

Attorney General Cook Recognizes Thompson

Following the resignation of Ellis Arns as Governor of Georgia, Eugene Cook, attorney general, this week announced that he is recognizing Lieutenant-Governor M. E. Thompson as Acting Governor. The suit filed by Mr. Arns will be carried on in the name of Lt. Governor Thompson. Mr. Cook's statement is as follows:

"I am recognizing Lt. Governor M. E. Thompson as Acting Governor in accordance with the clear mandate of the Constitution of Georgia. This recognition is absolutely impersonal. Neither personalities nor politics is a factor in my decision.

"My position is consistent with the interpretation of the Constitution. I gave Ellis Arns, when he was Governor, in an oral opinion the day following the resignation of the incumbent, the right to resign. Subsequent to the release of this oral opinion, on January 3, 1947, Ellis Arns, then Governor, requested me to give him an official opinion dealing with the following specific legal propositions arising from the death of Mr. Talmadge:

"1. The tenure of the incumbent Governor.

"2. The authority, if any, of the Legislature to elect a Governor under the prevailing circumstances.

"3. The rights, if any, of the Lt. Governor to succeed to the powers and duties of the incumbent upon resignation.

"In that opinion, I ruled in answer to Question 1, that the tenure of the incumbent, that it was clearly the mandate of the Constitution that he continue in office 'until his successor is chosen and qualified in accordance with the laws and constitution.'

"In answer to Question 2, as to the authority of the Legislature to elect a Governor, I ruled that the Legislature had no such authority under the prevailing circumstances.

"In answer to Question 3, I ruled that upon his resignation (the incumbent) the Lt. Governor would succeed to the powers and duties of Governor.

"Under the law it is my duty to respond to the written request of the Governor for an official opinion on the issues involved.

"While this opinion was not binding on the Legislature it was binding on the Governor. It pointed out the constitutional and legal way for a election of a Governor by the people. Governor Arns respected it and elected Herman Talmadge.

"After the election of Herman Talmadge, and in the direction of Governor Arns, I filed a suit in the Henry County Superior Court, the residence of Mr. Talmadge, in which I asked the Court to declare who was the Governor of Georgia, as between the two claimants, Governor Arns and Herman Talmadge. The trial is set for February 7.

"Now that Governor Arns has resigned and Lt. Governor M. E. Thompson has asserted his right of succession, as provided for by the Constitution, we still have two claimants to the office of Governor.

"It has been unpleasantly obvious from the beginning that these claims cannot and must not be settled by the use of force and violence. Democracy and common decency demand an orderly and judicial determination. Therefore I shall substitute Lt. Governor M. E. Thompson for that of Governor Ellis Arns as plaintiff and continue the prosecution of the original suit.

"This suit was the only judicial action available to me at the time and under the statute authorizing it the issues could not be heard within twenty days from the date of service on the defendant, unless otherwise agreed to by both parties. Neither the defendant, Herman Talmadge, nor his attorneys have indicated a desire to expedite the trial of the suit; on the contrary, according to press releases, it is contended by him and some of his advisors that the courts have no jurisdiction over the subject matter of the suit.

"Since the Constitution provided that the Supreme Court is without original jurisdiction the suit had to originate in the Superior Court. If the Superior Court holds that Herman Talmadge is entitled to the office of Governor, I shall then immediately appeal to the Supreme Court for final adjudication. If, on the other hand, the Superior Court holds that he is not entitled to the office I hope he will do likewise.

"Our own Constitution provides that the supreme law of this State is: First, the Constitution of the United States and the laws made pursuant thereto. Second, the Constitution of Georgia, third in subordination to the foregoing: All laws not inconsistent with the Constitution. The State Constitution is above the Legislature and the Supreme Court is the final judge of its meaning. It is not uncommon for the Supreme Court to nullify legislation and legislative interpretations of the Constitution.

"Among other things Article 6, Section 12, Paragraph 4 of our Constitution, provides that 'the Supreme Court shall be a court for the trial and correction of errors of law in all cases that involve the construction of the Constitution of the State of Georgia.'

Russell Gets
Science Award

London, January 21.—The Cadman Memorial Medal for outstanding research in petroleum science has been awarded to Robert P. Russell, president of Standard Oil Development Company. It was announced this week by the Institute of Petroleum.

The Cadman medal is awarded at least once every three years for scientific contributions in the field of petroleum. Mr. Russell will receive the medal June 4 when he delivers the second Cadman Memorial Lecture in the Lecture Hall of the Royal Institution, London.

The medal, first awarded in 1946 to Sir William Fraser, C. B. E., commemorates the great services to the petroleum industry of the late Lord Cadman.

As head of the central technical and research organization of Standard Oil Company, Mr. Russell guided the work of 2,000 engineers, chemists and technologists who, operating as a team, have made major contributions to the development of new processes and new improved petroleum products.

In recognition of his outstanding services during the war, particularly in directing research and development in the field of flame throwers, incendiaries and smoke generators, Mr. Russell recently was awarded the Medal for Merit, the highest civilian award in the United States. Citing Mr. Russell for "especially meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services," President Truman said that his "unfiring efforts and successful results reflect great credit on himself and the nation."

Mr. Russell married Nannie Mell Oliff daughter of Mrs. Delight Oliff of Statesboro.

Grand Jury Presents
BULLOCH SUPERIOR COURT

We, the Grand Jury, chosen and sworn to serve at the January Term, 1947, of Bulloch Superior Court, submit the following report:

We, the Grand Jurors go on record as approving that the County authorities erect buildings sufficient to take care of the County Offices on the lot where the Health Department is now located, when supplies are available.

It appearing to the Grand Jurors that a large number of substantial citizens of this county favor the abolition of the sale of whiskey in Bulloch County, and we realize the evils which grow out of the excessive use of whiskey and believing that it would be to the County's best interest, we recommend that the County petition the Ordinary to call a referendum to prohibit the sale of whiskey in Bulloch County.

We the members of this Grand Jury urge the officers of this County to see that the law is carried out on the enforcement of the Sunday Blue Laws; we also urge the Sheriff of this county to collect whatever tax is due on the collection.

We recommend that Charlie Thomas be paid $5.00 per month. The committee, J. R. Bowen and R. J. Brown appointed to examine the Justice of Peace books of the County report the same to be found well kept and okay.

We recommend that the State Highway Department put or erect signs at the intersection of Highway No. 80 and No. 25 at Hopewell.

Grand Jury OKs Liquor Election

"Bulloch county should begin to think of necessary improvements to take care of the expanding division of its government and you grand jurors should talk with your county authorities about providing these improvements," Judge J. L. Renfro told the January Bulloch County Grand Jury at the opening session here Monday morning.

Judge Renfro called the grand jury's attention to the progress Bulloch county has made in the past few years in the way of improvements, citing the new prison camps, which he stated is one of the best in the state. The addition to the Bulloch County Hospital now under construction, however, he stated that the county had been forced to rent offices in downtown buildings to care for the expansion. In this connection, the judge also called attention to the establishment of a hospital for the county.

He made a strong appeal for unity among our people. He stated that during the war we were united, but now we have forgotten and have fallen from love of our country to scrambling for the money. He said that we still have isolationists not only in international affairs, but in state affairs as well.

Remer D. Lanier is foreman of the grand jury.

The January term of superior court convened Monday, recessed, and after a day given over to civil matters Tuesday recessed again until Monday of next week when the criminal docket will be taken up.

Baptists to See
Giant Bible

Members and visitors attending the Statesboro Baptist church Sunday evening of this week will be presented with one of the year's most unusual programs, according to Rev. Earl Serson.

Rev. Serson stated "Too few people actually know enough about the Bible which is the foundation of our Christian message. In order to make clear some of the history of the Bible we will use charts depicting different phases of the history of the Bible. These charts will begin with the ancient manuscripts and will picture the way in which the modern Bible was handed down to the present generation.

He said that a giant Bible has been constructed for the occasion and its pages will be rare in their revelation of the Book of Books. He invites everyone to the service which will begin at 7:30 Sunday evening.

Rev. John Burch, associate pastor of the church, announced that the church basement assembly will be equipped with a public address system to accommodate an overflow of the congregation.

Hubert Clifton to Go

In American Embassy

He expects to leave the States about February 25. He has worked in the office of the military attaché for about 18 months.

Russell Gets
Science Award

London, January 21.—The Cadman Memorial Medal for outstanding research in petroleum science has been awarded to Robert P. Russell, president of Standard Oil Development Company. It was announced this week by the Institute of Petroleum.

The Cadman medal is awarded at least once every three years for scientific contributions in the field of petroleum. Mr. Russell will receive the medal June 4 when he delivers the second Cadman Memorial Lecture in the Lecture Hall of the Royal Institution, London.

The medal, first awarded in 1946 to Sir William Fraser, C. B. E., commemorates the great services to the petroleum industry of the late Lord Cadman.

As head of the central technical and research organization of Standard Oil Company, Mr. Russell guided the work of 2,000 engineers, chemists and technologists who, operating as a team, have made major contributions to the development of new processes and new improved petroleum products.

In recognition of his outstanding services during the war, particularly in directing research and development in the field of flame throwers, incendiaries and smoke generators, Mr. Russell recently was awarded the Medal for Merit, the highest civilian award in the United States. Citing Mr. Russell for "especially meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services," President Truman said that his "unfiring efforts and successful results reflect great credit on himself and the nation."

Mr. Russell married Nannie Mell Oliff daughter of Mrs. Delight Oliff of Statesboro.

Grand Jury Presents
BULLOCH SUPERIOR COURT

We, the Grand Jury, chosen and sworn to serve at the January Term, 1947, of Bulloch Superior Court, submit the following report:

We, the Grand Jurors go on record as approving that the County authorities erect buildings sufficient to take care of the County Offices on the lot where the Health Department is now located, when supplies are available.

It appearing to the Grand Jurors that a large number of substantial citizens of this county favor the abolition of the sale of whiskey in Bulloch County, and we realize the evils which grow out of the excessive use of whiskey and believing that it would be to the County's best interest, we recommend that the County petition the Ordinary to call a referendum to prohibit the sale of whiskey in Bulloch County.

We the members of this Grand Jury urge the officers of this County to see that the law is carried out on the enforcement of the Sunday Blue Laws; we also urge the Sheriff of this county to collect whatever tax is due on the collection.

We recommend that Charlie Thomas be paid $5.00 per month. The committee, J. R. Bowen and R. J. Brown appointed to examine the Justice of Peace books of the County report the same to be found well kept and okay.

We recommend that the State Highway Department put or erect signs at the intersection of Highway No

A Verse For This Week

The grandest operations, both in nature and in grace, are the most silent and imperceptible. The shallow brook bubbles in its passage, and is heard by everyone; but the coming of the seasons is silent and unseen. The storm rages and alarms, but its fury is soon exhausted, and its effects are partial and soon remedied; but the dew, though gentle and unheard, is immense in quantity, and the very life of large portions of the earth. And these are pictures of the operations of grace in the church and in the soul. —Cecil.

Still No Swimming Pool

Another Summer is coming up. Summer, 1947.

And still no swimming pool for the young people of Statesboro, the metropolis of the county "Where Nature Smiles and Progress Has the Right of Way."

We are beginning to be a little cynical about that slogan—"Where Nature Smiles..." That is good. We couldn't prevent that even if we legislated against it. But "..." and Progress Has the Right of Way—that we question.

No community can progress to its full capacity for progress as long as it consistently refuses to recognize the existence of its young people. And we can't deny that we refuse to recognize them. The simple neglect to act on their behalf is the best evidence that they go unrecognized.

The only provision for an outlet for the energy characteristics of the young has been made by a private citizen with private funds. Nathan Foss built the skating rink and the bowling alley out beyond the city limits. It is to his credit that he is operating a clean and wholesome recreation center. But he operates it for a profit and that is as it should be.

But it is the duty of the City of Statesboro and its obligation to the young people to do that which a private citizen has done.

Private citizens of Statesboro have contributed nearly $8,000 with which to build a swimming pool. The funds are being held in escrow for that purpose. The pool is to be the nucleus of a recreation center. That is good. The chairman of the committee and the members of the committee that made the solicitation of the funds want to go ahead and build the swimming pool.

It is wonderful that the citizens of Statesboro responded so generously to the swimming pool fund. But in doing so they may have assumed the responsibility of completing the entire project. And that is not how it should be.

A recreation center is as much a responsibility of the City as a water system, a sewerage system, a garbage disposal system, and a public school system.

The members of the city council and the mayor want the young people of Statesboro to have a swimming pool and a recreation center.

Every mother and every father of every son and every daughter in Statesboro want their young people to have a swimming pool and a recreation center.

Every member of every civic club in Statesboro wants the young people of Statesboro to have a swimming pool and a recreation center.

Or do they?

We believe they do, for they have expressed themselves in no uncertain terms. They have been saying so for nearly ten years—since the "Dormant pool" was abandoned.

And yet—we don't have a swimming pool.

The four years of the war gave us legitimate excuse for not building the pool and the recreation center. Then the non-availability and high prices of materials gave us another year's excuse.

Then last week there was a little flurry of activity—a demand that something be done. This was in connection with the plans of the Statesboro Athletic Association which is planning to build a baseball park. That soon played out.

And so Summer, 1947 is coming up.

THE GAME OF GOLF

Golf! The grand game of golf. This little discussion of the game is for those who have never played the game, who have never had anything to do with the game, and who never intend to have anything to do with the game. (These people we admire and consider them smarter than they know.) We feel we owe this discussion to our readers since there is now a golf course near Statesboro where many of our citizens are now playing, and it will help intelligent conversation about the game.

Now the compilers of the Webster's Dictionary are somewhat evaded all possible involvement in the many issues that can grow from a discussion of the subject by merely stating that "the object is to put the ball into each hole in as few strokes as possible."

Sounds simple doesn't it? But it's not that simple.

Before we go into the discussion of the game let's learn the names of the instruments with which the game is played, and some of the terms used in playing.

First of all there is, of Course, the ball. (We're going to confine our discussion to language that our readers may understand, completely ignoring professional terminology.)

THE BALL

The ball is small, about the size of a ping pong ball—well if you are not familiar with a ping pong ball, it is about the size of a lunch counter meat ball. Small and round. It has many tiny pock marks on it. It is white when it is new but it becomes a "winter white" with use. (The ladies will know that "winter white" is a tattle-tale grey.) As it is used it becomes covered with scratches, cuts, and other abrasions. This is a natural result and should not concern the reader. A player usually carries several of these balls with him for it is a part of the game that many balls are lost during the course of a game.

Enough for the ball. Let's go on.

THE CLUBS

We now become involved in some of the more intricate and complicated instruments of the game. The clubs are sometimes called "sticks" and sometimes called "rackets." Now the clubs, or sticks are sort of mallets and not exactly mallets either. You who play croquet know what a mallet is. Well these clubs or sticks and a croquet mallet have one thing in common—they both have handles. The handle on a golf club is a little longer than the handle of a croquet mallet. And some of the handles on golf clubs are longer than others. Now a croquet mallet is an instrument of some beauty, in that it is built with a degree of symmetry to it and painted in attractive colors. Not so a golf club. They come in several sizes and a golfer—that is a person who plays golf—thinks he needs all of them. There are, in fact, thirteen, to be exact, in two types. Let's take up the first type.

THE WOOD CLUBS

There are four woods—the "driver," the "brassie," the "spoon," and the "Number 4." You may, for short, just call them one, two, three, and four. The handles on the woods are longer than the other clubs. The number one or "Driver" is used to hit the ball off the "tee." (We'll discuss the tee later.) Sometimes it is effective, and in the course of the evening one of the men gets drunk, and Holdfast learns that the British plan to attack New Orleans.

The description of the Battle of New Orleans is one of the finest things I have ever read.

Running through the story, like one somber thread in a particularly colorful tapestry, is Holdfast's own personal struggle—whether or not to give up his friendship for the whites, and revert to being just an Indian. Luckily, for all the settlers along the Mississippi Valley his loyalty to his white friends wins.

The book gives a wonderful word-picture of Indian life. Holdfast, realizing there is no room for the Indians east of the Mississippi, sets out westward with the Beloved Woman of the Creek Confederacy to find a place where the Indians can live in peace.

P. S. Yes, Holdfast finally catches the "knife."

FOR EAGLES FLY WEST, by Ed Ainsworth.

Here is another historical novel dealing with the settling of California by the Americans. A very good book.

MYSTERY OF THE WEEK

The Mystery of the Week is "The Crooked Wreath" by Christianna Brand. English scene, plot and motive are good, but the characterization is a little weak. Worth reading, however.

"SCUDDA-HOO, SCUDDA-HAY"

A fascinating title. It is a story about a team of mules, by George Sessions Percy and very amusing too.

Percy is kidnapped, and while on his trail, Holdfast finds that the murderer's and kidnapper's name is "Tharpe." When he finally captures the two men he finds that they are childhood friends. Just as one of them is about to tell him the name of "The Knife," he is shot by Nolan, one of the posse, who flees into the forest.

Here there is another lapse of time to 1899, and when we rejoin the characters we find that Russell Bean now owns a fleet of river barges, and is manufacturing rifles. Andrew Jackson has married Rachel Donelson, Percy is married, and in business with Russell, and Holdfast is still on the trail of "The Knife." Parson Blanchison has gone to live with a tribe of Indians, where he is regarded as something of a wizard.

Holdfast, Russell, and a river man called "Snag" (a very tough character) make a trip to New Orleans and contact Jean Lafitte, the pirate, to see if he knows anything about "The Knife." He tells them that "The Knife" has a long scar on the right hand and arm.

Holdfast gets a letter from old Capt. Chester and goes back to Connecticut to visit in 1914. He and Rebecca (now a widow) meet again and find that their old feeling for each other is dead. Rebecca has a son, Sam, a captain in the U. S. Navy, and Holdfast makes a trip with him. While they are in the port of Foyat, in the Azores, they are attacked by a British man-of-war. They manage to sink it, and another vessel, but are no match for the rest of the navy, and finally scuttle their ship, and escape into the neutral city of Horta.

Sam and Holdfast are invited to supper by admiring British officers.

Good Bocks Are True Friends

In the best books great men talk to us, give us their most precious thoughts, and pour their souls into ours—Channing.

By Mrs. F. F. Baker

HOLDFAST GAINES by Odell and Wellard Shepard.

This is a magnificent book written by a father-son team. I enjoyed it more than anything I have read since Anthony Adverse. The authors have done an unusual thing in making an Indian the hero. Holdfast is a Mihiican, the descendant of King Uncas, who has been brought up in the household of Colonel John Chester, an extremely likeable man.

When the story opens, it is 1780, and the British are attacking New London Conn. Lt. John Reid, of the British Navy, is taken prisoner, and held at the Chester Farm. He falls in love with Rebecca Chester (who loves Holdfast) and goes over to the side of the patriots. Holdfast tells Rebecca he can't marry her (not because he doesn't think himself good enough but because he does not believe in Indian and White marriages), and on the day of her marriage to Reid he starts for Kentucky, taking with him Percy, whose parents were killed by the British.

Here there is a lapse of several years, and in 1788 we find Holdfast in Salisbury, N. C., where he meets Russell Bean a trader, and Andrew Jackson. They join a group which is heading for the Western Waters, and the settlement of Nashville. One of these men is Parson Blanchison, a black-sheep and ex-English minister who becomes one of Holdfast's best friends.

When they reach Nashville, they find out that some sinister organization is killing the settlers wherever one is found unprotected. This group is headed by some mysterious person called, "The Knife." Holdfast makes a trip to see Alexander McGillivray, the half-breed leader of the Creeks, to find what he can, and because he is treated so evasively, decides that McGillivray is implicated in his kidnapping, and while on his trail, Holdfast finds that the murderer's and kidnapper's name is "Tharpe." When he finally captures the two men he finds that they are childhood friends. Just as one of them is about to tell him the name of "The Knife," he is shot by Nolan, one of the posse, who flees into the forest.

THE IRON CLUBS

It is better to refer to the "irons" as clubs, for to call them sticks you might think that they are constructed of wood, since "sticks" carries with it a meaning of "stick of stove wood" or "stick of candy," or a "stick of gum" or a "stick in the mud"—which the game is played, and some of the terms used in playing.

There are nine irons, including the "driver," which they have names, even as I have names. They are driving iron, the mid-iron, the mid mashie, the mashie iron, the mashie niblick, the pitcher, the pitching niblick, the niblick and the putter. Again for the sake of brevity let's just call them number one iron, number two iron, and so on to the number nine, which we'll call the putter.

The Liquor Interests Made Us Some Promises-- We Tried Them Out

- "JUST REPEAL PROHIBITION," they said, "and . . ."
- "We will have less drinking."
Yet there was 4 times as much in 1946 as in 1934. So says the U. S. Department of Commerce.)
 - "We will get rid of the bootlegger."
(Yet today he is still with us. We have legal and illegal liquor.)
 - "People will drink moderately instead of excessively."
(Yet the crop of alcoholics is soaring. Keely Cure Institutes have increased from 3 in 1934 to over 100 today)
 - "People will drink beer and wine instead of hard liquor"
(Yet the Distilled Spirits Institute now brags that hard liquor consumption increased over 300% from 1934 to 1944, while beer increased only 61%.)
 - "We will provide revenue and reduce taxes."
(Yet taxes had increased even before war started)
 - "The Saloon won't come back."
(Yet the tavern is the old saloon with its face lifted)
 - "We will stop the youth from drinking."
(Oh yeah! They've even got the women drinking now.)
 - "There will be an end of the crime wave."
(Read what G-Man J. Edgar Hoover says, and you answer that one.)
 - "We will restore prosperity"
Well they did that all right, especially for the liquor dealers, not especially for the liquor drinkers.)

ALL'S FAIR

It was certainly not our intention to confuse the readers of this column with the girl wearing the white fur hat with the blue and white striped ribbon. As members of the Junior French Knot-Ters Club arrived at Ruby Lane's for lunch Thursday their conversation revolved about the girl who they had definitely recognized and on whose figure they promptly placed the ring. No girls, you were mistaken. To help you identify the girl, she works in a store north of the tracks in light. That should make it easy.

It would happen to a real estate man. . . For 20 years Charlie Cone has owned a spot of land in the red hills of North Georgia. . . a mountain land. It is full of brush and briars by summer, and boasting snow and ice in winter. Of late Charlie had been thinking about this piece of land he thought something must be happening. So about a week ago he and Mrs. Cone motored up there. Passing through Tate and on up to Jasper where the land is located they saw this "marble" road, which like a silver ribbon wound its way up the mountain. To their amazement they discovered a hotel, an artificial lake, and numerous cottages had been constructed on property adjoining theirs. Now Charlie, no doubt is doing a bit of calculating on the profits that might be made on the sale of sites for summer cottages.

DID YOU BREAK YOUR SPECS
Dew Groover was visibly upset last week . . . and no wonder. His watch was in the repair shop. The dentist had his upper plate, and his cigarette lighter failed to function. Dew dejectedly complained, "If I drop my glasses now, I'll just give up."

Carolyn Shuman (Mrs. Dan) attracted admiring glances from all the girls as she was honored at Vernon Bland's party. Carolyn, a lovely blond with blue eyes, was wearing a purple and fuchsia frock with silver nail head trim. Her small hat fashioned from ostrich tips and rose with wisps of pink veiling added to her smart appearance.

Saturday was a busy day in Statesboro. We saw Mrs. Delight Oliff wielding a brush broom around her front door steps. Joe Johnston and Si Waters accompanied by four bird dogs were hunting north of the city. And down on Savannah Avenue Lulu Grimes was all in a dither getting her house in readiness for an afternoon wedding (which like Topsy "just grewed"). Shortly after Willie Groover arrived here Thursday afternoon from Richmond Va., she confided to Lulu Grimes that she and Willie Cobb (of the firm Cobb & Foshall) planned to marry very quietly Saturday afternoon. Willie wanted the ceremony to be performed at Frank and Lulu's. Willie stressed the fact that she wanted only Aunt Maxie (Mrs. Donehoo), Aunt Allie (Mrs. Brannen), Brooks, Leodel and Virginia Evans and her daughter, Ann, from Savannah. Then Willie went up town—now do allie filling in for yourself—Willie has a host of friends and with Willie, bless her heart, they're all close friends, naturally they would like to witness the ceremony—when Lulu suspected that there would be many more guests at the wedding than the original plan called for she went into action. The lovely lace cloth was laid for the bride's table centered with gorgeous flowers. Flowers were delivered from the mystery club. Ruth Sewell made cookies—There was the rich aroma of coffee and freshly roasted nuts. A place in front of the double door leading into the sun room was designated for the couple. 3:30 came and every thing was in readiness for the nuptials but Brother Jackson was not there. At four o'clock he arrived in a taxi. (His daughter was out driving in the family car). Vows were exchanged and as they stared toward the altar they were pelted by the traditional shower of rice. Ann had taken her grandmother's last bag of rice and had passed it out to the guests. And so the wedding was complete. There were even out-of-town guests. Paul and Bunny Simmons from Metter and Mrs. Eugene DeLoach of South Carolina. The bride and groom left to spend the week-end at the Hotel Oglethorpe. From there they went to Athens to see Mary Virginia and Tiny Hill and then on to Atlanta to see John. Thence to Rocky Mount, N. C. where they will make their home.

About 50 golf enthusiasts flocked to the Forest Heights Golf Club Sunday afternoon. Among the players were Frank and Ann greatest of all "party-pitchers," Elsie Maxwell. It was at "Lucky Tea" and all of the guests were quite grown-up and sophisticated in their attire. Jackie Mikell scored as the "perfect lady." She wore a blue evening gown, a fur wrap added elegance. And too cute for words was her pocket book which had a place for her lipstick at the bottom. Oh, she was quite soignée. Their chief entertainment was "gossiping." Margaret Ann Dekle made snapshots of the fashionable affair.

As ever,
JANE.

HERE'S WHY PROFESSORS SEE TRIPLE

If professors at the University of Wichita think they're seeing triple, it's probably the Batt brothers from nearby Augusta, Kans. The 30-year-old triplets, reading Ted, Joe and Lee from left to right, are all veterans of two years service in the Navy, and studying at the university under educational provisions of Public Law 346 administered by the Veterans Administration. Ted is majoring in aeronautics, Lee is studying dramatics, and Joe is taking a premedical course.

VETERANS CORNER

Can a wife claim her husband as a dependent in her income tax report even though he is receiving compensation for a service-connected disability? Is a veteran with visual impairment pursuing a course of vocational rehabilitation entitled to the services of a reader?

Here are the answers to these and other questions frequently asked the Veterans Administration.

Q. May widows or children of deceased veterans obtain a guaranteed loan?

A. No. This privilege is limited to veterans themselves, but a loan guaranteed for a veteran may continue after his death.

Q. May I claim my husband as a dependent in my income tax report, even though he is receiving compensation for disability incurred while in the service during World War II?

A. A veteran's compensation or pension is not subject to Federal income tax. Therefore, if you are the family breadwinner, you may claim exemption for him.

Q. Must property used to get a loan be covered by insurance?

A. It is customary for lenders to require insurance on buildings against which loans are made in order to protect themselves against loss of security. This also protects the veteran since it may provide funds to replace a loss. Buildings used as security for loans which carry the guaranty of the Veterans Administration must be insured against fire and other hazards against which it is customary to insure in the community.

Q. As a World War II veteran with visual impairment pursuing a course of vocational rehabilitation, am I entitled to the services of a reader to aid me in completing my course?

A. Yes. Every disabled veteran in school training whose vision is so impaired as to make it possible or inadvisable for him to use his eyes for reading is entitled to reader service.

Veterans wishing further information about veterans' benefits may have their questions answered by visiting the VA Contact office at 21½ East Main St.

CONSTIPATION BAD COLDS

Retained undigested food becomes putrefactive, causes toxins, which overload the liver and other vital organs of the body, lessening your resistance to colds and other winter ills and interfering with their treatment. Why take this chance when you can take Calotabs? Calotabs thoroughly yet pleasantly act on every foot of your intestines, sweeping out toxins, laden putrefactive foods and virus-laden mucus, enabling you to more effectively avoid or fight a cold. Nothing acts like good old Calotabs. Use as directed. 10c and 25c at all druggists.

Bert Childers and the Melon Patch

Bert Childers put an ad in the Clarion the other day. Here's what it said:

"Planted more melons than I can eat this year. Stop by and pick as many as you want. All free."

As you can guess, plenty of folks sent their kids over and plenty of the parents came too. Stripped Bert's melon patch in no time. And as they went away, Bert treated the kids to lemonade, and offered the grownups a glass of ice-cold sparkling beer.

Naturally it puzzled some folks... but Bert explains: "It gives me a kick to share things when I can afford to—whether it's the melons, or the lemonade, or beer. I guess I just like to indulge my whims."

From where I sit, if we had more "self-indulgent" people like Bert—who believe in share and share alike, live and let live, this tired world would be a whole lot better off!

She invites those who are interested to be at the Woman's Club on Monday afternoon, February 3 where instruction will be given until 9:00 o'clock in the evening.

HOUSTON GIRL BECOMES TOP FLIGHT SKATING STAR

The dazzling ice spectacle, "Ice Vogues," which comes to the Municipal Auditorium for a week, starting on February 7, boasts of one of the most unusual oddities in all show business. Even more unusual than would be the fact that an Olympic swimming champion would come from Nome, Alaska, is the fact that Eloise Day, one of the highest flying skaters in "Ice Vogues" hails from the warm climes of Houston, Texas. Obviously, this is a case of the attraction of opposites, as Houston is certainly not noted for its icy winters and yet, the charming Eloise is recognized as one of the most talented young skaters yet to be seen on the ice.

Always completely entranced by ice skating, Eloise joined the Tulsa figure skating club at the early age of 13, she was the outstanding performer in this group.

While attaining great fame as a skater, Eloise is not yet satisfied. She admits to the burning ambition to become a real international rink star. With every performance of "Ice Vogues" she proves that such an accomplishment is within her grasp.
