Georgia Southern University College of Education Earns National Continuing Accreditation

Dear COE Alumni and Friends,

As dean of the College of Education, it brings me great pride to announce our continuing national accreditation by the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE). The College of Education's programs were singled-out for special recognition by the council, noting that the rigorous review process found "no areas for improvement relative to any of the standards," according to a letter from James G. Cibulka, president of NCATE.

NCATE

The Standard of Excellence in Teacher Preparation

In an additional acknowledgement of the high level of COE's programs, the NCATE visiting team commended the College for its strengths associated with four standards: Standard 2- Assessment System and Unit Evaluation; Standard 3- Field Experiences and Clinical Practice, the College's target standard; Standard 5- Faculty Qualifications, Performance and Development; and Standard 6- Unit Governance and Resources.

NCATE's continuing accreditation is a testament to the consistent focus on quality and assessment advanced by all our faculty and staff at the College of Education, and it demonstrates once again that our highest priority is teacher effectiveness and student success. I am extremely proud of our entire College for the hard work that went into the year-long review process. As always, our students and their parents are assured that our programs meet the highest state and national standards for academic excellence as a result of NCATE's national continuing accreditation.

Georgia Southern's educator preparation programs have been NCATE accredited since 1954 when NCATE was incorporated as an accrediting body. While on-site accreditation takes place every seven years, the College must meet rigorous reporting requirements annually to stay in compliance with NCATE's accreditation. NCATE is in the process of merging and changing its name to the Council for the Accreditation of Educator Preparation (CAEP). COE will use the NCATE accreditation logo until its next accreditation visit, using CAEP standards, in spring 2020.

While the NCATE continuing accreditation approval is a mark of our commitment to the high standards of educator preparation, it doesn't give you a sense of our impact on the state, region and nation. We've prepared some information below that I hope will provide some insight into our College.

With warm regards,

Thomas R. Koballa, Ph.D.
Dean, College of Education
