Junior All-Stars Whip Register

On Saturday afternoon of last week the Junior All Stars defeated the Register Junior All Stars 12 to 5. Max Roberts was on the mound for the local All Stars. The infield consisted of J. T. Taylor, excellent support. On May 20 the local Juniors will go to Savannah to play the Savannah Panthers.

In the Junior League the Bull Dogs downed the Pilots 22 to 16. Freeman pitching for the Bull Dogs and Franklin was on the mound for the Pilots. The Bull Dogs also defeated the Red Caps in an earlier game with the score 14 to 3. Paul Waters was the winning pitcher, and Stockdale was the losing pitcher.

Navy Opens Rates For Enlistments

With the Navy's opening of enlistments in more than 30 rates and adjusted physical requirements, a regular Navy recruiter will be in Statesboro each week.

The recruiter also said physical requirements for enlistment are not as rigid as they were and that the Navy is now looking for men who are not expected to improve their standing in a three-day test to North Georgia last week. The record on departure was seven victories and eight defeats.

Injuries to key players, academical obligations preventing travel by class and lack of funds have hampered the team to the point that it had to struggle to keep its record of its wins with its efforts. Workmen failed to have a new college park ready, and games have been played six miles away at Pilots Field before the smallest gatherings anyone here can remember. Decline in attendance is attributed partly to a lighter and less interesting schedule than the Teachers had played since the war.

Jim Tootle of Alamo and Glenview, early touted as the mainstay of the pitching staff, has been injured by a pitch and probably will not be for some time because of a pinched shoulder nerve. Batting also has been poor. The pool will be opened and supervised from 2 to 6 P. M. daily except Sunday. Mothers with children 8 years of age are asked to take advantage of this opportunity for their children to swim free.

The Women's Medical Service Corps is composed of female officers trained as dietitians, occupational therapists, or physical therapists.

Teachers College Nine's Fast Start Has Slowed Down to a Slow Trot

What promised to be one of the most successful baseball seasons at Teachers College will end this week as possibly one of the worst.

While the Professor Nine could never respect in games here with Newberry College Monday night and with Piedmont College this Friday and Saturday afternoon, the team was not expected to improve their standing in a three-day test to North Georgia last week. The record on departure was seven victories and eight defeats.

Injuries to key players, academical obligations preventing travel by class and lack of funds have hampered the team to the point that it had to struggle to keep its record of its wins with its efforts. Workmen failed to have a new college park ready, and games have been played six miles away at Pilots Field before the smallest gatherings anyone here can remember. Max Lockwood, superintendent of the Statesboro Department of Recreation announced this week that the wading pool at the Community Center will open Tuesday afternoon, May 16, instead of Tuesday May 9, as announced in the "Youth" column in the Herald.

The pool will be opened and supervised from 2 to 6 P. M. daily except Sunday. Mothers with children 8 years of age are asked to take advantage of this opportunity for their children to swim free.

Rotarians Hear Foreign Students

Rotarians were given a lesson in international relations recently when Dr. M. S. Pittman presented a young lady from Seoul, Korea, who is doing her practice teaching at Metter. She related briefly the story of her homeland, of the strife between the Russian controlled section and the U.S. controlled section.

Albin Eber will complete his work at Teachers College in July. His expenses while here have been shared by the Statesboro Rotary Club and a special Rotary fund. He appeared on the program at the district meeting of Rotary held in Macon last week. Representatives from the Statesboro Club were Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Groover, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Dorman, R. J. Kennedy Jr. and Hans Brossman, of Urm, Germany, made a brief statement in which he likened personal contact and friendship, mutual understanding and information and education to the three principal ingredients which make up concrete—cement, sand, and steel—with which to build the foundations of a great "bridge" joining the United States and Germany.

Gerd Matthecks, of Stuttgart, Germany, told of the 276 foreign students now in Georgia, of which 88 are sponsored by Georgia Rotarians. He saw their visit here to attend school as a form of international relations developed by personal friendships, which contrasted with the international relations carried on by diplomacy. He related several of his personal experiences upon which he said he had formed friendships stronger than those he had formed in Germany.

The Statesboro branch of the American Association of University Women will meet for its annual banquet and installation of officers on Tuesday evening, May 16, at the Forest Heights Country Club. The guest speaker for the evening will be Dr. Melva Lind, Higher Education Association, A. A. U. W. Headquarters staff, who is on tour from national headquarters and who comes here from Columbia, S. C.

Dr. Lind is on leave from Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass., where she was assistant professor of French, and head of the French House. Her interest is educational psychology. After serving her B. S. degree from the University of the University of Lyons, in France, and received a degree of Doctor of the University of Paris at Sorbonne in 1929.

Dr. Lind is an accomplished concert singer, holding a degree of Master of Music from the McPherson School of Music, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Dr. Lind is an associate editor of pedagogical articles for the French Review.

3 Candidates Answer League Women Voters' Political Questionnaire

During the first week in May the Bulloch County League of Women Voters mailed a questionnaire to each of the candidates seeking election to public office in the June 28 primary.

On April 20 the League published the five questions the candidates were asked. The League stated that the organization has been asking candidates such questions before each election, to help spotlight and clarify issues.

This week the answers are in. Here are the five questions asked in the questionnaire, and the answers given by each candidate:

1. (a) Since the primary in Georgia is equivalent to election, will you work to tighten the legal controls safeguarding those elections?

EVERETT WILLIAMS—"Yes. As an attorney, I feel that the election laws must be strengthened to encourage fair and legal elections in Georgia. I feel that the courts and not any committee should have the final word over the conduct of our elections."

BONNIE MORRIS—"Yes. I believe the new registration law when and if ever compiled should be a permanent law, and that it can be kept up-to-date with a minimum of work and expense."

Where Is The Interest?

ON WEDNESDAY afternoon of last week citizens of Statesboro were offered the opportunity to visit the house of learning in which their children spend the greater portion of their waking hours and to meet the people who wield the greater degree of influence over their formative years.

And only a few more than one hundred accepted the opportunity. Only these few of the parents of 824 children manifested enough interest to drive, walk or take a taxi to the Statesboro High School to visit the $100,000 addition to the city's school plant during "Open House."

The Annex was open for inspection. The renovated auditorium and lunch room, the up-to-date heating system, were in spit and polish condition. The high school faculty, the superintendent of the school, were on "ready" to receive the patrons of the school. Guides, members of the student body, were standing by to "point with pride."

And a few over one hundred came to see. And a lot of punch and a mess of cookies went to waste.

Where is the interest in our schools? Is it reserved for the seven weeks of the football season when the Blue Devils, if they have a winning team—draw several hundreds of the citizens?

Is it reserved for Commencement when relatives of graduates gather to view, with pride their son, daughter, niece, nephew, cousins, and to hear an inspirational address by some outstanding Georgian selected to attract our citizens?

Statesboro has a school plant of which we can be proud. True it is not near what the community deserves. The Grammar School building is a half-century old. The original section of the High School building is over a quarter-century old. But still it's a good plant.

Good enough for the next five years, that is. And a school, like other community institutions, is only as good as the citizens who provide it, and who take an interest in it.

Wednesday of last week saw a sorry display of community spirit in the one institution deserving the greatest concern. Could be parents such a graphic word picture that they did not need visit the school. Could be.

Our Negro Schools

THIS WEEK we begin a series of articles on a subject we know to be explosive.

We do it fully realizing the controversial nature of our subject, but we feel that the citizens of this county should be given the facts as found.

We shall report them as objectively and as faithfully as is possible.

Last week we visited five of the negro schools in Bulloch County. This week we intend to visit others, and next week there will be others until we have investigated as many as will reveal the true picture of the condition of these schools in our county.

We intend to report our findings as simply as words will allow. We shall not allow our personal feelings nor opinions to creep into our reporting.

And when we have finished with this series of articles on the negro schools of Bulloch County, we intend to begin a second series on the white schools of the county, using the same methods in our investigations and reporting.

The first of the series, in this issue of the Herald gives the overall picture of the present school buildings and equipment. Then will follow articles on the individual school buildings and conditions.

Don't Forget—May 26

DON'T FORGET—Friday, May 26 is Opportunity Day in Bulloch County.

The 305 purebred Hereford cattle which have been in Bulloch county since last Friday are making themselves "at home" in this community, awaiting to be given a permanent home.

And the farmers of this community and section will be contributing to the greatest asset of this county—the development of the livestock industry—when they succeed in securing some of these purebred stock.

So don't forget—May 26, 11 a. m. sharp, at the Statesboro Livestock Commission Company yards—the auctioning of this cattle begins.

And to citizens of this community who are interested in its development—you will be delighted to see these going on. Go out and see these blue-blooded animals being bought by your neighbors.

A Great Mother Honored

She's a great woman.

And a great mother.

And she was honored as Georgia's "Mother of the Year" in special ceremonies at her home in Winder on Thursday of last week.

High-ranking State and civic officials gathered in that small Georgia community and paid tribute to Mrs. Richard B. Russell, Sr., mother of 15 children, of whom 13 are living.

Governor Herman Talmadge presented her the Mother of the Year citation.

We are especially proud of the honor paid Mrs. Russell, for one of her sons, Dr. Fielding Russell, is a citizen of Statesboro.

Richard B. Russell, Jr., is a United States Senator, representing Georgia in our national congress.

We are proud of the honor paid her for all her sons and daughters, all of whom have distinguished themselves in many fields in this state.

And we congratulate her, Georgia's Mother of the Year.

The Coolest Spot in Town

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON Memorial Park Swimming Pool opened with big doings.

A Water Carnival, over which King Neptune ruled supreme, ushered in the 1950 swimming pool season for the kids of this community.

Younguns and olduns alike were delighted.

As part of the city's recreation program the swimming pool now holds the center of interest and provides the greatest outlet for the energies of the growing child.

Every year Statesboro should renew it's appreciation for the youth program as it is now conducted. It is without equal in the state and this community's almost complete lack of a juvenile delinquency problem may be credited to this city-wide program for our young people.

And if you, a parent of a growing boy or girl, have not yet invested in a season ticket for the pool, do so at once.

And you too, will find it fun to visit the pool, the coolest spot in town.

New Head for C. of Ga.

FOLLOWING the death of the Central of Georgia's Marion Wise, Merrell P. Callaway, the only Georgian at the head of any of the nation's major railroads, was made president.

The people of Statesboro are interested in this new president of the Central of Georgia. We are watching him to see what new advances the railroad will make under him.

It was just a short time ago that the Central put on the Nancy Hanks II, crack streamliner train between Savannah and Atlanta and it's stop at Dover serves us here in this community.

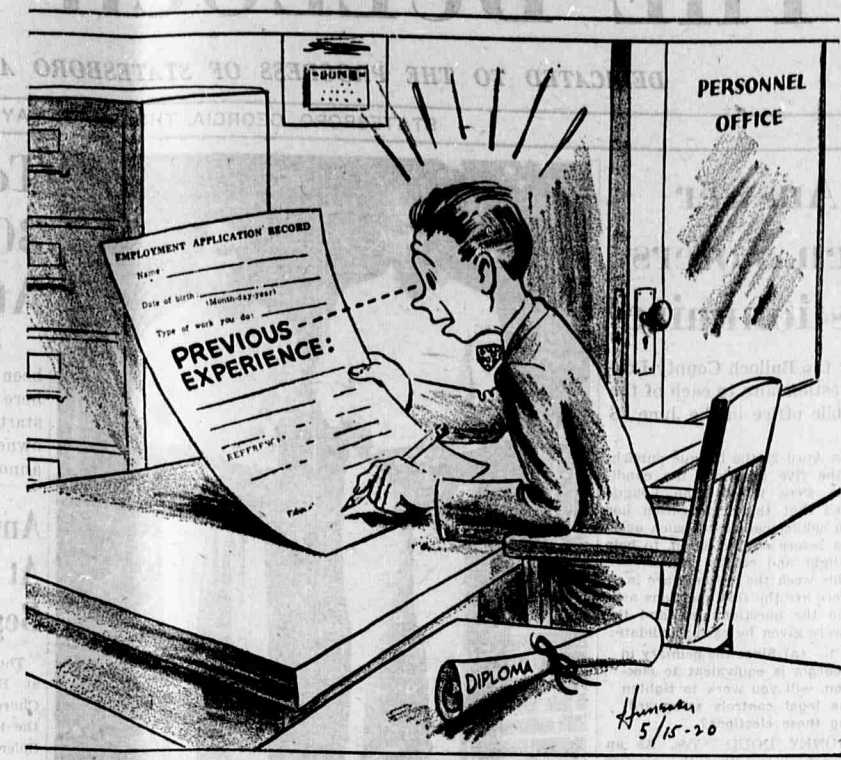

Then in July, 1948 business was surprised at the fine financial condition the railroad had worked itself into.

We here in this community must depend on our railroads and so it is with great interest that we will be watching the Central's new president, Merrell P. Callaway.

He has this community's best wishes.

The Real 'Commencement'

Editor's Uneasy Chair

Maybe we did the wrong thing. But it seemed right at the time. And then Jack Whelchel came along and planted the seeds of doubt in our mind.

Saturday we put out nearly 400 pounds of fertilizer on our lawn. The rains came and we kept the sprinker going so that the fertilizer would run deep and the roots of the grass would find the feeding eye.

Then late Saturday afternoon Jack came along and casually said, "Fixing to do a lot of moving, aren't you?" Just like that. On afternoons before we put out that fertilizer we would stretch out on our back yard terrace in the cool of the evening shade and visualize beautiful, lush green lawn, with the mock orange and the gardenia bushes and the altheas, all abloom so pretty. And so we vowed to fertilize the lawn—when we could get around to it.

Well we got around it last Saturday and now we cringe miserably over the physical effort it is going to take to keep the grass from growing into a South Pacific jungle.

Then when we opened our Atlanta Constitution Monday morning we found a glimmer of hope. For as Charlie Jackson, Methodist preacher here before John Lough, told a "Thanksgiving" audience gathered in the Presbyterian Church one year, "We're thankful for the big corporations and the scientists who are always thinking up things and making gadgets to make living so much easier for you and me."

According to Fred Ohman, the scientist must have known about us and our lawn, all fertilized, wet, and ready to grow lush and green, for they are working on a gizmo which will send out sound waves to be sprayed over our lawn so that their invisible power will trim off each blade of our Bermuda just right. We just sit there on our terrace, with a glass of cool lemonade in our hands, the tinkle of the ice musical accompaniment to the sound waves which cut out as we lightly touch the button and—well that's it—the lawn, back and front, mowed as neat as a pin.

THE ALMANAC SAYS THE WEATHER THIS WEEK—

BUT DON'T BLAME US IF THE ALMANAC IS WRONG!

ALL'S FAIR

Again the time has come to sing "Because" and "Thine Alone" For romance and roses go together like a dog and his bone. Lilies of the valley and veils of illusion, hasty shopping and inward confusion. Informal morning parties and elaborate teas keeps our young folks busy as a hive of bees. At the very first note of the Bridal Chorus we are all very still. There's a hush over the church as the bride says I will. It happens every year about this time.

For without June roses and lovely brides this old world of ours Would not be worth a dime.

Speaking of roses, we wish that you could have been with us when we made a tour of Dr. Dan and Lily Deal's garden at the rear of their home on South Main Street. Lily really works at it. Every morning she is out at daybreak weeding out and loosening the soil around choice plants.

We do not have space to mention all the species of plants we found in the garden but we sensed a sort of rhythm, or shall we say, an artistic pattern throughout. You follow Lily down narrow paths and flowers, reaching almost to your shoulder, touch you as you pass. At this particular season the Easter lilies predominated. The blooms are enormous and full-blown. In some particular spots we felt as if we were in a chapel. Other places the perfume of old fashioned roses took us back—way back.

We learned later that an old rose tree was responsible for that breath of yesterday. The rose tree is 20 years old and this year Lily says that it has produced a thousand roses. Out of curiosity one day she counted the petals on one huge rose and there were 102. Among other prize roses was Miranda, A New Yorker. She has a Lowell Thomas. As soon as the lovely Grace Moore memorial rose was available she bought one.

There are rows of larkspur and snapdragons. Yellow day lilies, Queen Anne's lace swaying lightly on the breeze. Her glads have been beautiful she says. There were yellow glads and we noticed a bed of chocolate colored ones bordered with maroon. Deep red amaryllis, hydrangeas and nandinas. We looked in the pool and got a glimpse of Dr. Deal's nineteen year old fish. He got around pretty well for his age—we're still referring to the fish. St. Johns River hyacinths and pink, yellow and white water lilies shade grandpas fish.

The sweetest rose bush has its third crop this season. Sitting out there on comfortable benches and chairs were neighbors and former neighbors, Jane Cote, Betty Bird Sanders, Elsie Oliver and her daughter, Anne, LeFleche and Merle Collins and their young son, Durden. Relaxation and beauty for us. Health, exercise and the sense of creation for Lily.

On our 8:45 to 9:00 a. m. spot on Station WWSN we have typed parts of this next story—it illustrates the results you get from a listening audience. The story follows: "You say you want to help a friend in need? Recently on a large network breakfast program a Southern Belle was having breakfast in response to the Emcee's invitation to write your name and address and state one of your wishes. Bonnie Fleming, sister of Essie Maye sent in a note like this: 'Don, will you please tell me where I can get some black-eyed peas. I love Chicago, but I can't stay here and go on eating without black-eyed peas.'"

Later during the broadcast Don called the winsome Mrs. Fleming to the mike and stated her problem publicly and Bonnie backed him up in an attractive Southern drawl. "Oh, Don, if yawl can only help me. I just love black-eyed peas. I think I'll die without 'em. The story goes on 'The telephone board upstairs 'blew wide open' that board had so many lights that

But there's something lacking in this method. Not that it's too easy. We just like the sound of a lawn mower—that is when someone else is furnishing the power.

A picture in Sunday's paper shows a man operating his mowing machine by remote controlled radio. He is working on a gizmo which will send out sound waves to be sprayed over our lawn so that their invisible power will trim off each blade of our Bermuda just right. We just sit there on our terrace, with a glass of cool lemonade in our hands, the tinkle of the ice musical accompaniment to the sound waves which cut out as we lightly touch the button and—well that's it—the lawn, back and front, mowed as neat as a pin.

With the continued trend of population from small counties to large," the pamphlet adds, "increasing numbers of voters are being disfranchised by the unit system. Each census shows about a third of our counties growing and more than a hundred shrinking."

Charging that the unit system concentrates political power in "county courthouse rings," the pamphlet states: "Whether votes are rural or urban is not the question. It is a fact that in the small counties there are fewer people and small numbers are easier to manipulate than large numbers."

There seems little reason to doubt that some counties can be bought and sold. One of the worst accusations is that some (political) leaders secure a proprietary position over and entire county and its population."

Defeat of the proposed constitutional amendment, and eventual repeal of the county unit system in the primary, the pamphlet declares, "are the only answer if Georgia is to make more honest elections possible and secure all eligible citizens an equal voice in their government."

The pamphlet, entitled "What Does Your Vote Weigh?", may be ordered from the League of Women Voters of Georgia, 220 Collier Building, Atlanta.

League of Women Voters Ask Defeat Of County Units

The League of Women Voters of Georgia in convention in Savannah last week called for defeat of the proposed constitutional amendment which would extend the county unit system to Georgia's general election. In a pamphlet released at the League's state convention in Savannah, the organization urged all citizens to "become alert to the danger of the vicious amendment which must be killed at the polls in November."

"The unit system is undemocratic," the pamphlet declares, "because it is government by land and not by men; it is immoral because it denies the basic equality of men; it creates waste, inefficiency and corruption because it relieves public officers of accountability to the people."

Not that it's too easy. We just like the sound of a lawn mower—that is when someone else is furnishing the power. A picture in Sunday's paper shows a man operating his mowing machine by remote controlled radio. He is working on a gizmo which will send out sound waves to be sprayed over our lawn so that their invisible power will trim off each blade of our Bermuda just right. We just sit there on our terrace, with a glass of cool lemonade in our hands, the tinkle of the ice musical accompaniment to the sound waves which cut out as we lightly touch the button and—well that's it—the lawn, back and front, mowed as neat as a pin.

As a result, the League points out, it is possible for 302 counties having only 26 percent of Georgia's population to carry an election with their total of 206 unit votes. In 1948 one vote in little Chattahoochee county had the weight of 122 in Fulton; one vote in Toombs had the weight of five in DeKalb; and one vote in Echols had the weight of six in Tift and 11 in DeKalb.

"With the continued trend of population from small counties to large," the pamphlet adds, "increasing numbers of voters are being disfranchised by the unit system. Each census shows about a third of our counties growing and more than a hundred shrinking."

Charging that the unit system concentrates political power in "county courthouse rings," the pamphlet states: "Whether votes are rural or urban is not the question. It is a fact that in the small counties there are fewer people and small numbers are easier to manipulate than large numbers."

Thousands Gather Here To Hear Gov. Talmadge

Delegations and motorcades from counties throughout south-east Georgia joined Bulloch county citizens to give Herman Talmadge a rousing reception here Saturday afternoon as the governor brought his reelection campaign into this section of the state. Speaking from a platform erected on the South steps of the Bulloch county courthouse, the governor reviewed his 17 month record before a packed courtyard and with people lining the sidewalks of the downtown business section. The crowd was orderly, despite hundreds of automobiles from out-of-town which packed every available parking lot and area. There was enthusiasm from the beginning of the program until the final sentence of the governor's address.

W. G. Neville acted as master of ceremonies, presenting first W. L. Huggins, Chairman of the Georgia state prison, who offered a prayer. Mayor J. Gilbert Cane of Statesboro welcomed the governor and visitors. Chairman of the Georgia Teachers College and that there were more buildings to come.

In discussing the highway program, the governor stated that his administration had built more rural post roads than any other administration in the history of the state. He stated he had doubled the appropriations for pensions, had added 30,000 beneficiaries to the welfare rolls, had raised the average pension, and that his administration began the rural hospital and health clinic program in their county, that a laboratory costing 21 millions had been started.

The governor talked of improvement at the State Hospital in Milledgeville and of the improvements at the State Penitentiary. He spent considerable time defending his administration on the state payroll. He stated that employees had been cut down in 17 departments of the state government and the additions had been made in education, welfare and the highway department. He shouted that he was not going to fire a single one of these and would add those added to the state rolls, nurses, dentists, and highway engineers to the payroll. He lashed out at his opposition for their criticism of those added to the state rolls, if elected, and stated that he was proud he had hired them.

On the subject of taxes, the governor stated that additional funds would be needed to carry on the improved programs of the state but he made it clear that he would not favor placing a tax on food and clothing until after all other means were exhausted.

The governor closed his address by referring to what he termed the two great issues, the preservation of the county unit system and the fight of the FEPC and fight for the preservation of the county unit system.

He told the people of Bulloch county that $65,000 had been added to the school equalization fund in their county, that a laboratory training school has been allotted to Georgia Teachers College and that there were more buildings to come.

JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET

Held at Country Club
Forest Heights Country Club was transformed into an old fashioned garden Thursday evening as the Juniors honored the Seniors at the traditional banquet marking the beginning of festivities concluding with the formal commencement exercises.

Each year the mothers of Juniors come up with colorful and original ideas. A garden party theme was carried out in decorations and favors. The class colors, red and white, and the class flower, red rose, fitted into the theme. A white trellis covered with rambling red roses marked the entrance to the ball room. Floor baskets filled with Easter lilies, Queen Anne's lace and red gladioli bordered the dance floor, while lovely arrangements of red gladioli, red roses and snapdragons were used on the long tables. Tables seating four were centered with white candles tied with red ribbons. Place cards were miniature white diplomas tied with red ribbons. Favors were miniature boxes of candy. For the boys there were small bottles of hair tonic, and miniature crocheted garden hats in pastel colors were presented to the girls.

Fifty-Five Students Brooklet News

In Register High Records 845 Books

Loretta Tucker Reads 74, A night's reading 64

The library of Register High School is one of the most popular places in the school. Every day, fifty-five students are busy at work, some reading a book or looking up some information, read the daily paper, or to select one of the many current magazines to read.

Mrs. Chas. A. Cates, English teacher of the 8th, 9th, and 11th grades has made a survey of the reading done outside of class time. The students completed this information recently and found that the 55 students in these 3 classes had read a total of 845 books this school term. That shows an average of about 15 books per pupil that have been reading solely for enjoyment. Reading tests show that these students who are doing a lot of outside reading have improved as much as ten years in their reading levels. Students feel that they have learned to "Read for the joy of reading."

In the eighth grade Hudson Temple is leading his class with a total of 25 books read. Jack Quick is second with 20 books read. In the ninth grade Loretta Tucker is far in the lead with 74 books read, and Annette Crumley follows her with 64. In the 11th grade Eugene Waters has read 14 books. Betty White is second with 13. All material read by students was approved material, with thought given to the individual student's reading level.

The grammar school students are also frequent visitors to the library. They average reading 4 to 6 books per pupil per month. Many new books have been added to Register Library this year. A professional shelf has been added for the teacher's use, and a small collection of adult fiction has been added for the community's use.

R. P. Mikell Explains to Farm Bureau Asked For Livestock Sanitary Bill

Why the Farm Bureau asked for the livestock sanitary bill during the last session of the legislature and the methods used in arriving at the need for such legislation was outlined last week at the Farm Bureau meetings.

R. P. Mikell, the county president, stated that the past two State Farm Bureau conventions as followed the recommendation of the livestock committee and adopted a resolution asking the state officers to try to procure a workable livestock sanitation bill.

The provisions included in the bill were asked for by livestock farmers.

Ogeechee featured a barbecue supper Tuesday night and discussed the possibility of entering a queen in the county contest.

Liberty Bell Will Be Here May 22

An exact duplicate of the Liberty Bell will be in Statesboro May 24 at 10 a.m., on the court house lawn, Kermit R. Carr, Independence Bond Drive chairman, announces.

These duplicate bells are touring the United States and will ring out a message of thrift from May 15 to July 4, and urge Americans to "save for your independence," Mr. Carr stated.

The full-scale copies of the historic shrine in Philadelphia have been donated by the copper industries of the nation.

Mayor J. Gilbert Cone will welcome visitors and the bell to Statesboro and C. B. McAllister, executive vice president of the Sea Island Bank, will discuss the need for investing in saving bonds today.

S. W. Lewis, Inc., will provide a truck for the speakers' platform Wednesday.

Mr. Carr thinks this is more than a bond drive. It is the revival of interest in historic America with an inspiring moral for today.

sent. Warnock also pledged to enter a queen in the contest.

The Sinkhole featured a covered dish supper and a discussion on boll weevil control methods as recommended by the experiment stations.

A motion picture on life in the Blue Ridge and Smoky mountains was a part of the Ogeechee and Sinkhole programs. Each of the groups discussed the use of propane gas in farm tractors; in addition to Mr. Mikell's discussion of the livestock board bill.
