6. That we are in hearty accord with the present trend toward lessening of ad valorem taxes and home-stead exemption, but realize that this CAN ONLY BE ACCOMPLISHED IN ONE WAY.

7. That the only way any fair-minded person can say he is for these essential services of our state government, and at the same time for an equitable distribution of the taxation burden, is to actively support a gross income tax for this state as outlined by Mr. Head.

8. That the gross income tax exempting low incomes and deficits will suffice for the expanded program of our state services to its people, while no revision of other taxes will do anything except fool the people as to the real need of the state government. Any increase from old taxes will be negligible or undesirable from the point of view of taxation burden.

9. That if the forces for the spreading of the real benefits of government in Georgia fail to rally support for the gross income levy, they pass a general sales tax for two years only, with the stipulation that the whole tax problem be re-examined by the next legislature in the light of the ensuing two years of experience.

10. That in no case should the General Assembly fail to pass one of these two levies for the solution of Georgia's fundamental ills.

11. That we urge you and your friends to examine our mutual problem in terms of real services indispensable to our future, and not through the narrow and selfish lens of what will it mean to "ME TODAY."

ROUND ROBIN

The Georgia law makers had a very swell time last week. The state capitol was almost turned into a night club, during the day. There was a widely known all girls orchestra in town for a week's run, and for two days the senators and representatives listened to the swing music of the gals band. Law-making was sidetracked, and bills and resolutions marked time, but a good time was had by all, to the tune of about $500,000 a day to tax payers in the state.

THE ENTIRE COST OF THE C.C.C. COULD BE PAID FOR BY THE TAXES OF THE BREWING INDUSTRY!

The Treasury Department shows expenditures of $26 million dollars for the Civilian Conservation Corps for the fiscal year of 1938. The brewing industry pays over a million dollars a day in taxes.

What Beer contributes to the re-building of America would fill a great volume

Over 400 million dollars in taxes every year. Over 1,000,000 jobs. A market for 3,000,000 farm acres of produce.

The brewing industry would like to preserve for itself and the people the many economic benefits it has created in the past five years. Brewers everywhere realize that this is a question bound up with the proper distribution of their mild and wholesome beverage through retail outlets whose character will be a credit to the community. Obviously, the brewers can enforce no laws. But they can—and will—cooperate with the local law-enforcement authorities. Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Make Front Page News

One of Bulloch county's representatives and his wife made front page news in Atlanta last week when the Atlanta Constitution published a story under the headline "First Vacation in 40 Years—Now a Sojourn."

The story as it appears in the Constitution is as follows:

"The first vacation a Georgia farming couple has had in 40 years of long and hard work is being spent largely in Georgia's state capital with the husband serving as a member of the house of representatives and the wife a constant, every-day attendant in the house gallery."

"This couple is Representative and Mrs. Darwin Franklin, of Bulloch county. They reared a family and saw their children established in life before Mr. Franklin decided to take up politics."

"On their farm near Statesboro, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin raise hogs and this weekend they are going back home for 'hog killing time,' they said."

"Perhaps when Mr. Franklin was a younger man, just getting started, he dreamed of being a lawmaker and the holder of a public office. But times were always hard and a growing family had to be looked after."

"Mr. Franklin was needed at home and on the farm. Years dragged by but the dream persisted. Finally, all the children were grown and Mrs. Franklin's domestic responsibilities were lessened. Too, he had prospered."

"So, last year he threw his hat into the political ring and sought, for the first time, public office. The people of his county elected him one of their representatives to the general assembly."

"When the legislature convened, it meant more to the Franklin family than the beginning of a law-making session. Mrs. Franklin packed her clothes with those of her husband and together they came to Atlanta—to vacation."

"Every morning Mrs. Franklin puts on her hat and accompanies her legislator-husband to the capitol. He takes his seat in the house and she goes to the gallery. She watches everything he does."

"A vacation is a change. The fast moving, tense, dramatic house of representatives is certainly a change for them both, they say."

GROSS INCOME TAX AND SALES TAX NOW BEFORE LEGISLATURE

Introduced By Administration Leaders In House Last Week

Following Governor River's message to the General Assembly last week two tax measures are now before the House for consideration: a four per cent sales tax and a one per cent gross income tax.

The weekend saw an economic bloc taking definite form to fight new taxes, with the legislature heading toward an extra session.

On Thursday of last week administration leaders submitted a one per cent gross income tax bill estimated to yield $12,500,000 a year.

Revenue from the gross income tax would not be allocated, but would go into the general fund to be paid out on appropriations. "It would in no way offset the present net income tax law. The bill would reduce the five mill state ad valorem levy to half a mill to be used in retiring outstanding state bonds, and repeal about 200 nuisance taxes. A net $100,000 annually is needed for bond retiring. It provides for a $100 per cent exemption. It would cover a broad range of receipts, including wages, bonuses, pensions, salaries, fees, commissions, gratuities, income from trades, business, commerce and professions, alimony, yields from investment of capital and sale, exchange or transfer of tangible or intangible, real or personal property."

On Friday a real per cent retail sales tax allocating its yield in equal parts to public school teachers and the Department of Public Welfare was proposed by administration leaders. The tax would be collected by tokens.

The measure was presented as an alternative for the 1 per cent gross income tax submitted Thursday.

Like the gross income measure, the sales tax would abolish all state ad valorem taxes except the fractional part of a mill necessary to produce the amount to retire state bonds. About 200 "nuisance" taxes would be repealed. It is estimated that the sales tax would raise $12,000,000 a year.

Another revenue bill, imposing a luxury tax, was introduced Thursday estimated to yield around $5,000,000 annually by imposing a 20 per cent levy on admission to theaters, athletic contests, soft drinks, etc.

Under the present plans, the House of Representatives, which must originate revenue measures, will not reach consideration of these plans for the next two or three weeks, and by that time it is expected that there will be other such measures in the house hopper.

4-H CLUBSTERS PLAN TO ENTER YEAR-ROUND GARDEN CONTEST

Winners To Get Free Trip To National 4-H Congress

Bulloch county 4-H boys and girls who are planning to compete in the year-around garden contest were advised today by County Agent Byron Dyer to get an early start with their spring garden.

The Georgia 4-H Club boy or girl who makes the best record from a year-around garden will be awarded a free trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago next fall. In addition, two individual winners in each of the four Extension Service districts will be given $5 cash awards.

The purpose of the contest is to create more interest in year-around vegetable gardens, to grow more vegetables for home use during the year and to teach 4-H youngsters the use and value of fertilizer in vegetable gardening.

Contestants will be judged on the basis of garden records, stories of the year-around garden and leadership work. Included with the records of the project next fall should be a story on, "How I Grew a Year-Around Garden in 1939."

Any boy or girl who is a bona-fide 4-H club member and between the ages of 15 and 17, may enter the contest.

The event is sponsored by the 4-H club department of the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service, with the assistance of Elmo Ragdale, extension horticulturist. Prizes will be given for a commercial fertilizer concern (Chilean Nitrate Educational Bureau).

Winner in the 1938 contest was Dorra Lee Ard, of Meriwether county. She visited Chicago and the National 4-H Congress last December.

BULLOCH DELEGATION INTRODUCES BILL TO ABOLISH SPECIAL BALIFFS

Capitol Round Robin

An Intimate Message From The State Capitol Of The Coming And Goings Of The Gentlemen From Bulloch

All of Statesboro came to town last week to attend one of the biggest shows ever scheduled in the House of Representatives, but the show folded just after all the audience arrived. To the majority of the Statesboro people that looked on to Atlanta to attend the Judge Willie Woodrum trial of the impeachment in the house of representatives this was a sad disappointment, for the ones I talked with were anxious to hear and participate in the hearing. They wanted to tell all and hear all.

More than a dozen witnesses from Statesboro had been notified to appear in Atlanta to testify before the State of Republic Committee on the Woodrum case, but on the afternoon these witnesses arrived, the committee had already voted to bring the resolution on the floor of the house. After this action there was no need for the witnesses per se. On the very next day the house voted to reconsider the resolution, which threw it back on the committee's lap. When Willie Woodrum heard this he began to relax for the first time. The Judge

Woodrum Expected To Appear In Own Defense

The state of the republic committee of the Georgia House of Representatives will resume the hearing of the resolution looking toward the impeachment of Judge William Woodrum today when Judge Woodrum is expected to appear in his own defense.

New Attorney General

Ellis Arnall, 31, of Newnan, became the youngest Attorney General in Georgia's history when he accepted the oath of office February 2, to fill the unexpired term of M. J. Yeomans, who resigned to accept joint duties of attorney and director of the newly created State Hospital Authority.

Educated at Mercer University and the University of Georgia, Arnall served two terms as Speaker Pro-Tem of the House of Representatives and at the time of his appointment to the Attorney General post was the senior Assistant Attorney General in the point of service.

Given the oath of office by Governor Rivers, Arnall said, "My one ambition is to make Georgia a good Attorney General."

Mr. Evans, in referring to the appearance of William Schley Howard, attorney for Judge Woodrum at the committee hearing stated, "If Schley Howard takes any action so as to cause a trial, where both sides could be heard."

Mr. Evans charged further there had been lobbying in the House against the resolution by persons who were not members of the Legislature.

House Speaker Roy V. Harris protested to the use of the term "impeachment proceedings" in the debate pointing out that no actual impeachment proceedings was in ending. He added that under the resolution as drawn, the strongest interpretation that could be placed upon it was a condemnation of the judge.

Mr. Evans rejoined that the reason he referred to impeachment proceedings in his discussion was that he took the position that the resolution was leading to impeachment proceedings if the charges proved insufficient basis to sustain the action.

Representative Walter Harrison's speech was the highlight of the storm session. He talked for about thirty minutes during which time he was repeatedly interrupted by Mr. Evans and others.

A fiery exchange of words took place when Representative Harrison demanded to know what was Mr. Evans' interest in the case since Mr. Evans was not from the Ogeechee Circuit.

"My only interest," replied Mr. Evans, "was that I was down there and saw the judge presiding while that case was going on."

"Yes," shouted Mr. Harrison, "I understand you were invited to go there as the 'Hell Raiser of Georgia.'"

Mr. Evans retorted: "That's not so. I went down there on my own volition."

Mr. Harrison took issue with the signers of the resolution pointing out that not a signer was from the Ogeechee circuit. He said that he thought both sides were "offended" in this situation and added "I can't understand why the gentlemen outside of the Ogeechee circuit are so interested in this matter. I think we are capable of taking care of our own affairs."

The debate was interrupted at this point to permit a joint session of the Legislature to hear Governor Rivers deliver his third message to the General Assembly.

POTASH PAYS

POTASH

Your Agricultural Authorities Recommend 3-10-10 for TOBACCO

The Official Recommendation for tobacco on average Georgia soils is 3-10-10 TOBACCO FERTILIZER at 800 to 900 pounds per acre at planting, plus a potash side-dressing equal to 100 to 200 pounds of Sulphate of Potash per acre. The side-dressing should be applied within 20 days after transplanting in the field. Authorities state that experiments indicate that the acre value of tobacco may be materially increased by additional potash.

According to a recent change in Georgia fertilizer laws, the nitrogen in fertilizer analyses is now expressed as nitrogen instead of ammonia. This means that fertilizers are stronger from a growth standpoint. Fertilizer containing too high a proportion of nitrogen produces rough, bony tobacco. Avoid this by selecting a fertilizer mixture in which the nitrogen has been well-balanced with potash. Experiments and the experience of thousands of farmers prove that it pays to give tobacco a lot more potash than it received in the past. Give your tobacco more NV POTASH this year. Your Fertilizer Man can supply you with 3-10-10 TOBACCO FERTILIZER for use at planting and NV SULPHATE OF POTASH for side-dressing. Potash Pays!

Some farmers never know what fine tobacco their land will produce because they never try using enough NV POTASH. Tobacco removes from the soil more potash than both nitrogen and phosphoric acid combined. When it receives the same low-potash fertilizer year after year, yields and quality suffer and many things are blamed. This is often simply due to potash starvation.

Are you sure your tobacco gets enough NV POTASH? Many farmers have been content with their crops until they tried using more NV POTASH in fertilizers at planting and as a side-dressing. The small extra cost of the extra potash proved to be their best-paying fertilizer investment, returning greatly increased yields of better quality tobacco.

Give your tobacco a chance to pay you extra cash! Follow the official recommendations. Use 3-10-10 TOBACCO FERTILIZER at planting and side-dress with 100 to 200 pounds of NV SULPHATE OF POTASH. Potash Pays!

A DAY IN THE CAPITOL

This week we are going to devote our entire editorial columns to our uneasy chair to give you our impression of a day in the state House of Representatives.

Last Wednesday we sat at the desk of a Georgia legislator on the floor of the House of Representatives in the capitol of the Empire State of the South. To your editor that chair was not uneasy—but we can imagine that chair becoming a hot spot under certain circumstances for the one occupying it.

A GAME OF JIGSAW

That day was an education. We saw more in the four hours to learn less than in any previous four hours we can recall. We had to read a newspaper later to learn what we had seen with our own eyes in the process of happening. Remember the days of the jigsaw puzzle? That describes a stormy session in the House where the laws of our state are made. It is impossible to spend a day in the state capitol mixing with your representatives and the representatives of other counties, with newspaper men and other interested spectators without getting all mixed up and seeing the game of politics as a great big jigsaw puzzle. It is something you see but you can't put your finger on. You put part of the thing together and think that you have the proper piece to fit and for a second you see the completed picture, then you turn your head and the picture changes completely and you start looking for another piece to fit.

And leaving it for a while to think over and observe further from all angles you return to find that someone has played havoc with the pieces you had already fitted and you now have a complete new puzzle with which to cope.

You find pieces of your puzzle in the lobby and rooms of the Henry Grady Hotel, in apartments, in the halls, corridors, cloakrooms, at the lunch counter of the capitol and, in fact, everywhere. Everyone seems to think just because they are in the capitol whirl that they can analyze, understand, and are capable of telling you what it's all about. They will not wait for you to ask but they'll give you, confidentially, of course, the inside dope on everything that happens.

FIREWORKS SET OFF

Our visit was made on a day when things were scheduled to happen and happen they did. You've seen a match set off a package of fire-poppers—well last Wednesday fire-poppers went off with more than a Fourth of July bang.

It must have been a usual everyday session when we were admitted to the floor on the pretext of looking for Representatives Harry Aiken and Darwin Franklin. The House looked more like a gentlemen's club; smoke hanging over the house, representatives scattered over the room, some with feet crossed on their desk top, vacant seats here and there, a member at the microphone of the public address system making a desultory plug for some local measure, the speaker taking time out to introduce a couple of kids to the house members who crashed through with a sprinkling of applause, and acknowledging the presence of some fifty school children in the gallery seeing that the history book told them the truth about our great law-making body.

Then the fireworks!

The motion was made to recommit to the state of the republic the resolution calling for the investigation of the official conduct of Judge Woodrum. For more than two hours the scene reminded one of the proverbial three-ring circus. So many things happening so fast and at the same time that it leaves one wondering what it is all about.

The motion made, members of the house began popping up in all sections of the house. Demands were made for recognition from the chair, the then speaker yielding, members shouting at each other and the speaker pounding into splinters the block on his desk with a heavy gavel for order, and then as suddenly as it came up it was all over. The house sent the resolution back to the committee.

THE GOVERNOR SPEAKS

At eleven o'clock Governor Rivers spoke before a joint meeting of the House and the Senate. His message contained three suggested plans to raise the necessary funds to carry on the work of the state.

Highlights of his message include: "To my mind, the present ad valorem tax in Georgia is the most inequitable of all taxes on our statute books or advocated by anyone to be put on our statute books."

"We have 200 nuisance taxes that are expensive to collect and are exasperating to the taxpayer to pay. . . These ought to be taken off."

"As soon as the House will show an indication of the alternative it prefers, I will lead the fight to enact the legislation. . . I will assume full responsibility with you in it."

When the Governor had finished the House resumed its business to adjourn at two o'clock for the day.

We think that every person interested in the government of his state should see its legislative bodies at work. It was our first experience and we will always remember it.

LEGISLATORS A SERIOUS BUNCH

We believe that our present legislature is made up of a serious group of men conscientiously striving to arrive at a satisfactory solution to all our present troubles. Our own representatives, Harry Aiken, Harvey Brannen and Darwin Franklin are doing a good work for Bulloch County. Their opinions are respected by their fellow House and Senate members. This is evident when one observes them on the floors of their respective houses. It is further evident in checking the committee assignment held by each of them.

LOOKING BACK

Mental flash-backs of the House: Mrs. Harvey Brannen, Mrs. Jim Gillis and Mrs. Jim Fowler listening to the Governor's speech. . . Those funny hats on ladies occupying their husband's, sons, or sweetheart's chairs during the speech. . . Our Roaming Reporter, (Walter McDougald) and Frank Williams deeply engrossed in the proceedings of the Woodrum case. . . The group of witnesses from Statesboro worrying whether or not they would be recalled to Atlanta. . . Fred Lanier hurrying to catch a bus for home. . . Harry Aiken talking to the "Lady from Fulton". . . Leo Farrell, feature writer of the Atlanta Constitution, sitting in front of the speaker's desk casually observing the House while Governor Rivers was speaking. . . And Speaker Roy Harris wedding that heavy gavel. . . Seeing and talking to Mr. L. R. Seibert, secretary of the State Board of Regents who introduced me to Chancellor S. V. Sanford of the University of Georgia.

COMING HOME

We went to Atlanta in the company of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williams, Mrs. R. L. Cone and Walter McDougald. A more delightful group would be hard to get together at one time. We filled the role of listener-inner. Walter and Mrs. Cone recalling old times. . . Frank and Cora and Jane (Mrs. Cone) talking about grandson Frank (son of F. Everett Williams) and Walter talking about Isabella, Horace, Mike, Worth and Don. And now that we think back on that trip we think that we were carried for a ride other than just making the trip. We didn't say much but learned a lot all of which is "off the record."

We stopped at Jackson on our way back and went in to see J. Doyle Jones, editor and publisher of the Jackson Progress-Argus, one of the state's leading weekly newspapers. Mr. Jones is a Bulloch man and he and Walter McDougald spent a happy fifteen minutes recalling old times and mutual friends.

And when we reached the city limits of Statesboro we all knew that Statesboro is still the best town in Georgia.

Persimmon wilt is spreading over the southeastern states with a rapidity that U. S. Department of Agriculture workers term "explosive." This fungus disease, discovered and identified only two years ago, kills with great rapidity a native American tree that has high value. Fruit of the persimmon tree furnishes winter food for wildlife. Golf club heads and shuttle blocks for use in woolen mills are made from its wood. The Soil Conservation Service rates it highly in controlling soil erosion, because of its versatility as to soil and moisture conditions. It seems to grow well on both dry and wet, rich and poor soils.

A year ago the Federal Bureau of Commerce, U. S. Department of Commerce, was limited to an area southeast of Nashville, Tenn. Since then they have found such infection in western and northern Florida and in parts of Mississippi and Alabama, with the most rapid spread in 1938 in Georgia and South Carolina.

Distribution of cotton market news by radio will be expanded during the 1939 cotton season, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Cotton futures prices for near active months will be released four times a day, with a daily resume after the close of the market. This service, inaugurated during the 1938 season, was originally planned for the height of the marketing season only, but is being continued on a year-round basis. The price information is made available at 10:05 a. m., 12:05 p. m., and 3:05 p. m., daily, (eastern standard time) when futures markets are open. A summary of the day's cotton markets is released at 4:15 p. m., except on Saturday, when the release is at 12:55 p. m. Cotton futures prices also will be broadcast, Department cotton officials said, in the Department of Agriculture's portion of the National Farm and Home Hour. This program is broadcast daily beginning at 12:30 p. m. eastern standard time.

Flue-cured tobacco growers who intend to spray for the control of blue mold are advised by Huey I. Borders, extension plant pathologist, to start immediately—or in the case of late beds, when the plants are two weeks old. Where the plants have just reached the four leaf stage, it is suggested that applications start at the rate of two to three quarts per 100 square feet of bed. These amounts to be increased as the size of the plants increase up to setting time. The control program is the same as was recommended last year—that is, to spray twice a week with a mixture of cottonseed oil and red copper oxide applied as a mist to the plants. Information regarding the mixing and application of this spray may be obtained from county agents.

assembly. Those hearing the Governor call for a gross income tax, or sales tax, were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williams, R. Lee Moore, Walter McDougal (who is looking better than we have ever seen him look), Leodel Coleman, editor of the Bulloch Herald, Fred T. Lanier, Albert Deal and others.

The best story of the week, and a picture of the principals appeared on the front page of the Atlanta Constitution last week. This story was about representative Darwin Franklin, and Mrs. Franklin, who are representatives because Mrs. Franklin is just as much of a representative as Darwin.

Representatives Harry Aiken and Franklin introduced a bill this week to abolish special criminal districts in counties having populations of 26,225 to 26,250. This will affect the special districts in Bulloch and if passed will eliminate the job that Ruggs is now holding, which pays $65.00 a month.

You will have to look a long time over in the house of representatives, and in the senate to find three better dressed and a more popular delegation than this crowd from Bulloch.

They have got it, and have plenty of friends. You will have to look a long time to find a keener politician than Senator Harvey Brannen. Harvey doesn't say much, but he knows what he is doing.

The several witnesses subpoenaed from Statesboro and Bulloch county were not called before the committee. When they began arriving in Atlanta Tuesday night of last week they learned that the committee action came suddenly on a motion by Representative DeFour, of McIntosh county after P. H. H. of Soperton and Alonzo Woods, of Swainsboro had sworn that Judge Woodrum attempted to obtain the influence of State Senator John B. Spivey, now president of the Senate, to block impeachment proceedings. They testified the judge agreed to direct a verdict of acquittal for Albert Cobb in the Danahy murder in Screven county, if Mr. Spivey would help block the impeachment proceedings. These two witnesses swore they related the proposition to Mr. Spivey late one night last summer, getting him out of bed for the conference. He promptly refused the proposal, they said.

Judge Woodrum was represented at the committee hearing by his attorney, William Schley Howard, of Atlanta, who bitterly complained that he had no opportunity to refute the charges. "We could refute every syllable of testimony offered by the prosecution," he said, "but the committee would not permit us to put up our witnesses."

LOCAL GOODYEAR REPRESENTATIVE GOES TO AKRON

George Pittman Jr., local sales representative of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, will leave here Saturday for a trip to Akron, Ohio, where he will attend the four day Home Coming celebration commemorating the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the company in a program starting February 20, and continuing through February 23, when final event of the occasion is the dedication by the city of a bronze statue of Charles Goodyear, discoverer in 1839 of the process of vulcanization of rubber, on which the modern industry is founded.

Mr. Pittman will be one of 1,700 Goodyear representatives from all over the world, who will participate in the program which is designed to provide a renewal of acquaintance and a portrait of the company's world-wide activities.

Representatives from every Goodyear plant, manufacturing and sales location activity in all parts of the world, will be present. The program is to feature speakers of international note and there have been arranged a series of dramatic exhibits which virtually constitute a "Rubber World's Fair" and depict the many phases of the company's fields of endeavor.

Every Akron hotel will be filled to capacity and there are plans to house 200 for the four days in the nearby city of Canton.

PROFIT margins increase when production costs decrease. Potash lowers production costs, because it increases yields per acre and improves quality. Experiment stations have also shown that it will control cotton rust and reduce wilt. This makes more cotton per acre and makes it easier to pick.

Make sure your cotton fertilizers supply enough potash to give the crop a good start and keep it growing vigorously throughout the season. Fertilizers applied at the rate of 400-600 pounds per acre should contain from 6-10% potash. Later in the growing season, more can be added in a nitrogen-potash top-dresser, if required.

Consult your county agent or experiment station about the fertility of your soil. See your fertilizer dealer. You will be surprised how little extra it costs for enough potash to insure profits.

The statue, erected at the end of a beautifully landscaped park, fittingly flanked by Akron's armory, city buildings and county courthouse, is a striking addition to the city's mall.

Following the dedicatory program, several thousand citizens of Akron and visitors will hold a banquet in the armory, plans for which have been made by the Chamber of Commerce.

"I expect," said Mr. Pittman, "during my stay in Akron, I will get to see many of the recent improvements in tire manufacture in the company's plant and to greet a great many of the fellows whom I have known, but who are now scattered around the world."

Every Akron hotel will be filled to capacity and there are plans to house 200 for the four days in the nearby city of Canton.

PERSONALITY

Personality is not all in giving the qualities one has to the world but rests a great deal in its ability to respond and be interested in the other fellow's problem. The person who has sympathy and understanding cannot help but be a gracious kindly soul with charm and warmth that we call personality.

PROFIT margins increase when production costs decrease. Potash lowers production costs, because it increases yields per acre and improves quality. Experiment stations have also shown that it will control cotton rust and reduce wilt. This makes more cotton per acre and makes it easier to pick.

Make sure your cotton fertilizers supply enough potash to give the crop a good start and keep it growing vigorously throughout the season. Fertilizers applied at the rate of 400-600 pounds per acre should contain from 6-10% potash. Later in the growing season, more can be added in a nitrogen-potash top-dresser, if required.

Consult your county agent or experiment station about the fertility of your soil. See your fertilizer dealer. You will be surprised how little extra it costs for enough potash to insure profits.
