann, director of Judaica research at Yale.

He said the inscription, in cuneiform alphabet, formed the prologue of a Canaanite saga about a certain Daniel, who lived more than 1,000 years before his namesake who invaded the lion's den, and how he begat a son named Aqhat.

COTILLION DANCE

The Cotillion Club entertained with their annual Christmas dance at the Woman's Club Thursday night. Hostesses for the dance were: Mrs. Bird Daniel, Mrs. William Smith, Mrs. Chalmers Franklin, Mrs. Will Woodcock, Mrs. James Bland, Mrs. Everett Williams, Mrs. Cohen Anderson, Mrs. Claude Howard, Mrs. H. D. Everett and Miss Elizabeth Sorrier. The club room was decorated with red and green, the Christmas colors. The mantel was banked with green fern and red berries and a large picture of Santa Claus was on the wall. The table had the Christmas tree in center with her burning tapers on each side. Lambuth Key and his orchestra furnished the music throughout the evening. A variety of sandwiches, potato chips, pickles, ice box cookies and coca-colas were served. Sixty couples enjoyed this dance.

BRIDGE GUILD MEETS WITH MRS. HOWARD

Mrs. Claude Howard entertained her club "Bridge Guild" Wednesday afternoon at her home with two tables of bridge. For her decorations, she used the Christmas motif of red and green. For high score, Mrs. Bland received an apron and for low, Mrs. Ralph Howard received cocktail napkins. The hostess served her guests a salad course with coffee.

Yes, Folks, Now I'm Mad!

Most of you folks who've been reading my column, know me as a pretty mild tempered man, believing in "Live and let live," with plenty of respect for the other fellow's point of view.

But right now I'm blowing my top! It's this talk of bringing prohibition back to our town... subjecting our children to the evils that we see, right now, in other counties where the law exists!

You know what I mean... speak-easies and hip-flask drinking, gambling, bootleg booze, and a rising wave of juvenile delinquency. Because it's the children of any community that are the first to suffer from lawlessness and terrorism. From where I sit, it's an insult to the decent population of our town, and the way we're bringing up our children, to suggest "reform school methods" as a substitute for good home influence and self-respecting self-regulation. I'm staying mad until that kind of talk is killed for good!

Family Christmas

Held in Germany Christmas is a family affair in Germany and preparations began well in advance of the holiday. The Advent Wreath is hung on the first Sunday in Advent. This large wreath has one red candle to begin with; an additional candle is added each Sunday until Christmas and paper stars are added daily. The stars are inscribed with Bible passages which are memorized by the children of the household.

Everyone occupies precious moments making gifts for loved ones; perhaps a soap rose, a paperweight, toys for the younger children, an embroidered handkerchief or table cover; there are dozens of cookies and special cakes to be baked and everything must be finished the day before Christmas—stores and restaurants are closed, too—so that servants and tradespeople may spend Christmas Eve with their families.

After church services on Christmas Eve, one of the family goes into the parlor—where the Christmas tree has been set up and decorated with ornaments treasured from year to year. At the first notes of "O Tannenbaum," the whole family rushes in and gathers around the tree; several familiar carols are sung, and then the presents are distributed.

Sometimes Christmann—Father Christmas—joins the festivities and asks each child to say a verse; correct recitations are awarded by Christmann from pockets bulging with goodies and trinkets.

Fun at Dingley

When they were all tired of blind-man's bluff, there was a great game at snap-dragon, and when fingers enough were burned with that, and all the raisins gone, they sat down by the huge fire of blazing logs to a substantial supper and a mighty bowl of wassail, something smaller than an ordinary wash-house copper, in which the hot apples were hissing and bubbling with a rich look, and a jolly sound that were perfectly irresistible.

"This," said Mr. Pickwick, looking round him, "this is indeed comfort." "Our invariable custom," said Mr. Wardle, "everybody sits down with us on Christmas Eve, as you see them now—servants and all; and here we wait till the clock strikes twelve to usher Christmas in, and while away the time with forfeits and old stories." Trundle by, rake up the fire."

Up flew the bright sparks myriads as the logs were stirred, and the deep, red blaze sent forth a rich glow that penetrated into the farthest corner of the room and cast its cheerful tint on every face.

"Come," said Wardle, "a song—a Christmas song, give you one in default of a better." "Bravo!" said Mr. Pickwick. "Fill up!" cried Wardle. "It will be two hours gone before you see the bottom of the bowl through the deep rich colour of the wassail; fill up all round, and now the song."

From Charles Dickens' "Pickwick Papers."

Smash the Pinata South of Border

Smashing the Pinata is a red-letter feature of Mexican Christmas festivities. An earthen jar is filled with nuts, candies and small gifts. Elaborately disguised and decorated with tissue paper, etc., it often represents a doll's face or an entire figure—perhaps a bull fighter. Children of the household, blindfolded and armed with a club, are each given three chances to break the Pinata. Inasmuch as the basic earthen jar has been selected because of its fragility, it shatters easily, releasing a shower of goodies and trinkets and causing everyone in the party to scramble for a share.

A Volunteer Santa Speaks His Heart

"I know what it is to be a disappointed kid on Christmas morning—I always wanted a boat, but my folks were poor and I never got one—that's why I became Santa Claus, I guess."

Volunteers of America worker plays hostess to some of the organization's Santas.

"Working for the Volunteers of America, I've played Santa to thousands of youngsters during the last 10 years. I read a lot of minds, too, during the depression when people plodded past my cardboard chimney; folks are happy now and the carols, that gave them a far-away look while war almost blacked out the Christmas Spirit, make them smile and drop coins in the chimney."

"It's fun to have a part in the happy Christmases of so many youngsters. Most of those that I see come down with their mothers, and I try to get a nod of approval before I make any definite promises—kinda make sure the kids won't be disappointed."

"Just the same, I can't help thinking about the kids I never see who want dolls, teddies, drums and sleds, picture books, skates, trains... and boats; what a lot of helpers Santa needs to see that all these things get to the right places at the right time!"

"Wish we could be sure there will be no broken hearts this Christmas."

Real St. Nicholas Of 4th Century

St. Nicholas is popularly associated with Christmas and gift-giving presumably because once during his mortal existence he reportedly endowed three dowryless maidens with three purses of gold.

Historically—as the Archbishop of Myra, Nicholas was a member of the council of Nicea. In 325 A. D., Constantine the Great called together the theologians of the Christian world in the first complete general council of the entire Christian church.

The council, assembled near Constantinople, and presided over by the still unbaptized Constantine, proclaimed the first exact definition of Christian teaching—as embodied in the Nicene Creed—and marks the beginning of Christianity as it is understood today.

THREE YULE FIRSTS

Claims to being "firsts" among Christmas cards are held by these early designs.

An eminent American authority on greeting cards and a collector of early Christmas cards, D. Chase of Boston claims that he has found what he believes to be the "first" Christmas card—but until some scientific corroboration is forthcoming we must consider his discovery a "dark horse" in the running. That it is a very "early" card—there can be no question. Our collector traced R. H. Pease, the lithographer whose name appears at the bottom of the card, down to the year 1839 where the latter was listed in the Albany, N. Y., directory as an engraver. The thing, however, that stamps the experts is the fact that there is no date on the card itself.

Until the Egley card was discovered, the first known Christmas card was, for years, thought to have been the one designed by J. C. Horsley RA for Sir Henry Cole in London in 1843 who wanted a card to send to his friends at Christmas. Horsley's card was lithographed by Jobbins of Warwick court and a thousand copies struck off. These were colored by hand and featured among other scenes a merry family group holding filled wine glasses aloft.

Name of Jesus Found Carved in Palestine

Urns recently discovered in a cave on the Jerusalem-Bethlehem road, believed to be the oldest archeological record of Christianity dating back to 70 A. D., contained the name of Jesus carved on them. It is believed that the carving was made by an eyewitness to the crucifixion. They were found on 11 early Christian burial urns. A sect of Hebrews, who followed Jesus, denounced Pontius Pilate, and mourned the crucifixion of their leader was believed to have left the writing on the ossuaries in the cave.

Romans Started Christmas Boxes

Boxing day has been a day of gifts to public servants since Roman times. It originated as a pagan custom, for the Romans observed the rite during their winter feast of Saturnalia. Later, when the people became Christians, the gifts were handed during Mass to the priests, who placed them into boxes. The feast was then known as Christ's Mass and the boxes as Christmas boxes, not to be opened except by being broken.

All manner of tradesmen soon realized that the idea was a good one, and it became a common practice for apprentices and others to take a box round to their business acquaintances, singing carols the while.

By the time Pepys wrote his famous diary, Christmas boxes were well established, and he mentions them several times in his writings. Swift also has a word to say about them in his "Journal to Stella," written in 1710; "By the Lord Harry, I shall be undone here with Christmas boxes."

One public servant, the "bell-man," who enjoyed the privilege of soliciting Christmas boxes, was in some respects the forerunner of the postman, often being commissioned to deliver letters. At the approach of Christmas he would push poems of his own composition under the doors of townsmen whom he had served. They were reminders that recognition was expected on Boxing Day.

Many Are the Legends of Ancient Yule Log Customs

Old books and legends surround the Yule Log with much mystery and superstition.

Thus, it must be touched and lighted with scrupulously clean hands: certain types of persons—such as squinting or flatfooted—are unwelcome while it is burning and, should the fire go out during the night, bad luck is portended for the New Year.

Less superstitiously, Tyroleans decorate their Log with paper flowers and bright ribbons. Wine is poured over it by the youngest child of the household who offers a prayer that the fire may warm the cold, the hungry obtain food, the weary find rest, and all may enjoy heaven's blessing and peace.

Southern Customs Have Remained at Christmas

Negro families of Virginia have their own traditional method of gift-giving.

On Christmas Eve a large sheet is spread over the dining room table with a box placed here and there to raise the sheet above table level. Each member of the household writes his name on a slip of paper and pins it to the sheet.

Gifts are sneaked in during the night and placed under the names of the persons for whom they are intended: even the youngest children forbear to "snoop" until the morning and removal of the sheet reveals all the presents.

Years ago, egg nog was served while breakfast was being prepared—such a breakfast that no one paid much attention to Christmas dinner. When friends dropped in, everyone had something to eat so that families just sort of "pieced" all day.

Favored Ash Yule Log
The Yule log, which used to be part of every home on Christmas, was nearly always an ash log, because the legend avers that it was before an ash fire that the Holy Babe was first washed and dressed by his mother.

Welcome, New Year

WELCOME to you, New Year, enter—newborn king—
Can you tell us something of the tidings that you bring?
Do you carry happiness?
Enough to last the year?
To cast out doubt and fear?
Perhaps a balm for heartaches?
You bring along with you:
To buoy us all year through.
We bid you welcome, New Year—our dreams we trust with you,
Forgetting ills of all the past, we start the book anew.

Gregorian Calendar Was Slow in Adoption

Great Britain and her colonies adopted the Gregorian calendar in 1752; the Julian calendar having become 11 days slow by that time, parliament ordered that the day following September 3, 1752, would be September 14, and that the legal year should begin on January 1.

The Gregorian calendar is, in effect, a revision edition of the old Roman calendar. The ancient Roman year began with the month of March and ended with December, the 10th month. January and February were added in the course of time and the celebration of New Year's on January 1 began in 452 B. C.

Continental Europe had universally adopted the Gregorian calendar by 1700 but Great Britain, frowning upon anything originating in Rome as Popish, continued the use of the old calendar—with its legal year beginning on March 25—until the confusion arising from using a different calendar than the one used by continental Europe prompted the adoption of the Gregorian calendar in 1752.

Children's Day New Year's in Bulgaria

Bulgarian children receive small gifts on Christmas Day from Grandpa Koleda—an ancient winter god—but New Year's Day is really the children's holiday.

Dressed in their newest and best clothes, the youngsters bear gifts to their elders: they receive presents and small sums of money in return. In rural communities the older children visit neighbors: switching the householder with cornel rods, they wish him a happy and prosperous New Year. The word "surva" is repeated frequently—the visitors expecting to be served with goodies—but if the supply is exhausted, the situation is accepted with characteristic good humor.

The holiday season climaxes on Epiphany. The orthodox priest leads a procession to the river and, commemorating Christ's baptism, tosses a cross into the water: sometimes the ice has to be broken, but youths dive for the cross unhesitatingly—the retriever supposedly receiving a special blessing.

First Watch Night Service Held by Pioneers in 1770

In addition to the more or less hilarious, secular celebrations on New Year's Eve, many religious denominations hold special "watch-night" services from nine or ten to twelve o'clock.

The custom was inaugurated by St. George Methodist Episcopal church in Philadelphia, where the first "watch-night" service was held in 1770.

Saint Sylvester's Feast Day Marks End of Year

The feast of St. Sylvester, who was Pope from 314 A. D. until his death in 335, is observed by the Roman and Anglican churches on December 31.

In Germany and Belgium the morning of St. Sylvester's Day is commemorated religiously, while the afternoon and evening are devoted to various kinds of horseplay in anticipation of the coming New Year.

LETTER to Christmas

"WONDERFUL" weather for Christmas! Timothy Rowan thought as he tramped home through the snow with an armful of mail from the post office.

But he was apprehensive, for in the bundle was a letter from Caroline, his daughter. Why, he kept asking, would Caroline be writing now, the day before Christmas, unless to tell her parents that she wouldn't be home for the holidays?

Noisily he stamped the snow from his overshoes on the back porch, then walked into the kitchen which was savory with the odor of his wife Rachel's Christmas cooking. Then, as Rachel approached the bundle of letters he had placed on the table, Timothy found himself shrinking from the room, fearful of how Rachel would take the news.

No Caroline for Christmas! Why, never once in her 24 years had Caroline been away. But, then, she was building her own life in the city, now—new friends, new interests. And spending the holidays with two old parents was probably pretty dull.

But how would Rachel take it? If only someone, anyone, would spend Christmas with them to relieve the loneliness! Well, how about young Tom Wakefield, with whom Caroline had once been in love, a fine young chap who didn't have a home, and who probably would miss Caroline this Christmas as much as he and Rachel would?

A few minutes later Timothy was tramping downtown through the snow again, and into Tom Wakefield's garage.

"Merry Christmas, Tom!" he shouted, walking into the small office.

"Same to you, Mr. Stone!" cried Tom. "What can I do for you?"

"Well, Tom," Timothy began, "you can make a couple of old people pretty happy if you'll come to dinner with us tomorrow. You see—I don't expect Caroline will be coming and, well, it would be nice if you'd join us."

"Gosh, thanks Mr. Stone!" Tom answered. He turned red, then pale. "I'll be there!"

Back home, Timothy was reprimanded. "Well, Mr. Stone, where have you been, leaving me all alone with this news about Caroline?" Rachel's eyes sparkled.

"I know, darling," Timothy said, "it's too bad she can't be here for Christmas, but I've asked Tom Wakefield to join us. It'll be kind of nice having him, remembering how he and Caroline used to be so close. You know, I think that boy is still in love with her—"

Timothy found himself shrinking from the room.

Mrs. Stone smiled. "Well, we'd better get busy, since company's coming. Fix a fire in the hearth, will you?" And as Timothy went off on his errand, her eyes followed him, smiling.

The Stone household was a busy place Christmas morning. While Timothy tended his stock and poultry, Rachel fixed the turkey, set the table and then went upstairs to dress. And shortly after noon Tom Wakefield arrived, handsome young Tom, and the three of them sat down in the living room before the fire for a short visit before dinner.

Then an automobile horn blared out front, and Timothy ran to the window.

"It's Caroline!" he shouted, beside himself. "Rachel, come quick! She must have come in on the noon train!"

Then she burst into the room, lovely Caroline, laughing merrily, tossing her bags on the floor and running to her parents.

Suddenly she saw Tom, standing white and tense beside the fireplace, and momentarily her mouth fell open with surprise.

"Oh, Tom!" she cried. "You here, too? This makes it perfect!" And she ran to his arms, while Rachel drew her puzzled husband into the kitchen.

"You may be a pretty smart man, Timothy," she explained quietly as she lifted the turkey from the oven, "but we fooled you that time! You just assumed, because Caroline wrote the day before Christmas, that she wasn't coming home. What she said in the letter was that she was tired of the city and was coming back to stay."

"Of course," she smiled, "I'll give you credit. Poor Caroline's heart was breaking for Tom, so your inviting him here today makes everything perfect!"

IS YOUR LIVER CRYING FOR HELP

because of constipation or faulty digestion? If you feel bilious, sour, bloated with gas, headachy, blue, grouchy, you may be putting too big a burden on your liver. Retained undigested food becomes putrefactive, causes toxins, which overload the liver, keeping it from working properly. Then is the time to relieve your tired liver by letting Calotabs help nature sweep the putrefactive and partially digested matter from your stomach and intestines. Nothing acts just like good old Calotabs. Use as directed. 10c and 25c at your druggists.

Merry CHRISTMAS GREETINGS 1946

Christmas lights shed a glow unknown at any other time of the year.

The same lights, after Christmas, have lost their charm, so, you see it is really the Christmas spirit that lights our homes! We wish you every happiness this Christmas season of 1946.

ON Christmas Eve, Nancy hurried breathlessly into her rooming house. Surely the package from home would be there! But Mrs. Groggins, the ugly little landlady, shook her head.

"Nothing," she said. "The mailman went right by this afternoon." Up in her room Nancy spent a lonesome Christmas Eve. She read awhile to forget her hunger, then went to bed. Next morning it was the destitute Mrs. Wilson who awakened her.

"Merry Christmas, Miss Bell!" she shouted, walking into the room uninvited. Nancy was irritated, momentarily, by this highly painted, shallow creature. But she quickly regained her composure. It was Christmas, after all!

"It was swell of you, dearie, to pay Mrs. Groggins a week's rent in advance last night," Mrs. Wilson said, settling herself into the most comfortable chair. "I don't know what would have happened, because I'm caught a bit short just now and couldn't pay!"

Nancy thought fast. Nancy said it was all right, that she had been glad to do it, but then she felt hungry and remembered there had been no dinner—and now no breakfast. All because of Mrs. Wilson!

"I was just about to drop out for a bite to eat," her visitor explained, "and seeing you're all alone, I thought you might like to come along."

Nancy remembered the lone 25-cent piece in her purse. "Thank you so kindly, Mrs. Wilson," she answered quickly. "But I'm—I'm not feeling so well this morning. I'll just have a cup of coffee in my room!"

About noon she dressed, for Jim was calling for her at one o'clock. What a ravenous appetite she would have!

But one o'clock passed, and no Jim. Nor at 2 or 3, and Nancy's spirits began to give way. Had he, too, chosen to punish her on Christmas?

Downstairs she heard Mr. and Mrs. Groggins welcoming their guests for the day, and she took a vicarious pleasure from it. She heard the dinner bell, the clatter of dishes as they dined, and then the shuffling of chairs as the well-fed guests retired to the living room. By that time it was five o'clock and Nancy sat by her window, figuratively biting her fingernails. She was almost hysterical with fear, and she began to worry.

At six o'clock she put on her coat and dashed down the stairs, headed she knew not where. Perhaps to find Jim, perhaps merely to escape her room. She reached the entrance, turned the knob and pulled open the door—and there was Jim, just arriving!

Tearfully she threw herself into his arms, shivering from fright. "Oh, Jim!" she cried. "Where have you been?"

"But didn't you get my message?" he asked. "I had to work in the laboratory this afternoon, and telephoned Mrs. Groggins at 12:30!" His brow was furrowed.

Just then there was a voice behind them. "Miss Bell!" It was Mrs. Groggins. "A message for you. It came just before dinner, but then our guests arrived and I didn't get around to bringing it up."

Nancy took the slip from her hand, wiping away a tear. She heard Jim cursing.

"Let's get out of here, honey," he said, quietly.

A short time later they were dining by candlelight while a string ensemble played soft Christmas music in the background. Jim looked up from his coffee and smiled, then reached into his pocket.

"There was a big package on your desk at the office," he said. "It came today. From your folks, I guess. Too big to carry with me, but maybe this will take its place."

He reached for her left hand, then for the second finger, and at its tip he poised a diamond ring. Then he looked at her, asking assent.

"Yes, darling," she said softly. "It's the merriest Christmas ever!"
