President's Newsletter

Georgia Southern University

Welcome

The end of spring semester is such a wonderful time at Georgia Southern.

The warmer weather, gentle breezes and beautiful foliage not only bring out the best of our picturesque campus, but also signal the end of another year, and bring us to the time when we say farewell to another cohort of students who are moving on to their new and exciting future. At the Commencement ceremony in May, we'll watch these students say their goodbyes, celebrate with friends and family, and possibly shed a few tears, but we trust that the foundation they received here at the University will be a springboard to their success beyond the campus.

Several students and faculty members have made their mark this semester.

Cassy Pelton, a member of the Southern Eagles Archery Club, placed 33rd in the world at the Ankara World Archery Indoor Championships in Ankara, Turkey. COSM student Reed Hodges was selected for an internship with the Blue Waters Student Internship Program, and will participate in a year-long project applying high-performance computing solutions to a range of problems.

Faculty members Jimmy Dilles, Ph.D., and Jin-Woo Kim, Ph.D., served as faculty experts in the media. Dilles, a native of Brussels, served as part of WSB Atlanta's coverage of the Brussels airport and metro bombings in March. Kim, a marketing expert, talked about the Super Bowl ads that dominate the airwaves each year.

We're proud of our excellent students and world-class faculty who continue to make history at Georgia Southern.

This summer will be a historic one for Georgia Southern, as our 13th president, Jaimie L. Hebert, Ph.D., begins his administration on July 1. Hebert has served in a variety of academic roles at Sam Houston State University, and we welcome him as part of the Eagle Nation.

What a privilege it is to serve this great university.

Maj. Laura McCullough appointed Chief of Police at Georgia Southern

Maj. Laura McCullough, interim chief of police since May 31, 2015, has been appointed chief of police of the Georgia Southern University Office of Public Safety effective immediately.

McCullough joined Georgia Southern in 2005 as a patrol officer, and has since served as a patrol sergeant, criminal investigations captain and assistant director (Major) before becoming the interim chief of police. She is also a 2013 graduate of the FBI National Academy, has participated in the Georgia Association of Chiefs of Police Executive Training and is a P.O.S.T. Certified Forensic Technician. McCullough holds a B.S. in education from Samford University, a M.S. in education from Georgia State University and a M.S. in event management from the University of Tennessee. Read more >>

New master of science program in Applied Geography coming

Georgia Southern University's College of Science and Mathematics (COSM) will soon offer a Master of Science degree program with a major in Applied Geography (MS-AG) after the program was unanimously approved at the March 9 meeting of the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia.

The program will center on geospatial technology including: Geographic Information Science (GIS), Remote Sensing, Global Positioning Systems (GPS), Spatial Statistics, Spatial Modeling and Big Data. The primary objective of the program is to prepare students for professional opportunities in applied geography, specifically in the rapidly expanding field of geospatial technology applications, and in critical workforce need areas such as: national security, transportation and logistics, urban and regional planning, resource management and conservation science. Phi Theta Kappa honors Georgia Southern

Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society has recognized Georgia Southern among 40 top colleges and universities as members of the inaugural "Excellence in Community College Transfer Honor Roll," which identifies the top four-year colleges and universities for creating dynamic pathways to support community college transfer.

The designations, officially announced at the annual convention in National Harbor, Maryland, April 7-9, were based on engagement, collaboration, impact and achievements related to the transfer of community college students as well as partnerships, support, admissions outreach, scholarships/financial aid, student engagement opportunities and institutional priorities.

Students win big at the American Marketing Association conference

Three College of Business students, members of the GATA Sales Team, competed at the American Marketing Association's 38th Annual International Collegiate Conference.

Students Chareva Myles, Taylor Porter and Jakeia Kitchens prepared 90-second pitches for their respective competitions. Myles won first place in the AeroTek AMA Perfect Pitch, and landed an internship and a job with AeroTek as a recruiter following her graduation. Porter placed second in the ABC Supply Co. International Sales Competition, and Kitchens placed third in the ABC Supply Co. International Sales Competition.

The GATA Sales Team was the only team from a single university to take home first, second and third place in the competitions. Read more >>

University's Model UN delegation adds to run of success

The Georgia Southern University's Model United Nations delegation gained recognition as an Outstanding Delegation at the annual National Model United Nations (NMUN) Conference. The NMUN Conference is the largest Model UN Conference in the world, where Georgia Southern competed against more than 200 schools from around the world, and more than 3,600 delegates. The Outstanding Delegation award was Georgia Southern's seventh such award in the last eight years, and ninth in 10 years. Georgia Southern was also recognized for Outstanding Position Paper Writing for the 14th time in 15 years.

This year, four Georgia Southern alumni served as staff at the National Model United Nations Conference, including that of Secretary-General, the highest attainable position at NMUN. Bea Soler, a double major in Political Science and International Studies, received her B.A. from Georgia Southern in 2009 and her M.P.A. in 2012. Ms. Soler is the third Georgia Southern alumna to serve in the capacity of Secretary-General (SG) in the last eight years. No other school can boast as many SGs in the same period of time.

Mark Perez-Lopez appointed to the mental health advisory committee

Mark Perez-Lopez, Ph.D., associate director of Georgia Southern's Counseling Center, was recently selected from a large national pool of applicants to serve on the Advisory Committee to the Center for Collegiate Mental Health (CCMH). The center coordinates the largest, most comprehensive annual survey of collegiate mental health services in the field from over 350 colleges and universities and 100,000 clients. It is regularly quoted in all levels of news and research publications.

In response to his appointment, Perez-Lopez said, "It is a great honor and responsibility to be selected for this position. It will provide the opportunity to learn and contribute to the ever growing field of research in college student mental health. I am excited to represent Georgia Southern University in this endeavor."

New Military Science Building progressing quickly

The new Military Science Building, which broke ground in November 2015, has progressed quickly. The site, on campus at the corner of South Main Street and Old Register Road, boasts an almost complete exterior. The official completion date for the building is set for Nov. 17, 2016, just one year from its groundbreaking.

Construction to begin on Interdisciplinary Academic Building

Construction of the new Interdisciplinary Academic Building will begin in December 2016. The new $33.6 million building, which will provide much-needed space for classes in a range of disciplines, is scheduled to be completed in May 2018

13th President is Jaimie L. Hebert, Ph.D.

The Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia named Jaimie L. Hebert, Ph.D., president of Georgia Southern University earlier this month. Hebert will assume his new position on July 1. Hebert joins Georgia Southern from Sam Houston State University in Huntsville, Texas, where he has been serving as the provost and vice president for academic affairs.

“Dr. Hebert’s experience and leadership qualities make him a natural fit for Georgia Southern University,” said Board of Regents Chair Kessel Stelling Jr. “We appreciate the hard work of the campus search committee, which included representation from alumni and the Statesboro community, for recommending such a qualified candidate.” Read more >>
