An Applied Learning Experience.

In 2012 19 KSU Political Science and Communication Students Attended the 2 Main Political Conventions:

Charlotte, NC

Tampa, FL
An Applied Learning Experience...

Primary Goal

Engage Students in an Experiential Educational Experience!

COM Students: Writing Daily News Stories in COM 4490 Reporting at the Political Party Conventions

POLS Students: Surveys for Pol. Research POLS 4490 Political Party Conventions Field Study
An Applied Learning Experience...

Overall Course Goals....

Effectively Convert the Convention Halls and Meeting Rooms into Active Classroom Learning Environments!!

Specifically, COM Students Produced Daily News Stories and POLS Students Interviewed Convention Activists About the Delegate Experience, Political Communication, and Social-political Activism
An Applied Learning Experience...

The Educational Goal Had Several Challenges:

1. Access to GA Political Parties at the Convention Sites
2. Financing the Trip
3. Awarding Course Credit
4. In-Class Preparation for “Real World” Experience
5. Hurricane Isaac!
An Applied Learning Experience...

Overcoming These Obstacles Was Not Easy!
Additional Challenges...

• GA GOP Charged $400 to Cover Student Meals and Tickets to Convention Arena
• GA DEMS Were Disorganized
• Find Hotel within KSU’s Budget (not near delegates accommodations)
• Transportation of Students
Challenges Were Met Including a Grant from the Art Pope Foundation to Pay for Student Access to GOP Convention

Even Hurricane Isaac Did NOT Impede our Success!
An Applied Learning Experience...

Courses in Depth

POLS 4490 Political Party Conventions Field Study

• Respectfully observe the American political process in practice
• Systematically conduct participant observations in the field
• Demonstrate the ability to conduct interviews in the field
• Accurately describe and thoughtfully reflect on daily field experiences
• Demonstrate the ability to analyze qualitative (and/or quantitative) data
• Produce and present high quality research paper relevant to the topic of political party conventions
An Applied Learning Experience...

• POLS Students Gathered Data Through Surveys from Convention Participants (delegates, party leaders, and activists)
• Worked in Teams of 2
• Each Tampa Student Paired with a Charlotte Student!
• Data Represented Cross Sections of GOP and DEM Activists
An Applied Learning Experience...

• The POLS Students Used This Learning Experience to Propose and Implement a Research Design In a 2 Month Time Frame...

• Ethics Training

• IRB Approval

• Actual Data Collection/Analysis

• Writing the Paper

• Presenting in an On-Campus Venue
COM 4490 Reporting at the Political Party Conventions

- Propose and produce original political stories
- Interview party activists and leaders
- Upload this content to a specialized news website

Analysis

Students revealed substantial post-convention increases in...

• The nomination of candidates (2.4 - 2.9),
• The role of state party organizations (2.1 - 2.7)
• Why delegates attend the convention (2.3 - 2.9)
• How they are selected (2.1 - 2.4)

These results suggest a boost in student confidence regarding their understanding of the course content as delivered

Analysis

• *The political science students’ self efficacy increased dramatically after the convention (4.3 - 4.9),
• *The communication students decline by a roughly equal amount (4.4 - 3.8).

The divergent results on political efficacy are likely produced by the contrasting course requirements and motivational tendencies of students pursuing these two majors.
Other Analyses

On self-reported level of understanding... of convention processes, party organizations, and delegates’ roles, both sets of students showed significant increases after the convention.

This finding represents the students’ positive self-assessment of “content learning” in the two courses.

Analysis

Results revealed little to no change in political efficacy and those relating to the students’ perceived understanding of course content.

BUT...

Perceptions varied greatly on the question of public and media access to convention activities. Ratings of public access increased among attendees of the DNC (1.4 - 2.0) while ratings of media access declined among those who traveled to the RNC (2.7 - 2.1).
Conclusions

Overall, a Successful Experiential Learning Experience!

Based on 2 Points....
The Trips to Charlotte and Tampa were “Uneventful” (all students followed expected off-campus rules/behavior)

• All students interacted with and interviewed GOP and DEM party activists

• News stories written on a consistent daily basis and presented in public forum

• POLS research papers written on deadline and presented in public forum
An Applied Learning Experience...

As an experiential learning project...

Student self-knowledge of American politics – political party conventions – increased as evidenced in their course projects

Includes a self assessment of being more engaged in civic society
