ing operations of a satisfactory nature, and who need annual credit to continue their operations this year.

Annual loan assistance will no longer be extended to those who are carrying on the type of farming that will likely require a continuation of such loans year after year, instead of developing the farm so that it will become self sustaining. State Director Vansant said. Many borrowers who have received annual loans in previous years will not qualify under this policy.

Veterans will again be given preference and they will be provided the best credit and supervisory assistance possible, the county supervisor stated.

Farmers Find Good Soil Conservation Profitable

By T. L. ASBURY
State Conservationist

Georgia farmers have found soil conservation farming profitable farming. Wise land use and the application of soil-conserving practices have increased their production and brought them higher incomes. By putting all their land to its best use they have diversified their farming and found new sources of income.

Farmers have learned that their soil conservation district can help them know their own soils better. Through districts they can get a conservation survey of their farm. The survey shows the kind of soil, the slope of the land, and the erosion. The soil scientist, working in the district, provides interested farmers with a map showing the best use for each field. This is called a land capability map. It is so-called because it shows how the soil of each field is capable of being profitably farmed. With the land capability map to guide the farmer he is able to plan wisely his farming operations.

By the end of August, 1949, soil conservation districts had helped 53,259 Georgia farmers to prepare soil conservation farm plans. The plans covered 10,565,684 acres.

There are 25 soil conservation districts in Georgia covering all of the state except six counties. These districts were organized under a Georgia law enacted in 1937. The supervisors study the soil and water conservation problems of the farmers of their district. They then help interested farmers get all the help they can in solving those problems.

The Soil Conservation Service of the United States Department of Agriculture uses all of its field forces to help farmers in districts conserve and use wisely their soil and water resources. Since 1937 it has been working through districts to help farmers plan and apply the soil conservation practices needed on their land. The soil conservationists in each county of the districts spend their time helping farmers conserve and put to the best use the soil and water resources.

In applying the planned soil conserving practices farmers have used funds available through the Production and Marketing Administration to purchase lime, fertilizer, and seed, and to get terraces and drainage ditches built, or other soil-conserving practices. This assistance has enabled farmers to greatly speed up the application of the planned practices.

Farmers look to their district supervisors to get help in all phases of soil conservation. The supervisors look to the Soil Conservation Service for technical assistance in inventorying soil and water resources, preparing soil conservation farm plans, and in applying planned soil conservation practices.

The Good Earth

LET US NEVER FORGET that the cultivation of the earth is the most important labor of man. Man may be civilized in some degree without great progress in manufactures and with little commerce with his distant neighbors. But without the cultivation of the earth, he is, in all countries, a savage. Until he gives up the chase, and fixes himself in some place, he is a roaming barbarian. When tillage begins, other arts follow. The farmers, therefore, are the founders of civilization.— DANIEL WEBSTER.

WE ARE NOW in times when less emphasis is being placed on commodities likely to produce surpluses.

MORE AND MORE attention is being directed to practices designed to sustain the productivity of our soils.

OUR LAND resources will be better used when we can turn more to grass and livestock in Bulloch county.

WE JOIN the farmers of BULLOCH COUNTY in observing CONSERVATION WEEK. PLAN FOR THE FUTURE—See your local soil conservationist—he is here to help you.

Brunson Is 25 Delegate

Hoke S. Brunson was named Statesboro's delegate on the U.S. 25 Highway Association at a meeting held in Brunswick last week.

Mr. Brunson, for a long time, has been a leader in promoting tourist travel through this section.

Jim Gould of Brunswick was named president of the association. Porter Carswell, Waynesboro, was named a vice president, and Chauncey Lever, of Jesup, secretary-treasurer.

Representing Statesboro at the meeting in Brunswick were Alfred Dorman, Mr. Brunson, J. L. Renfro, Harry Cone, Horace McDougald, Fred W. Hodges, Walter Aldred and C. B. McAllister.

The Statesboro Chamber of Commerce has been putting some $200 a year in the promotion of U.S. 25. This year this was upped to $510. The advertising will promote the route on up to Detroit and Bay City, Michigan.

U.S. 25 terminates, as far as advertising and markers are concerned, about four miles north of Brunswick. Mr. Dorman suggested that Brunswick, with its resort attractions, should take part in the promotion program "telling tourist of the attractive points on the route." Brunswick agreed and is now interested in the association.

Jaycees Ask For Street Numbers

A committee of Jaycees presented a uniform system of numbering the homes in Statesboro to the city council at their meeting Tuesday morning of this week.

G. M. Curry, A. B. Anderson, Inman Dekle and Emory Ellen, members of the committee, made a survey of the city and together with James Bland, city engineer, they mapped out a system of numbering which they proposed the council adopt.

According to Mr. Curry, chairman of the committee, the traffic light will be the "zero" point. The numbering would begin there. In the business section, the first floor offices and businesses would carry the whole number and the upstairs offices would carry one-half numbers. The first part of the numeral would indicate the block with the other numerals indicate the position in the block.

Homes centered on two building lots would be assigned a number by the city engineer.

The system makes allowances for dead-end streets, and isolated sections. It provides for a maximum of uniformity, to make it easy for persons to find home and business locations.

In presenting the proposed plan to the city fathers, Mr. Curry called attention to the publication date of the city telephone directory suggesting that early action would assure the new directory having the homes and business under the new system.

It is estimated that the project could be completed in two to three months with two people doing all the work.

T.C. Begins Classes Fri.

Georgia Teachers College will open the 1949-1950 session with organization of classes tomorrow and a chapel assembly at 10 a.m. Monday.

The vanguard of an expected student body of 750 arrived on Monday for Freshman Week. Freshmen registered on Wednesday and upper-classmen were registering today.

More than 100,000 has been spent in plant improvements, including renovations for the administration building and the gymnasium during the past several months.

Nine faculty members have been added to take care of the increasing enrollment. Dr. Zach S. Henderson, announced, "Twelve others will fill vacancies."

Staff appointments not previously announced include: Dr. Joseph Baylen, from the University of New Mexico, as associate professor of history; Hugh Caldwell, of Atlanta, assistant professor of physics; science; Taylor Scott, assistant professor of social sciences; Alyce Aaron, S. D. Duncan, assistant professor of modern foreign languages; Dorothy Hillard, assistant professor of health and physical education; Edgar Godfrey, assistant professor of industrial arts.

Edna Luke, assistant professor of music; Sally Smith, library cataloger; James W. Gunter, assistant to controller; Mrs. Julia Allen, secretary to controller; Mrs. Anne Henderson, secretary to the director of extension; Thomas Hill, teacher of science in the Lab High School; Sam Peden, teacher in health and physical education in the Lab High School; Maggie Vann Dows, teacher of commerce in the Lab High School; and Mrs. Mary Nell Forehand Dixon, teacher of the first grade in the Lab Elementary School.

Those who have volunteered their services to assist in the operation of the center were given a full day's schooling here this week. They were given a special orientation to their duties, which will consist of non-technical tasks during the visit of the mobile unit from Savannah. These will include the reception of donors at the center, their registration, the serving of light refreshments in the canteen and helping with clerical work. Forty women took the training given this week.

Donors have been advised of the first visit of the bloodmobile, which is September 27 by a double postcard. Al Southern, chairman of the Recruitment Committee, urges all who have received cards to return them at once.

ALFRED DORMAN SHOWS FOOD DISTRIBUTION

Alfred Dorman in a brief talk to the members of the Statesboro Rotary Club Monday, told them that the business of packing and distribution of foods involves the greatest number of people than any other business except farming.

He presented a film showing all the steps from the producer to the consumer.

Homemakers Learn To Make Lampshades Here Sept. 19-24

Homemaking teachers and homemakers of this district met here September 19-24 with Mrs. Mae Matheson West, instructor of decorative arts, from Atlanta, for courses in making lampshades for home decoration.

The classes were held in the Statesboro High School. Homemaking teachers attending the classes were Mrs. G. M. Curry, Mrs. Jane Cox, Mrs. Ida Hinton, Mrs. Elmer Webb, Mrs. Lila Parrish, Miss Dorothy Denton, and Miss Della Jernigan of Bulloch county; Miss Barbara Hambrick and Lillian Bird, Swainsboro; Mrs. Lillian Phillips, Soper; Mrs. Claudia Carter, Pembroke, and Mrs. Virginia Volf, Newington.

The homemakers who attended the course were Mrs. Paul Edmfield, Mrs. Pete Kitchens and Mrs. Lamar Rowland of Port; Mrs. Claude Smith and Mrs. William Smith of West Side; Mrs. Arthur Riggs from Register; Mrs. Ed Prentiss, Mrs. Forest Bance and Mrs. Ivy Wynn from Statesboro.

Many materials were used in shaping and making the lamp shades.

Stilson Home Club Wins Blue Ribbon At '49 Fair

A complete story of how to grow plenty of fruit for a family, the many kinds of fruit that can be produced, including citrus fruit, the care of fruit trees, and how to use the fruit produced, was told by the member of the Stilson Home Demonstration Club with such cleverness that the judges declared it the first prize winner at the 1949 County Fair now in progress at the airport.

The Register club was a close second with a "Child Development and Family Relationship" exhibit. It consisted of a complete modern home and community built on a miniature scale.

Miss Charlotte Ketchum, Georgia Power Company home economist, Mrs. J. B. Smith, Mississippi State home economist, and Mrs. Reppard DeLoach, former Georgia Power home economist, were the judges.

Honorable mention went to the Jimps club with its poultry display, to Leafield on its school story, East Side Woman's Club on its dairying exhibit, Warnock on nutrition and food preparation, West Side on landscaping, Middle Ground on gardening, New Castle on 4-H Club work, Arcola on handicraft, Nevila on library, Poplar Springs on clothing, Denmark on home improvement, and Ogeechee on marketing.

With a complete community agricultural story told in miniature the Willow Hill School won top honors in the Negro community exhibit. Pope's Academy was declared second prize winner. Honorable mention went to William James High School, New Sandridge, Brooklet Junior High School, St. Paul, and New Hope.

$1,100 in prize money was distributed among the exhibitors. The fair continues through this week.

PCA To Distribute $12,000 Sept. 27

The Producers Cooperative Association will distribute some $12,000 in patronage dividends at its annual meeting Tuesday, September 27, at the southside at 9 p.m., according to Thomas Rushing, president of the organization.

Mr. Rushing's term as a director in the PCA expires, together with the terms of W. H. Smith and C. Hodges. An election to fill these vacancies will be held.

Other directors are L. J. Hollaway, E. L. Womack, John N. Rushing, and W. L. Zetterower Jr.

Legion Auxiliary Names Mrs. DeWitte Thackston President

Mrs. DeWitte Thackston was elected president of the American Legion Auxiliary at its regular meeting Tuesday night.

Other officers are Mrs. Julian Hodges, first vice president; Mrs. D. L. Davis, second vice president; Mrs. Homer Melton, treasurer; Mrs. Huguette A. Rundel, historian, and Miss Mattie Lively, chaplain.

Howard Christian, delegate to the national convention of the American Legion held in Philadelphia the latter part of August, talked to the members of the auxiliary.

Meeting date of the group is changed to the first Thursday of each month at one o'clock to be held at the Norrish Hotel.

A membership drive is now being conducted. Prospective members may contact Mrs. D. L. Davis or Mrs. Thackston.

JACK MARTIN TO REPRESENT HANCOCK MUTUAL WITH HEADQUARTERS HERE

Mr. W. M. Newton, of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company, Farm Loan division, announced this week that Mr. Jack Martin has moved to Statesboro and will make his home here.

Mr. Martin is field representative for the company and will cover 15 counties in southeast Georgia. He came here from Lyons.

performance at 8:15 on October 6. Matinee prices are children, 25 cents; high school and college students, 40 cents; adults, 60 cents. The evening performance admission will be children 35 cents, high school and college students 50 cents, and adults 75 cents.

THE STATESBORO SENIOR Womens Club held their regular meeting at the Community last Thursday, September 15. Miss Ann Johnson of the American Red Cross, talked on "Toward Better Health." A movie was shown by Mrs. Henry McCormack on the Blood Bank program. Mr. Al Sutherland, chairman of the Bulloch County Bank drive, appealed to the club members to cooperate in the program. The club is sponsoring the blood donor booth.

First Rule For Picnics

First rule for picnic meals is to remember that they do not have to be expensive, indigestible or difficult to prepare. They should, and can, provide all the protective foods needed by everyone in the family.

Herald Presents A New Kind Of Ad In 'Capsules'

This week the Herald presents a new kind of advertising. We call it "Capsule Advertising" because it comes in small doses—52 "capsules" over a 52-week period.

On the inside back page under the heading, "Be a Good Neighbor—Trade at Home," are many short messages of business firms in Statesboro—told briefly and to the point... classified alphabetically.

Each week the page will change to keep it attractive and readable. Investigation will reveal that it is the year's best advertising bargain. We'll be seeing you about yours soon!

INVEST IN U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

A Unique Display

Among the advertisements in this week's Herald is one that merits more than just a casual glance.

Albert Braswell, of the A. M. Braswell Jr. Food Company, is advertising a display of pickles and preserves at the Oliff and Smith Grocery Company. He is asking the citizens of this community to visit the display.

We are selecting this advertisement for special attention, for we believe it holds special significance to this community.

The display is simple, but unique because it is of Bulloch county, in Bulloch county, by Bulloch countians—it is of Georgia, by Georgians, for Georgians.

And there you have a pillar for a firm foundation for the future of Bulloch county and Statesboro!

There in the display are many jars of watermelon rind pickles and preserves. You can think of anything more Bulloch county and Georgia than watermelon rind pickles and preserves—pear preserves, artichoke relish, Grown, processed, canned, and packaged in Statesboro, Bulloch County, Georgia.

Young Braswell has been fighting the difficulties of financing, production, and distribution of these Bulloch County, Georgia products since he began operation just after the war.

Now these products of Bulloch County, Georgia are finding their way into many states in all sections of the country—Connecticut, Iowa, Idaho, South Carolina, North Carolina . . .

A famous gift packaging company is putting some of these pickles and preserves, together with bottles of L. J. Shuman's Sauce, in a gift box.

All this means money to the farmers of this community.

And that means better standards of living. More contented homes. Better people.

And a better community.

Summer Forecast

Regardless of what our almanac says about the weather in Georgia next summer we can write the forecast now.

Hot—not as a fire popper!

For you see—it's election time next summer. And if things work out, the men-folk are going to find something new added to their election.

And it is going to be hot—not as a fire popper.

For there may be a lady a-running for the Governorship of Georgia!

If Mrs. Pat Hungerford of Gray, Ga., becomes a candidate for the number one spot in Georgia's historic capitol then we'll see a new kind of campaign.

Mrs. Hungerford is county commissioner of Jones county, having defeated eleven men and the office. And a lot of her friends—men and women—think she would make an excellent governor—or would it be governor or governor?

She's for the Minimum Foundation Program for Education—she has two children, 9 and 7.

She won the reputation of being a "terrific campaigner" in her race for the county commissioner's race, using for her slogan, "The men kiss the babies. I change their diapers."

That'll win a lot of votes in any election.

Yes, sir, next summer's going to be hot—not as a fire popper!

Opportunity for the Legion

(The Sunday Bulletin, Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 28)

William Penn duffs his hat this week to the national convention of the American Legion for the second time since the organization was founded after World War I.

National Commander Perry Brown assures us that the venerable gentleman need not fear that someone will snatch his hat and make off with it as a souvenir. Legionnaires in convention have seemed at times to go overboard on fun-making. But Mr. Brown feels that day has passed; the Spirit of '76 Jima is replacing the boisterousness expressed by the unending verses of the Hinky Dinky Par-ry-ous stand-by, so dear to World War I vets.

If so, it is in keeping with the mood of the nation as a whole, which today takes a much more sober and sensible view of its world responsibilities than it did after the earlier conflict.

For the first time, veterans of the last war are expected to move to the forefront in Legion affairs. Theirs will be a responsibility not to be lightly discharged.

In Philadelphia, the Legion can find inspiration helpful in meeting America's task of world leadership. Here the Founding Fathers earnestly labored to bring forth a decent society in which they and their descendants could wax strong under God-given liberty. Echoes of their words are to be heard in halls still existing in this old city; their footsteps are quite audible.

Too often what these men represented is today translated into staidism and conservatism; their names are evoked in protest when some fresh proposal is made that appears to be even a slight deviation from their finished product. The meeting here gives the new Legion officials an opportunity to go a little deeper into the wisdom of those Founding Fathers and learn that they were neither going backward nor standing still; they were moving forward.

Register Before Spring

Bulloch countians, who were waiting for the Georgia Supreme Court to declare the Re-Registration Law unconstitutional, may now relax. Decision of the Court, upholding the constitutionality of the re-registration act of 1949, is conclusive for the measurable future. No action in federal court would be likely to have any effectiveness before the 1950 primaries and elections.

So it is now right and proper that all Bulloch countians and Georgians should register as soon as possible.

Do it now and avoid the rush before the deadline next May.

By doing so you protect your right to vote for or against whom you please.

Go to the Fair

Been to the Fair yet?

You have tonight, tomorrow, and Saturday in which to visit the Bulloch County Fair.

And today is School Day for the white school children—admittance is free.

Tomorrow (Friday) is School Day for the Negro school children—admittance is free.

A trip to the County Fair is an excursion into your memories when you were a kid and the rides and the sidewalks and the crowds, and the exhibits filled you with keen excitement and tingling pleasure.

A trip to the County Fair for your children is an excursion into the land of make-believe, in which the merry-go-round becomes a big ranch with the rider riding the open range, or a race track with "Junior" upon the champion horse . . . the ferris wheel becomes an atomic rocket with "Junior" the commander of the huge space ship . . . the sidewalks become lands of mystery filled with strange creatures . . . the midway stands become bazaars in far-away lands where exotic wares are sold at fabulous prices.

Then there are the exhibits showing Bulloch county at its best—Bulloch county on parade. Go to the County Fair—it'll be good for you. Men kiss the babies. I change their diapers."

That'll win a lot of votes in any election.

Yes, sir, next summer's going to be hot—not as a fire popper!

"Laff It Off"

A "home-talent" play entitled, "Laff It Off," was presented in Metter on Thursday and Friday of last week. In the September 15 issue of the Metter Advertiser there was a full page of advertising carrying the messages of 13 advertisers, including four business firms and two professional men in Statesboro.

"Laff It Off" is a traveling stage show usually sponsored by a civic club. It has been making a big profit in some towns. However, most of the profit accrues from co-op advertising and goes to the "professional director" of the play and not to the sponsoring civic club or organization, nor the newspaper carrying the advertising.

The "director" is usually a lady, who comes into the town as advance agent, sells the advertising to local merchants at exorbitant rates, and then pays the newspaper its regular rate, keeping the difference.

Now we know there is nothing illegal about this enterprise, but we would be unfair to the merchants of Statesboro if we did not caution them that co-op advertising arranged by any person not connected with the newspaper can be productive of ill-feeling—especially when the rates are doubled or even trebled for the local merchants.

That's something you can't "Laff Off."

"May God Bless You"

" . . . We'll never be able to thank the good people enough who helped make Barbara June well and normal. It's just wonderful to see the change in her since the operation."

"May the Lord bless each and every one." And it's signed simply, "Josh and Louise." And so by the Grace of God, by the skill of the surgeon and by the tender hearts of the people of this section a child is saved to grow into a useful citizen among us.

Exactness in little duties is a wonderful source of cheerfulness.

"Thankfulness is the tune of angels."

We go in the grave of a friend saying, "A man is dead," but angels throng about him saying, "A man is born."

The bread earned by the sweat of the brow is thrice blessed bread, and is far sweeter than the tasteless loaf of idleness.

In this world the inclination to do things is of more importance than the more power.

A Verse for This Week

O! Verse divine, and Life of all,
The Point of Being's fearful sea,
Which would every heart assail,
That say not love supreme in Thee.
—J. STERLING.

September Sorrow

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

One day last week we steered our hearts three times within a three-hour period . . . and she would have interrupted them at their work.

So we said, "Please don't bother them."

Then about two hours later a man came in without hands. His arms were just stubs, extending about five or six inches below his platform.

We'll give a small bit, if only to save our consciences.

But on Tuesday of last week we got the feeling that some of these people are making a "racket" of their handicapped condition.

There was the blind man. He seemed strong in body . . . he was a big man. He and his wife came into our office without stumbling . . . he found his way on into the backshop, which is a maze of printing presses, composing stones, paper cutter, and miscellaneous machinery necessary to put together a newspaper.

He didn't give him anything. We felt pretty bad when we simply said, "We're sorry."

Then thirty minutes later a Negro woman came in. She was soliciting funds for a Negro orphanage somewhere. We have contributed to her fund several times. She comes in equipped for the work. There is a leather-bound folder with a cellophane cover . . . there is a notebook with names of people who have made contributions.

This time we turned on the ice water through our heart and said, "We're sorry."

She wanted to go in the backshop where our Intertype operator and pressmen were at work. We knew they did not have money to give . . . and she would have interrupted them at their work.

So we said, "Please don't bother them."

He didn't give him anything. We felt pretty bad when we simply said, "We're sorry."

Then thirty minutes later a Negro woman came in. She was soliciting funds for a Negro orphanage somewhere. We have contributed to her fund several times. She comes in equipped for the work. There is a leather-bound folder with a cellophane cover . . . there is a notebook with names of people who have made contributions.

This time we turned on the ice water through our heart and said, "We're sorry."

She wanted to go in the backshop where our Intertype operator and pressmen were at work. We knew they did not have money to give . . . and she would have interrupted them at their work.

So we said, "Please don't bother them."

Then about two hours later a man came in without hands. His arms were just stubs, extending about five or six inches below his platform.

We'll give a small bit, if only to save our consciences.

But on Tuesday of last week we got the feeling that some of these people are making a "racket" of their handicapped condition.

There was the blind man. He seemed strong in body . . . he was a big man. He and his wife came into our office without stumbling . . . he found his way on into the backshop, which is a maze of printing presses, composing stones, paper cutter, and miscellaneous machinery necessary to put together a newspaper.

He didn't give him anything. We felt pretty bad when we simply said, "We're sorry."

FAIR WEATHER

Your Bulloch Herald announced last week in its news column that women were going to run the 1949 Bulloch County Fair, and that the fair would be different.

Good for Bulloch county! Hurrah for the ladies! More power to the powers that be! Ellis and Beth and I wish we were there. We thought the fair last year was wonderful, but Mr. Hudson Allen, president of the Fair Association, said in print that this year's educational displays would be the best ever used locally, and that each community would feature selected products of the county's agricultural and home life, in what the planners call a "balanced" fair. Fifteen Home Demonstration Clubs and all 4-H Clubs are to cooperate, and here's the angle that explains the expected excellence of this forthcoming event; the women of Bulloch county started in April preparing their exhibits.

Women realize that nothing can be done in no time. Most of them learned this the hard way by trying to work in just two or three more last minute jobs while preparing for important company.

You've seen housewives fly around like chickens with their heads off and heard them say as they tore through the rooms at a dead gallop. "It won't take me a minute to put out a batch of rolls, then they can rise while I wash my hair and grab a quick shower and slap a tray of ice cream into the refrigerator and whip up some mayonnaise and rub out little sister's blue silk breeches and dash off notes to the milk man and egg man so they'll be sure to leave double orders if they come while I'm downtown picking up the laundry and buying candles and getting those cute little petticoats I ordered at the bakery!"

Or when the family gets ready to go on a trip, and the house has to be shut up, and a million emergencies arise in the last hour.

No responsible woman is married long before she learns that it isn't George who does it. George may, of course, check up on his fishing tackle, hunt frantically for his old corduroy shirt and polish his golf clubs, and foot the bill for whatever expense the trip entails, but when it comes to meeting the hazards of final preparation, it is the lady of the house who pays and pays.

Sometimes it hardly seems worth the price.

Even when the refrigerator has been defrosted well in advance, and every scrap of clothing cleaned and pressed or washed and ironed and neatly piled into suitcases, there's still the closing of windows, the sprinkling of insect powder at any door where varmints might seek entrance, the writing of notes to the milk man, egg man, and paper boy, and the feverish packing of your own toilet articles, not to mention the last-minute scrubbing, combing and dressing of your angel child, who would be sending like a waif of the city streets or a straggler from the backwoods, if you'd gotten her ready too long before the cranking up of the engine.

Then, with all your efforts at good management and all your rushing about, you're apt to be seated beside the driver, tired but

PETITION FOR INCORPORATION
To the Superior Court Of Said County:
The petition of Raymond Summerlin, H. Lehman Franklin, Paul G. Franklin Jr., Ray Bliss, Josiah Zetterower, Kermit Carr, Hunter M. Robertson, Cohen Anderson, and Sam E. Strauss, all of the City of Statesboro, County and State aforesaid, respectfully shew as follows, to-wit:
1. Petitioners desire for themselves, their associates and successors to be and become incorporated as a body politic under the laws of the State of Georgia, under the name and style of "Statesboro Lodge No. 1788, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America."
2. The object of the proposed corporation is not for the purpose of pecuniary profit or gain to the incorporators, but solely to promote the welfare and happiness of its members; to care for the sick, to bury the dead and give such aid of a charitable nature as may be warranted by its laws and good will, and for this purpose, to purchase, hold, own and sell real and personal property, to receive gifts and donations; to lease, mortgage and dispose of its property; to borrow money and convey its property as security therefor, to issue bonds and secure the same by mortgages of deeds to secure debt on its real estate and to generally do and perform all acts and things as may be necessary and needful to carry out the objects and purposes of this corporation.
3. The Plaintiff of residence and the principal office of the proposed corporation shall be in the City of Statesboro, Bulloch County, Georgia.
4. Petitioners desire all of the rights and privileges of a corporation to corporations of like kind under the laws of the State of Georgia, including the right to have and use a common seal, to make by-laws for the regulation of its membership, to provide for a Board of Directors consisting of three members in good standing as defined by the general laws of said Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America, who shall be denominated Trustees, and to provide for the succession of said Trustees from year to year.
5. Said corporation being organized purely for fraternal, social, charitable and educational purposes and not for pecuniary profit or gain, will have no capital stock.
6. The term for which petitioners ask to be incorporated is fifty years, with the privilege of renewal at the expiration of that period.
Wherefore, petitioners pray to be incorporated under the name and style aforesaid with the powers, privileges and immunities herein set forth, and as are now,

Cong. Preston Talks To Register Farm Group

Farmers must organize and build their organization as strong as any other group, Congressman Prince H. Preston warned the some 300 people attending the ladies' night program at Register on Thursday.

Farmers started working here in the United States on an individual basis and many still think they can get by without regard to the other fellows or the other groups. This day has past, Mr. Preston thinks, and farmers must work together to see that their interest is looked out for. He gave numerous illustrations of the Farm Bureau's efforts in checking legislation that effected farmers directly and indirectly and then the organization proceeded to have amendments made that would keep such legislation from hurting the members of the Farm Bureau.

In the recent move to pass the Brannan bill, a permanent farm program that most farmers districted to because it was unsound, the Farm Bureau proved to be more powerful in Congress than the secretary of agriculture or the administration and had the program killed. Congress at Preston stated that it was becoming more important every year to have a strong Farm Bureau.

R. P. Mikell, Bulloch county president, reported to the Register group that all the chapters in the county were now renewed their membership and made a strong plea for an increase in 1950. He stated that all six of the Negro chapters held a meeting Monday night and started their drive to get some 600 members this year. Cecil Kennedy, Register president, stated that membership cards had been given to each of the 12 serving committee chairmen and that they were expected to renew all their members by next meeting.

GOECHEE FB HEAR SOIL CONSERVATIONISTS
E. D. Shaw, president of the Goechee chapter, gave the serving chairmen cards for their members at the Tuesday night meeting of that group. Many of these were renewed that night and others were to be contacted immediately. Jack Storey, district conservationist, and Roy Kelley, county conservationist, discussed soil conservation week with the secretary of agriculture or the administration and had the program killed. Congress at Preston stated that it was becoming more important every year to have a strong Farm Bureau.

WARNOCK FB GET MEMBERSHIP CARDS
J. I. Wynn, president at Warnock, gave membership cards to that group. Wynn stated that he made plans to bring those renewed in by their October meeting. There were quite a few renewed at the meeting. Mr. Mikell predicted that more than 1,000 members had already been renewed in the county.

So, if you're a woman, you learn to do most of hour-hustling ahead of time - to turn off every job that can possibly be turned off before the big push starts.

Women know the importance and aggravation of details. It's never the big snaky tasks that set a person wild - it's the seeming trifles that bob up when you think you have everything done.

So these smart Bulloch county women started in April to have the fair in this golden week of September.
