Ga. Judges Urged To Apply Laws In Traffic Cases

Following close on Gov. Herman Talmadge's request to law enforcement officials to "clamp down" on traffic law violators, Chief Justice W. H. Dockworth, of the Georgia Supreme Court, has sent out letters to judges, ordinaries and traffic court officials throughout the state urging them to strictly apply the law in cases brought before them.

"Every year," Justice Dockworth wrote, "Georgia's traffic accident toll is ghastly—700 or 800 dead, over 25,000 injured, and more than $32-million cash loss. This constitutes one of the most serious threats to public order that I know, and places a heavy and sobering responsibility on the judiciary."

Pointing out that violations breed accidents, the chief justice said prompt, universal and fairly applied punishment of traffic violators invariably reduces accidents and saves lives. Another thought he said he would like to urge upon judges of the lower court was this:

"For every defendant appearing in the Supreme Court, literally thousands appear in courts such as yours. To them, the workings of your court exemplify the workings of the government under which they live, and for which some day they may be asked to lay down their lives. Such is the importance of dignity, fairness and true justice in your court.

"It is startlingly true that in this traffic situation the lives and welfare of thousands of Georgians are literally in your hands. I implore that you give your very best to your duty here, to save God's gracious gift of life for those who come before you, and for those who might cross their way. I envy you opportunity for real service to your fellowman; and wish you Godspeed in your mission to reduce violations, reduce accidents and save lives."

It Touches Them All

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY Statesboro young'uns with something to do during the summer . . .

Two hundred and fifty young'uns off the streets of Statesboro. . .

The completed report of Max Lockwood, superintendent of the Statesboro Recreation Department, reveals that participation in the city's recreation program has been wonderful.

A breakdown of the report shows that 173 boys played baseball in the three city leagues. Sixty-eight of the little bitty boys; 48 in the Junior League, the junior size boys; and 57 in the Senior League, the king-size boys. Forty girls were in the "Brownies," the little-bitty Girl Scouts; and 37 Girl Scouts, troop for the middle-size girls.

And so many members of the Knot Hole Club, Happy-Go-Lucky Club, and the Teen-Age Club that the superintendent and his assistants couldn't count them for his reports.

Now for some more figures: In the 1950 swimming program, 288 young'uns and 75 adults were given instruction in swimming, with emphasis on water safety and life-saving. They learned the technique of artificial respiration, what to do with themselves in the event of a boating disaster. They enjoyed picnics and movies in between times.

The teen-tiny folk in and around the wading pool, "hundreds" of them, according to the report.

And the wonderful part—not a single

For a Good Job

Get a Busy Man

FROM TIME to time we pay tribute in our editorial columns to citizens who do outstanding service for our community.

There is always one common factor which characterizes these citizens who do so much. They are busy people.

There's an oft-quoted maxim which goes like this: "To get something done, get a busy person to do it."

This week we mention Ike Minkovitz. His most recent service to the community is his acceptance of and reorganization of the Bulloch County Blood Bank program.

The success of his work on this new community assignment is attested to by the results obtained with the Bloodmobile was here July 17, at which time 109 pints of blood were collected, exceeding our quota of 100 pints.

His services to the community include directing campaigns to raise funds for the Bulloch County Boy Scouts; he was president of the Statesboro Chamber of Commerce before he entered the armed services in World War II. He has served as chairman, and on many committees organized for community progress.

Through anonymous channels he has contributed generously to the needy in the city and county, with no desire for credit.

He's a good man to have in our community.

We Live by the Land

NEXT WEEK — September 10-17 — is Georgia Soil Conservation Week.

We don't hold much for these "weeks," but here is one we commend to the people of our community, as well as to the people of our state.

We in this community live by the land. The local druggist may sell drugs, the hardware man may sell plow points, the department store man may sell dresses and suits—but they know they live by the land.

Land is the most useful and important of all our natural resources. It is the very existence of our community. No other gift of nature is so essential to not only our own progress and prosperity, but to the progress and prosperity of the nation.

From the land we get the food we eat, the clothes we wear, and the homes in which we live. All our material possessions come from the land. It is our primary source of wealth.

Yet, inspite of the fact that the soil provides the necessities of life and raw materials for trade, industry, and commerce, land has been neglected, wasted, and exploited.

In the United States we are destroying our soil resources faster than any other people in the world's history.

But we may be spared the fate of older civilizations if we will rally to the support of our nation's conservation program.

Soil conservation is the responsibility of the people of Statesboro, and Atlanta, quite as much as it is the duty and obligation of those who live on the land. All of us are tied very closely to the nation's soil; all of us are dependent upon it.

Keeping the soil highly fertile and preventing it from washing away are necessary if we are to remain prosperous and our democracy strong.

These are some of the reasons why all of us should have a keen interest in the soil.

Soil Conservation Week is designed to focus attention of our people on the land.

Governor Herman Talmadge has issued a proclamation designating next week as Soil Conservation Week.

Next week The Herald plans a special section of the paper on soil conservation.

Encourage your neighbor in the principles of conserving our greatest natural resource—the land.

—R. C. TRENCH.

Verse for This Week

Oh! Let us not this thought allow;
The heat, the dust upon our brow,
Signs of the contest, we may wear;
Yet thus shall appear more fair

In our Almighty Master's eye,
Than if in fear to lose the bloom,
Or ruffle the soul's lightest plum,
We from the strife should fly.

—R. C. TRENCH.

"And Before You Know It..."

Editor's Uneasy Chair

TEN "YOU CANNOTS"

HERE ARE 10 "You Cannots."

Read them, then we'll tell you about them.

1. You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift.

2. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong.

3. You cannot help small men by tearing big men down.

EXCERPTS FROM MORE CONGRATULATION LETTERS

Dear Mr. Coleman:

For the past two weeks I have been planning to write to you and send my heartfelt and most sincere congratulations on the fine job you did in winning Georgia Press Association trophies for the year. While I did not see your entries I am sure the honors were deserved and I know you take pardonable pride in your accomplishments. And well you might.

JOSEPH W. KLING, Mgr. Adv. Dept. Ga. Power Co. Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Leode:

I attended the Friday night dinner of the Georgia Press Association, and this is just a short note to tell you of the extreme pride which I felt at the many awards given to you and your paper.

Old Homesteads

Are Revisited

BY VIRGINIA RUSSELL

SOME YEARS AGO there was a decision to be made that would involve the selling of our home and moving away from Statesboro. Our oldest son, who was about 10 years old, was asked what he thought about the change. With tears in his voice, as well as his eyes, he asked, "Where would the old homestead be? Where would we bring our grandchildren?"

Several years have passed since those questions were asked and there has been much time to think about and understand those questions, or, at least, the reasons they were asked.

For two weeks the two young-est children in our family and I have been visiting in the two old "homesteads." Because my grandparents died before or soon after I was born, it was some time before I could realize what it means to children to go to grandmothers.

In the first place, grandparents have acquired the happy virtue of knowing real values. Their emphasis is on life, attitudes, and love. Not on the material things or artificial manners, and because children are straightforward beings, they love what their grandparents have grown to be.

The third Sunday in August was a reunion day for a grandmother's side. We worshipped in the same church that this 82-year-old grandmother had worshipped in as a child. We sat in the same pews where she sat and was allowed to nibble biscuits because the sermons lasted for hours instead of minutes in those days.

After the sermon we spread dinner in the churchyard and talked to kinfolks from everywhere. We walked down a very steep hill to the spring (and my very civilized husband whispered in my ear that I must bath the children carefully for he had seen poison ivy along the path). Then we visited another important point in the woods, showing the children that material blessings aren't to be winked at, but reminding them that their spiritual wealth ought to keep pace with the material progress.

Not far from this church was the birthplace of the children's grandmother, who was a thirteenth child. Along with birthplaces go cemeteries, and within a radius of 75 miles are the burial places of six generations of people. Graves are great-grandparents, but remembering what these blessed ones believed in and stood for one can reinforce his own faith in God and man.

A visit to my own home was a refreshing experience. To walk under the same rooms, to walk under the same big oaks, down the steep hills in the pasture that I walked in as a child, just to be there added freshness to my own spirits.

One day I was telling my three-year-old that this was the same home that I was born in, that those big acorns she'd gathered were from the same trees that had given me acorns with which to play. Her reply needs an explanation. She seems to resent very much that she hasn't shared all the experiences that the older children in our family have shared.

Often a story is told and she laughs and says, "Oh, I remember that," only to be told, "No, you don't, you weren't born." Then she cries and asks, "Where was I?" I always explain that she was in heaven waiting to be born. So on the day we were discussing my old home she brightened up and said, "Oh, yes, Mommy, I see. This is heaven."

I am convinced that a child's greatest heritage besides honor is in brothers and sisters and grandparents!

Farm Bureau and Associated Women Held September Meeting Last Night

By MRS. JOHN A. ROBERTSON

After being in "summer quarters" for the past three months, the September meeting of Brooklet Farm Bureau and Associated Women was held Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

The men held their meeting in the community house and the Associated Women met in the home-making department of the Brooklet school.

Mrs. Felix Parrish, president, conducted the business session of the women and the following ladies served a delicious supper: Mrs. R. C. Hall, chairman; Mrs. Ulmer Knight, Mrs. Floyd Atkins, Mrs. T. E. Davis, Mrs. J. H. Griffith, Mrs. Kermit Clifton, Miss Henrietta Hall, and Miss Ollie Mae Lanier.

Next Monday afternoon, September 11, the Ladies Aid Society of the Primitive Baptist Church will meet at the home of Mrs. J. A. Wynn.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Watts, and Miss Mary Slater spent last week end at Shelman Bluff at the Kennedy home.

Mrs. Lee McElveen and Mrs. W. H. Upchurch visited relatives in Savannah last week.

Mrs. Pat Moore visited friends in Millen Thursday.

Misses Shirley, Cecile, and Linda Donaldson and Lee Donaldson, of Savannah, spent last week end here with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Woodcock.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Lee and little daughter, of Penacola, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Beasley and two children, and Talmadge Lee, of Savannah, were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Lee Sr.

Friends of Joel L. Minick regret to learn that he is a patient in the Bulloch County Hospital.

Soil Conservation News

By J. R. KELLY

Farmers living in the Register community are invited to a pasture tour Tuesday morning, September 12.

The tour will begin at Cecil Kennedy's at 9 a. m. Stops will be made at C. O. Bohler's, Ivy Anderson's and Sam Nevil's to see and discuss wildlife borders, coastal bermuda grass, sericea lespedeza, kudzu, fescue and ladino clover.

On this tour will be seen pastures that have furnished abundant grazing during the recent dry spell and combination pastures that will furnish year-round grazing.

Mrs. Walter Brown of Atlanta was the guest during the week end of Mrs. Virgil Lee Hilliard.

Miss Lila Blitch of Atlanta spent the holidays with her mother Mrs. Dan Blitch Sr.

Mrs. Aubrey Brown returned during the week end from Adrian where she was called by the illness of her mother, Mrs. R. B. Pitts.

Mr. and Mrs. Pitts and daughter, Mrs. Marie Mitchell, of Adrian, and their son Jack Pitts of Cohran accompanied Mrs. Brown to Statesboro where Mrs. Pitts was called by the illness of her mother.

Thinking of the Long Pull?

Better Buy Buick!

If that car of yours has put its best days behind it, there's no time like right now to think about starting out afresh with a taut, new, up-to-the-minute motorcar with all its mileage still in it.

And there's no better place in the world to start than with the beauty pictured here, for a variety of reasons.

For one thing, this Buick SPECIAL is a quick-stepping Fireball valve-in-head straight-eight that's priced lower than some sixes.

For another, it's built with typical Buick ruggedness through and through—a husky that can take a lot of years without crying "Uncle!"

Then, too—this high-styled beauty is proving to be one of the most economical Buicks ever built—easy on gas, easy on upkeep, easy on you in its soft, floating, light-handling comfort.

It even comes with Dynaflo Drive if you like—and Dynaflo means that you will never have to service or replace a friction clutch, and that rear-end or transmission servicing—even engine upkeep—are cut to a minimum.

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

Time is HENRY J. TAYLOR, ABC Network, every Monday evening.

RECRUITING NEWS

Sgt. Jack Wilson of the local U. S. Army and Air Force recruiting office has announced that any young man eligible for Selective Service and who has not received his orders to appear for pre-induction examination may volunteer for the U. S. Army or U. S. Air Force.

Can't Afford To Haul Corn

Hogs Keep Both Landlord and Tenant Happy by Keeping Up Fertility of Corn Crop

Murray Crafton is a tenant farmer at Henderson, Kentucky. His relations with his landlord are most congenial and both are making money by their farming agreement. At corn picking time, the landlord calls in corn buyers and gets their bid for his part of the crop. He then gives Crafton the option of buying at the elevator price, less the cost of hauling.

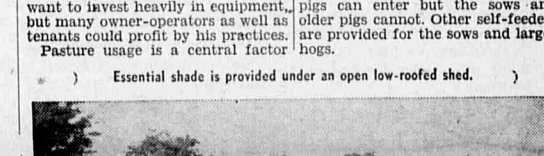

Crafton's experience shows the hogs pay an extra premium for the corn so he can't afford to haul it. He is permitted to keep about 15 acres seeded down for hog pasture and for his hog feeding operations.

While 85 acres are planted to corn each year, in this arrangement, the landlord gets full market price for his corn, plus full value of the manure. Crafton not only gets his share of the corn crop, but makes a profit on the landlord's share by converting it into pork.

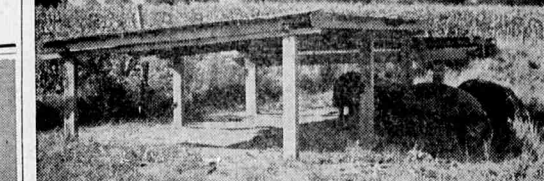

Restricted to 15 acres for his hog operations, Crafton has found it best to keep only 6 or 7 sows. However he breeds for 12 litters per year and figures on fattening out from 100 to 120 hogs each year. Operating as a tenant, he naturally would not want to invest heavily in equipment, but many owner-operators as well as tenants could profit by his practice. Pasture usage is a central factor

To encourage pigs to eat grain at an early age, Crafton uses an unique crop arrangement. He sets a self-feeder under cover in a 14-ft. shed and spaces upright planks on the front and rear so the smaller pigs can enter but the sows and older pigs cannot. Other self-feeders are provided for the sows and larger hogs.

Essential shade is provided under an open low-roofed shed.

Bottom picture was taken of a well-constructed broad base terrace on the farm of Mrs. J. E. Rushing and A. D. Murphy. This type of terrace is broad enough for row crops to be planted and cultivated on and the channel is wide enough and shallow enough to carry off excess water without causing a ditch to be washed out above the terrace. Also shown in the picture is a good rotation of one year close growing crop of oats followed by a row crop planted and cultivated on the contour. Jack Story, former District Conservationist, and J. R. Kelly, Soil Conservationist, are also shown in the picture.

USDA Reports Tobacco Market Is State Leader

The U. S. Department of Agriculture, in a release from Valdosta this week, confirms the announcement made here last week that the Statesboro Tobacco market led all the Georgia-Florida flue-cured markets in 1950, with 12,330,396 pounds which sold for an average of $42.92 per hundred.

The market here led the state last year with 12,583,090 pounds, for an average of $38.59 per hundred. The report of the USDA placed the gross sales for the Georgia-Florida markets at 141,202,074 pounds, for $67,772,295, to average $48 per hundred. Last year gross sales amounted to 155,163,375, for an average of $40.12.

The market began this year on Monday, July 24. The season ends

Vet Commanders To Head 'Crusade For Freedom'

Kirk Sutlive, of Savannah, First District chairman of the Crusade For Freedom, announced this week that Joe Woodcock, commander of Dexter Allen Post No. 90, American Legion, and J. B. Williams, commander of the local post of Veterans of Foreign Wars, would co-ordinate the Bulloch County Crusade For Freedom.

Mr. Sutlive met with Mr. Woodcock and Mr. Williams, together with Miss Maude White, visiting teacher of the Bulloch county school board, and Leodel Coleman, on Wednesday of last week.

Mr. Sutlive said, "There is a shooting war going on in Korea. We read a lot about this in the newspapers and hear a lot about it on the radio. The one great conflict which rarely makes the headlines, but which represents the greatest struggle in the history of the world is the current battle for men's minds."

He then explained that the Crusade For Freedom puts America on the offensive in this war of ideas.

It was conceived by General Lucius D. Clay and other distinguished Americans and is vigorously supported by General Dwight D. Eisenhower. It is a personal declaration of ideals and will afford every American an opportunity to participate in the psychological war we are now engaged in with the eastern powers.

The Crusade For Freedom, simply stated, is an offensive "home front" weapon of the people of this country in combating Communist propaganda which distorts the truth regarding our aims and purposes in world affairs and portrays us as a war mongering people.

General Clay has stated that the Communists are trying hard to make the world think we started the war in Korea and that we are a nation of imperialist warmongers out to conquer the world. He suggests it is vitally important that we step up our campaign of truth to blast this false propaganda — to declare before the world our true aims of freedom and friendship for all people. He points out that this is the purpose of the Crusade For Freedom in which all Americans are earnestly invited to take a part.

Every American is going to be asked to sign a Declaration of Freedom. (See editorial page.)

Mr. Woodcock and Mr. Williams explained that when you sign this declaration you are expressing your faith in a world of human liberty and are supporting the vigorous private effort now being made to bring a message of truth and encouragement to the millions of people held under Communist rule. The many hundreds of thousands of Freedom Scrolls which will carry the signatures of many millions of American citizens will be flown to Berlin, Germany, where they will be placed in the base of the Freedom Bell which will be tolled for the first time on United Nations Day, October 24.

On Friday of last week, Mr. Smith was at his place of business on West Main street when the two would-be G's came in, dressed in combat clothes complete with pack, K-Bar knife, ax, canteens, blankets, and enough clothes for an assault operation.

"All we need now is a bullet belt, a steel helmet and a rifle," said Ed.

Mr. Smith told the boys that he couldn't help them out, but that the Army was what they wanted. "They give you all that and then some." They then wanted to know if they left for Korea could they get back in time for school. Mr. Smith wasn't quite sure about that angle, but did give them a note to give to Sergeant Jack Wilson, U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force recruiting sergeant in the court house.

So, they presented themselves to know when he would notify them to report to duty . . . and when we're ready to send you off to fight."

Soil Conservation Tour Shows Bulloch Farmers Care For Land

Led by J. R. Kelly, work unit conservationist of the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District, a number of Bulloch county citizens made a tour of the southern section of the county on Tuesday of this week, inspecting outstanding examples of soil conservation practices.

The tour was a part of the county's observation of Georgia Soil Conservation Week, proclaimed by Governor Talmadge to be September 10-17.

The first stop on the tour was at Cecil Kennedy's place on U. S. 301, south of Statesboro. The group inspected a field of lespedeza on which a herd of fine cattle are now grazing. Mr. Kennedy explained to the group that he sowed the sericea seed in March of last year. He praised the sericea as a soil builder, as a source of seed, and for hay cutting.

From Mr. Kennedy's place the group moved on to explore a wildlife border on Outland Boller's place. The border, designed to feed and protect wildlife, particularly quail, is made up of a strip of bi-color lespedeza and sericea planted between woodland and fields. Mr. Kelly explained that field borders are sapped by trees at the field, crops are not profitable on an area of 30 feet or more out from the trees, and erosion is a severe problem. This strip of land has no use except for wildlife food and cover. He said, "Bi-color lespedeza supports quail better than either nature or man has been able to do before."

While at Ivy Anderson's place, standing in a field of knee-high kudzu, Otis Holloway told of an experience on his place with lespedeza. He had sold the top soil off a piece of land to the highway department. This left nothing but clay area. He planted lespedeza and thirteen years later he planted and gathered a fine crop of corn on the land which the lespedeza had rebuilt for him.

Mr. Anderson's field of kudzu had saved a field which had almost washed away and which now has a fine rich topsoil. "Nothing saved it, nothing could have built it up faster than this kudzu," he said.

Henry Blitch told of a cow his brother, Fred, had been feeding on kudzu and said that she got so fat that her backbone sank and she could walk on her hind legs. "Fred's cattle have been grazing on kudzu all summer and they're the fattest they've been," he said.

At Sam Nevils' place the group visited a fine field of 22 acres of sericea on which 64 beautiful white-face cattle were grazing. He explained his cultivation methods, his fertilizing plan, and grazing plan. Near this pasture Mr. Nevils has a large pasture of Coastal

Rites Held For Louis Seligman

Mr. Louis Seligman, retired Statesboro businessman, died Friday of last week in a Savannah hospital after a year's illness. Seventy years of age, he had been active in his business here. The Seligman family, which has been in the area since 1848, was founded by his grandfather, Daniel Seligman, who was a partner in the firm of Seligman, Koeppel & Co., which was a leading financial institution in the city.

Funeral services were held Sunday morning at the chapel of Sipple's Mortuary in Savannah with the Rabbi A. I. Rosenberg and Cantor Alvert Singer, both of the B. E. Jacob Synagogue, officiating. Burial was in Bonaventure Cemetery.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Rosa Seligman; one son, A. M. Seligman, Statesboro; four daughters, Mrs. Samuel Victor of Rocky Mount, N. C., Mrs. Nathan Kadis of Goldsboro, N. C., Mrs. E. J. Bennett of Waycross, and Mrs. Ida S. Matz of Statesboro; five brothers and five sisters, and three grandchildren.
